OPENING

Showin' True Colors

It's not easy being green. True spirit is hard to find, especially when hard work is involved; but in our school, true spirit was everywhere. In the halls, in our classrooms, on our sports fields, and in our hearts. Throughout the year, true spirit was expressed by many of us.

In the fall, our football team began the year displaying true determination; they had the best start to a season since 1998! Boys cross-country also went to semi-state for the first time in five years, which sent Coach Jon Tabor walking through the halls as a blonde after losing a bet to dye his hair if the boys went to semi-state.

All of our sports teams made it seem so easy to be green, but where we needed true spirit the most, we found it: in our very own school functions.

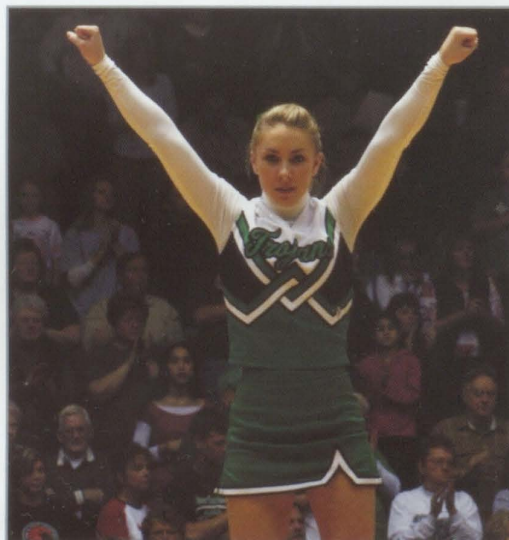

Field Day was a blast for those who could attend. From egg races, balloon shaving, to the tug of war competitions, Field Day was awesome!

At Achievement Day, six seniors received green jackets for their outstanding academic performances. Those seniors truly represented NCCHS in the finest way! Fall Dances Mardi Gras theme made the night a hit, but it wasn't easy to find students, teachers or even parents with enough spirit to stay the previous evening to decorate.

The fall was the hardest part of the year for us because we had to get back into the groove of getting up early and doing homework.

In the winter, the two basketball teams showed true spirit and great talent! Boys in basketball were busy signing tiny fans' t-shirts, while the girls were busy showing fans that they knew how to play the game.

All of our winter sports teams did very well and had true spirit, but the best, and worst, parts of winter were the delays and school closings.

The winter storm created road hazards, stress and a lot of free time for us who stayed at home. We got out of school, but we still had to make up those missed days. The winter had a lot of surprises for us, but our spirit got us through the good and the bad. The spring was filled with true spirit, too.

The Renaissance Rally was hilarious and fun, especially because we got out of class to watch our teachers goof off! Spring break was a time to take trips to other states, bond with family and friends, and most of all...be lazy!

One of the most awaited evenings of the year, Prom, was memorable for those students who attended, but it was even more memorable for the seniors because it was their last high school dance.

Finding true spirit for many students was hard because every year of high school got harder for them, but developing friendships with new people helped students gain true spirit at NCHS.

Expressing true spirit for students was easy; they became involved with clubs, joined special academic classes and showed pride during the two spirit weeks.

Teachers, coaches and students worked really hard at achieving goals, showing their Trojan spirit and getting through their first or even last year of high school. The year wound down with praises, fears, and tears as seniors said goodbye to our high school, and hello to a new and bigger world.

Field day took place during one of the three days of ISTEP testing when the freshmen, sophomores and other students were being tested. Senior Jessica Ondrais said, 'Field day is a favorite event for all students.' This year had a completely new twist to the events. Juniors and Seniors could mix together with their friends and compete in various events. These events included: Ultimate Frisbee, a football toss, egg race, tug-o-war, euchre, a blanket race and a pie eating contest. The winning teams of these events were rewarded with ribbons that declared their championship and McDonalds' coupons. While the teams competed on the field and a euchre tournament took place in the field house.

FIELD DAY

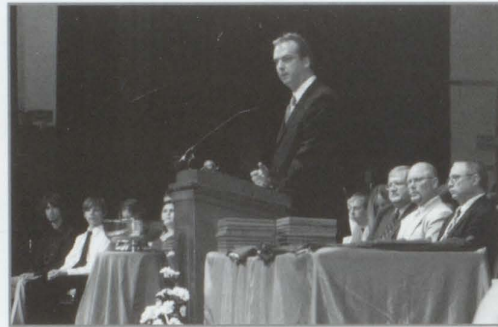

Achievement Day

The 47th Annual Achievement Day convocation was held in Bundy Auditorium on Sept. 26, 2006. To start off the convocation the National Honors Society President, senior Andrew Davisson, said the Pledge of Allegiance and welcoming. Following the opening, the band showed off their field show, The Simple Gifts of Life, Davisson then presented the speaker, Eric John, an NCCHS graduate of the class of 1978. Principal Bruce Gaylor said John was picked when an article about John was gave to him. Johns speech was about investing in yourself and your country. John is the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for the Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs. When John ended his speech, Chorale sang Instrument of Peace.

Gaylor, Associate Principal Kenon Gray, and Assistant Principal Mark Hughes awarded the green jackets, crests, and certificates during the main part of the program. The green jacket winners were seniors Kathleen Bolinger, Catherine Brunoehler, Andrew Davisson, Ariel Froderman, Dru Furbee and Leslie Hoots. When the students were awarded their jackets their parents stood up in the crowd and received a green carnation. Achievement Day keeps students motivated to do their best said senior Ariel Froderman.

Gaylor said in his opinion there were not enough green jackets given out this year.

The annual tradition, since the graduating class of 1962, of presenting the Spirit Bowl was carried on by senior class president Elizabeth Krauskopf, senior class vice-president Ariel Froderman, senior class secretary Ashley Swift, senior class treasurer Morgan Elyea, and student government president Abby Rahn. Davisson then proceeded to release the student body following the school hymn, sung by Chorale.

STUDENT LIFE

For those that were not eligible for prom, the annual fall dance was a chance for each student to dress up and have fun with friends. Every year, a theme is chosen for the dance. This year's theme, Mardi Gras, was a tribute to New Orleans.

Although no beads were allowed, everybody enjoyed themselves. From the big beach ball being bounced around to the chocolate fountain to the rap, country, and techno offered by Heartbreaker Video, there was a wide variety of opportunities for people to have fun.

Much preparation and time go into making this night as wonderful as it is. "We have to start right after school and work on the decorations and things until about 10 to midnight," junior Chad Lee said. The meeting the night before the dance is usually the longest and most stressful, though. All of the decorations have to go up, the food has to be set out, and it all has to be done in the short time allowed after school the night before.

As is custom with fall dance, souvenirs were available for each person who attended. In years past, couples left with candles, picture frames, or other memorabilia. This year, students received mints in a case embossed with "Mardi Gras, Fall Dance 2006."

Spirit Week

Spirit week was filled with many opportunities for students to show their school pride. Each class decorated their assigned hallway, while students had the opportunity to wear some unusual clothes to show their pride, including pajamas. Many students chose to show their pride for The Indianapolis Colts during this time as well, since they were on their way to the Super Bowl. At the end of the week a pep rally was held to recognize and support NCCHS athletics.

Talent Show

The talent show this year was extremely impressive. Students of NCCHS demonstrated their talents by singing, dancing, and playing instruments. There was even a comedy routine. For the first time in a couple of years there was a tie for 3rd place. sophomore Jacob Gear played an amazing piano piece and junior Josh Burns played the song "Grace Like Rain" on his acoustic guitar. both contestants deserved a place in the winners circle. In second place was junior Brent Plummer playing a solo called "calculated calamity" on his electric guitar. For first place was a band called Amongst the Dead. They played a song called "Apokalypsis". This band consisted of junior Brent Plummer, senior Steve Gearhart, junior Jessie Hawila, and sophomore Ethan Stonecipher. The emcees Nate Estelle and Matt McGrady entertained the audience with breakdancing, jokes about Mr. Thompson, and Napoleon Dynamite impressions. This year's talent show raised over $250 for Riley Hospital.

Quite A Dramatic Year

The Odd Couple

Kyle Roach, 11, has an awkward conversation about the weather with Abby Rahn, 12, and Meredith Slavens, 11.

The gang sits around and plays poker.

Zach Tabor, 9, discusses the topic of Felix's suicide with his wife.

What do a neat-freak, a slob, a shy princess, a goofy prince, a group of poker players, and knights all have in common? They were all characters in the two plays produced by the drama department this year.

The fall play was The Odd Couple, by Neil Simon. The story began as a normal weekend as Oscar Madison, a divorced and sloppy man played by senior Ryan Groce, made an effort to feed his friends Murray, played by Zach Tabor, 9, Speed, played by Bradley Wilkin, 11, Vinnie, played by Ethan Klotz, 11, and Roy, played by Josh Wilkinson, 12. The men would soon be joined by Felix Unger, played by Kyle Roach, 11. Felix is a very uptight neat freak who tried to commit suicide because his wife left him. Chaos ensued when the poker players learned of Felix's plot to kill himself. Throughout the play, Felix and Oscar are met with many clashes in their personalities. But of course, as in most stories, the play came to happy ending as Felix and Oscar realized that even though they clashed with one another on numerous occasions, they would still have to remain good friends.

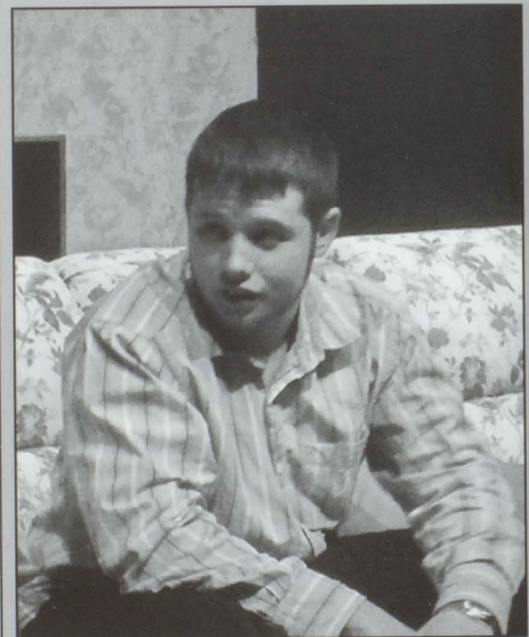

"Acting is all about getting to know the character. You have to know every mannerism and such that the character would do and bring it out," Roach said. Co-producer Evan McGrew agreed that it isn't easy to get up on stage and act. "It's easy to memorize lines, the challenge is getting into the part," said McGrew. "You need the ability to observe behaviors, and mimic what they are doing."

After the success of the fall play, auditions for the spring musical, Once upon a Mattress, came around. The story was much simpler and most of the fall plays cast received roles in the musical. The story centered on Prince Dauntless, played by Tabor, who had to marry a true princess, as dictated by his mother, Queen Aggravaine, who was played by sophomore Shylia Ward. The princess of the story, Princess Winnifred of Ikolmkill, was played by senior Abby Rahn. If Dauntless did not get married, then Sir Harry and Lady Larken, played by Roach and senior Karen Dickerson, could not get married and would have to leave the kingdom because Larken was pregnant with Harry's child. Despite his mother's many attempts to keep him from getting married, Dauntless and Winnifred lived happily ever after.

"The plays were a learning experience for the students. Procrastination," Groce said, "isn't always the best way to get things done. It's when you work your hardest that things come out well." Goofing off is one of the things the casts did very well. "The cast dinner was very fun for everyone," said Bradley Wilkin. The cast dinner is the fall play 'ritual,' where cast members go out to dinner together as the characters they are in the play.

Altogether, the 3 nights for both plays went extremely well. Nick Simmons, director of both plays, agreed. He was also very pleased with the turnout of both productions. "I'm very glad to see all the talent we have in the classes coming in and in the groups we have now. I believe that next year's productions will be as good as these, if not better."

Ryan Groce tells Kyle Roach that he wants him to move out of the apartment.

All the world's a stage, is a quote from the play "As You Like It" by William Shakespeare. In the little village of New Castle Chrysler High School, some of the teachers took this phrase directly to heart.

Once a year, for the past 7 years, the dull day to day schedule of every student takes a fun-filled punch to the face and is interrupted by the teachers themselves. The day takes place every year on the Friday before Spring Break. The students filed into Bundy auditorium in an orderly fashion and sat attentively during a convocation that highlighted the academic achievements of many of the students.

What the students saw when they took their seats was a stage full of singers, dancers, movie stars, and various other famous people that bore a slight resemblance to some of the teachers. The Renaissance Rally was one of the best known and most fun traditions at New Castle Chrysler High School.

This year's theme was M.T.V. It was hosted by Jack Black (Warren Cook) and included performances by TC Drummers, Gwen Stefani (Vicky Bertram), Fergie, Tenacious D and appearances by Beavis and Butthead, Captain Jack Sparrow (Tabor), Rosie O'Donnald (Jill Fortride), Donald Trump (Bennett), Simon Cowell (Burdsall), Paula Abdul (Kim Gibson), the cast of Armed and Famous (Mark Cronk, Mary Balmes, Ron Baker, Will Ragle, Diane Slabaugh,) the Geico Cavemen (Steve Bennett and Bill Wesseler), participants in the show Yo Momma, Brittney Spears (Kelsik), K-Fed (Bronson Lickliter) and The Beach Boys.

The 2007 prom hit our school like a tidal wave this year. The halls and the classrooms were full of students talking about dates, dresses, tuxes, dinner, and how they would fashionably arrive at prom. The theme of prom this year was Deep Blue Dreams.

Junior Josh Burns said that this is the first time he had ever gone to Prom. He also said that Prom was ok, and that he got to get his groove on.

Freshmen Erica Brammer said, "There was never a dull moment when I was around my friends and my date, but dancing would have to be one of the most memorable parts." She also added, "When I was at prom there wasn't ever a moment when I stopped smiling."

Junior Christopher Hayes said that his favorite part was dinner with his friends and his girlfriend. His date was senior Brittney Woods.

GRADUATION

Commencement took place in the fieldhouse on May 26 at 2:00 p.m. Seniors were able to celebrate their accomplishments with friends, teachers, and family. At commencement the choir and band performed and administrators handed out the diplomas.

The two students chosen to speak at commencement this year were Jon Morgan and Krystal Cole. Cole said, "I will be explaining what made high school great for our class."

Seniors had many things to look forward to as graduation approached, including senior breakfast, senior march, and recognitions. But, according to Kim Ball, most simply were looking forward to commencement.

Although many seniors were looking forward to commencement day, most said they would miss the friends they had made at NCCHS.

Student government concentrated its efforts on helping those in need, and bringing fun events to the students at NCCHS. Some of the events they sponsored were: homeless night, two coffee houses, a Christmas mitten tree, and spirit week. At the homeless night on Sept. 29, the group collected approximately $300 and additional food and clothing. Freshman Raeanne Schlotterbeck said, "Homeless night was fun for us since we got to try on the clothes we collected and knowing it went for a good cause."

NHS

The National Honor Society was one of the largest clubs available to students in New Castle Chrysler High School. The society was for students with a 10.0 GPA or better and was not just limited to NCCHS, but is a nationwide program. Each year NCCHS rewards senior members with a trip limited only to them. This year's trip took the seniors to Chicago, IL. There, the students experienced many fun things like going to the Sears Tower, eating at Ed Debeuc's Diner and what seemed to be everyone's favorite, a concert put on by the Blue Man Group.

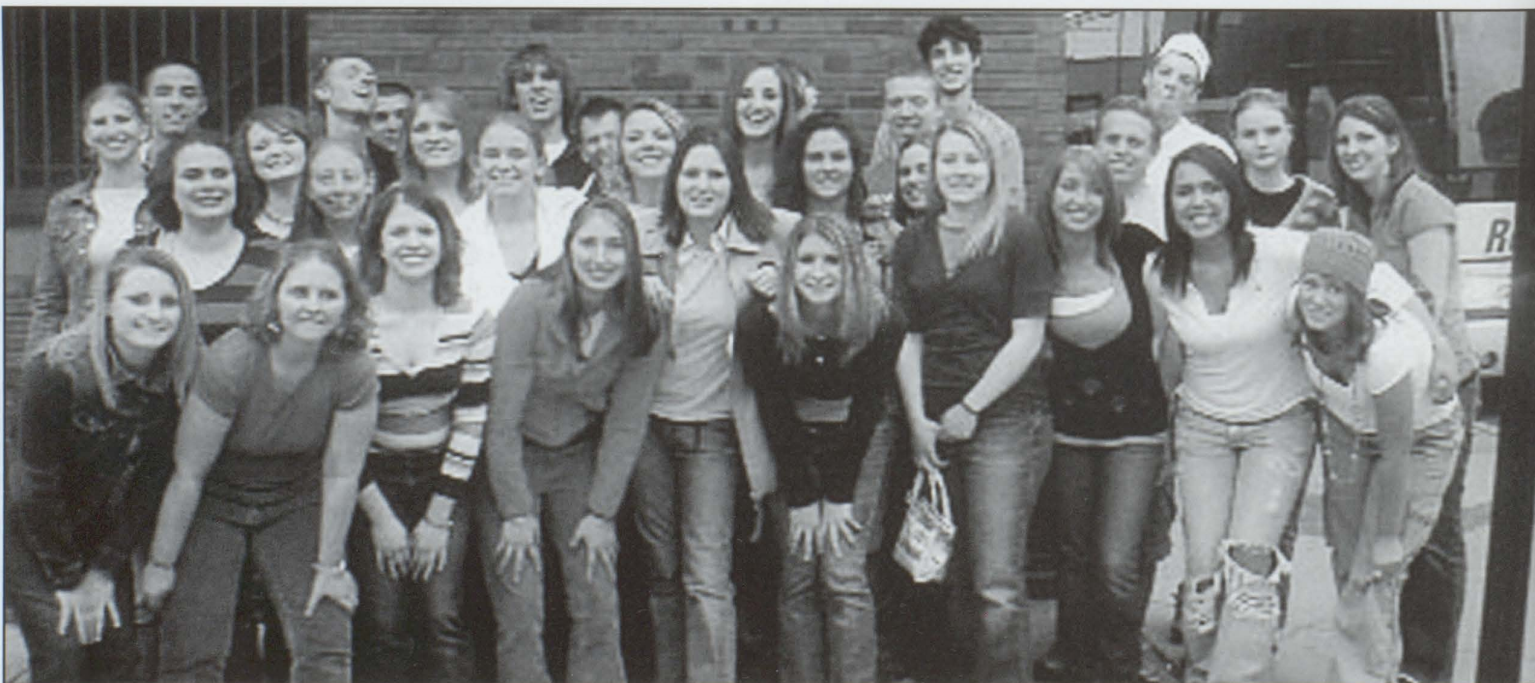

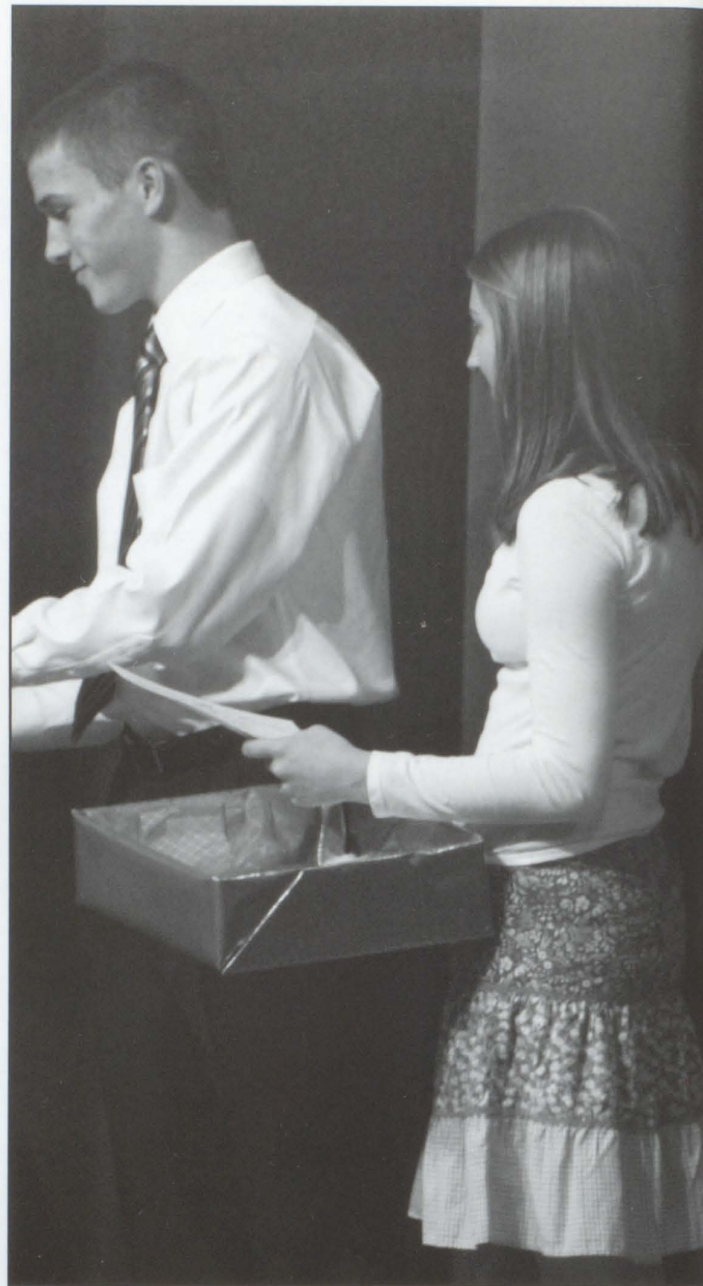

"The Blue Man Group was easily my favorite part about Chicago," said senior Buddy Favors.

"They put on a very exciting show I really want to go see them again," added senior Frank Mackey.

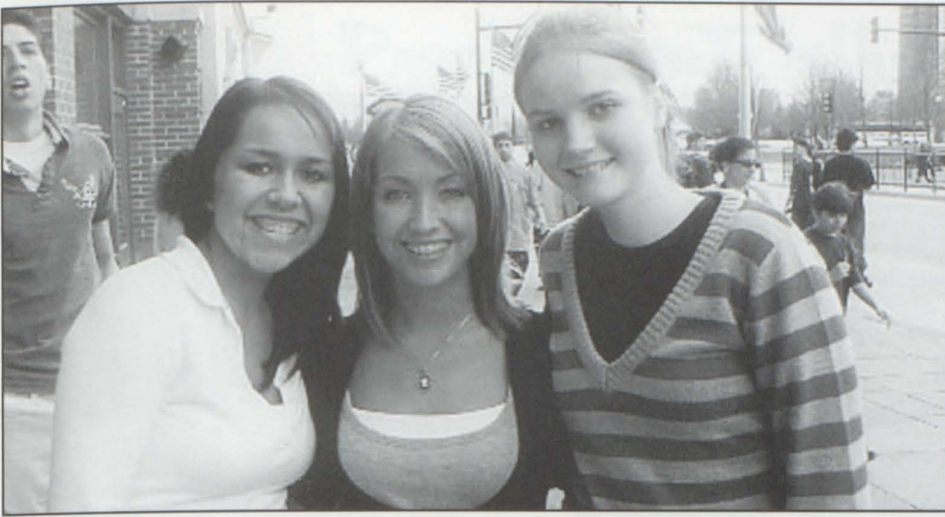

The NHS returned again to Chicago this year for the senior trip with no problems this time around. As many recall, when NHS went to Chicago two years ago, they encountered riot police on every corner. "I was really glad nothing like that happened this year. It was such a hassle having to deal with all of that while still keeping the kids under control. This year's trip went off without a hitch and I think everyone had a very good time," said NHS sponsor Teresa Garreth.

Practice pays off for teams

This year the subjects that made up academic teams were fine arts, science, spell bowl, social studies, English, and math.

Math coach Mary Balmes said, "I had a wonderful experience. The students on my team were wonderful. They worked hard and they were a wonderful representation of our school."

The most memorable moment this year for Winchester was, "When Kelsey Shean wouldn't make it to the area meet, because she had a tennis match, but she made it right before we started to compete."

Many of the team mates had favorite moments as well, "I had wonderful experience on the academic team. I had fun, and I made some great friends." said freshman Christina Goggin.

Junior Kaleb Durham said, "My favorite part of competing is the mind-numbing of some of the questions."

Junior Alex Crawford's favorite part of competing was "the booya scale (inside with the history team)."

Junior Rebecca Benson said, "I really enjoyed the academic team this year and looking forward to competing next year as long as we don't have to read Shakespeare."

The coaches prepared each team differently. Social Studies coach Colleen Cottrell said, "Practices and pizza." While Polk prepared her team by "creating power points with multiple questions to answer."

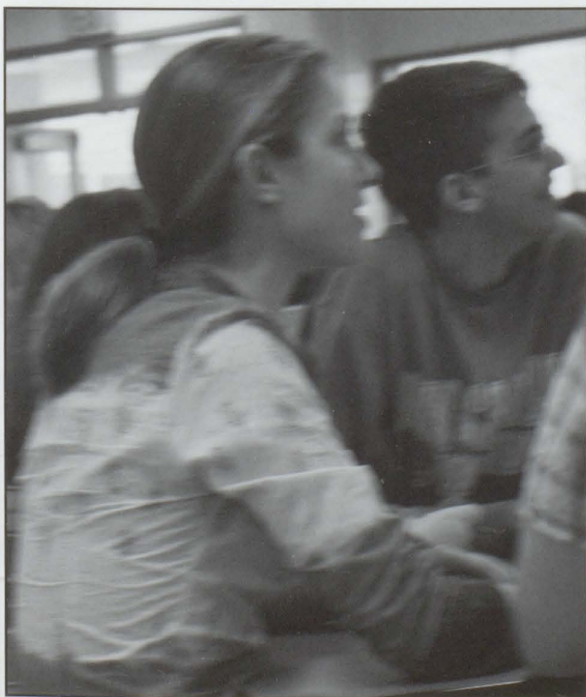

All of the teams did well the academic teams all placed 3rd at conference, while science placed 1st at conference.

With a great team, hard work, a booya scale, and pizza, the academic teams really achieved most of what they wanted to get done.

SADD members fight against destructive decisions

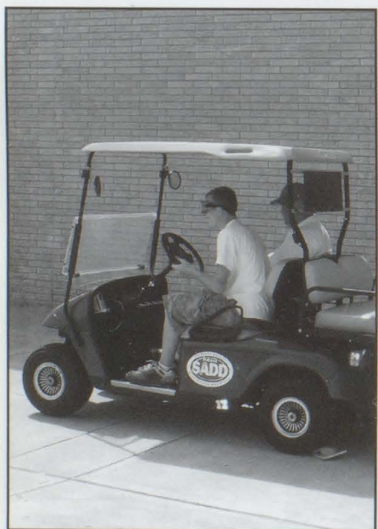

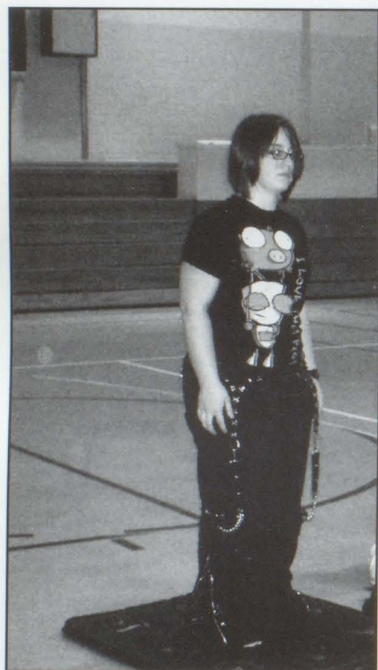

SADD was a program for students, and it stands for Students Against Destructive Decisions. The activities that SADD hosted this year were DDR(Dance, Dance, Revolution), Quick Click Challenge, and Fatal Vision. The school also brought a breathalyzer to school events, like dances and games; the high school even keeps it at school, just in case something may happen.

SADD sponsor Cheryl Bise said, "The SADD program was for a group of students who tried to help other students stay from destructive decisions." Bise said that there were 15 active members this year. Bise also said that she wished that more students would have been more active in SADD.

Sophomore Megan Weesner said, "This was my first year being in the SADD program." Weesner also said that she enjoyed this year, because of the activities like Quick Click Challenge. Weesner said that she liked being in the SADD program, because she got to help people with their drug addictions and alcohol problems.

Assistant principal Kenon Gray said, "I believe that students should make good decisions, and that everything SADD stands for I believe in."

Gray also said that SADD went fine this year, and he would like to see more membership. Gray wants students to realize that the SADD program is worth while.

Speech Team sends three to state competition

The murmur of the crowd softens as you approach the podium. The nervous energy has reached a new high, but you know that you are ready to deliver your speech, and so you begin.

With a total of fourteen meets, it was a busy year for the speech team. "We had more new members this year, which will help us build for the future," said Susan Hittson, coach of the speech team. She also stated that she was very proud of the seniors Todd Hacker, Jasmine Edwards, and Ryan Gross who all made it to the state tournament.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

FCA was a school club not only for athletes, but for all students who wanted to belong to a Christian organization. FCA tried to meet twice each month, usually for breakfast. They had a devotional and prayer time.

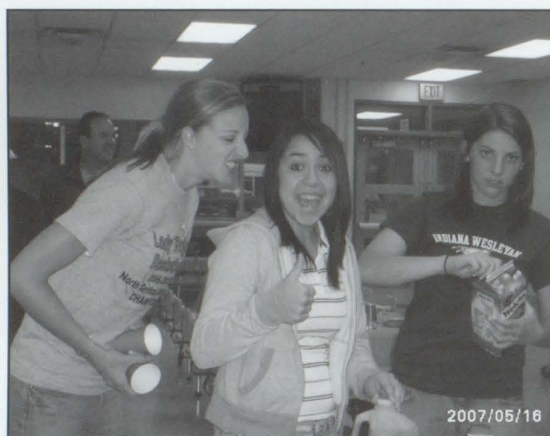

Sponsor Cheryl Betten said, "It is important for Christian students to understand that they are not alone in their walk with Christ. When they meet other students and staff who have the same common bond it is easier to stand up for what they believe."

One of the most positive activities for FCA was they provided snacks and Powerade for the opposing teams during the fall and winter seasons.

"We feel that this is a positive way to promote good sportsmanship among players and coaches," Betten said. FCA was able to provide this service because they were partially sponsored by the annual Steve Alford Golf Outing.

Bundy Tech

Lighting up the Stage

Bundy Tech was responsible for many of the technical aspects of productions from concerts to plays to the Renaissance Rally. Bundy Tech was a program that made Bundy come together with lights, sound, and curtains.

Bundy Tech Director Stephanie Brooks said, "The main goal of the program is to give everyone a successful show, and to give them exactly what they ask for."

The many programs from this such that benefited from Bundy Tech were: Renaissance Rally, plays, musicals, and honor programs, including programs from elementary schools.

Brooks said, "I have met my full potential for this year with all of the shows that were performed this year."

The students tried to have everything work that is needed for the shows to perform.

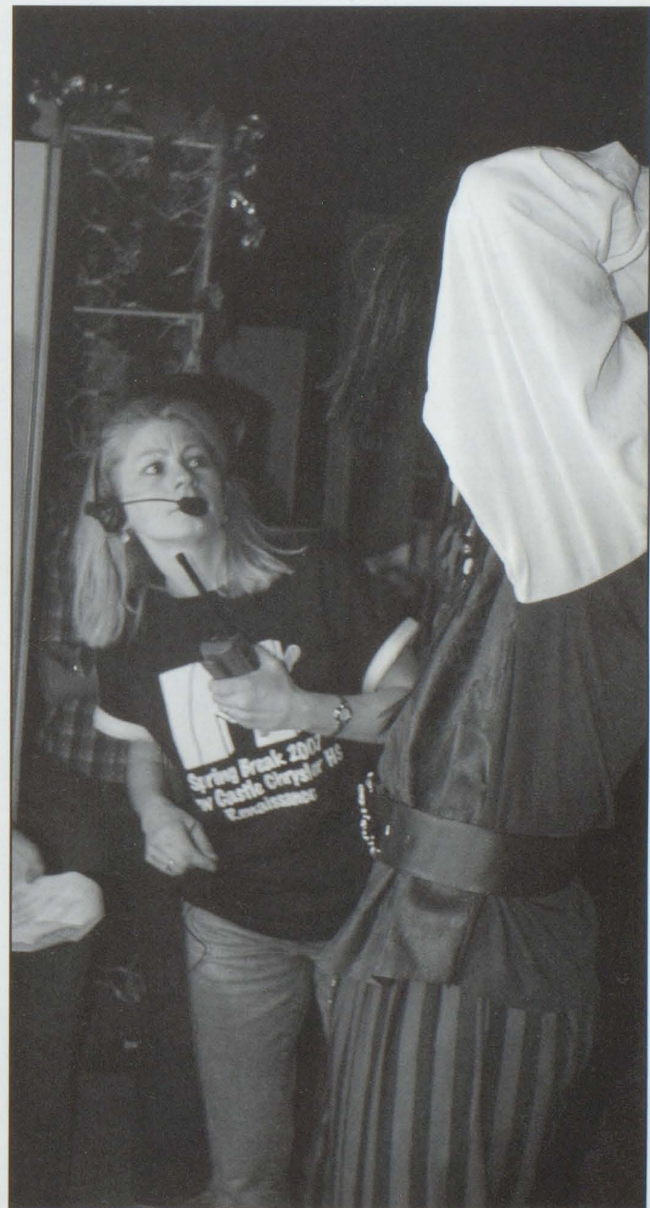

Every time a a performance took place, it was Brooks and her crew behind the scenes striving to get things in order and done to make it a technical success.

A team of individuals

The bowling club is the living definition of a team. The one requirement to be on the bowling team was to show up, said senior team member Chelsea Jarvis. They had to show up to practice, to meetings and to games.

This club became a team when they stuck together and took the sport of bowling seriously and went on to win several games along the way. The boys team made it to semi-state. The girls team made it to sectional.

CHESS CLUB

Above: Matthew McGrady, 11, throws caution to the wind in the life and death chess skirmish.

With practice every Monday and plenty of good competition, chess coach Richard Kinnaird accomplished his goal of teaching and bettering his students in the art of chess.

It hasn't been easy, though. Junior Matthew McGrady said, "Success never comes before work except in the dictionary."

The team had one tournament this year in which sophomore Wayde Coffee placed first, junior Kaleb Hatfield placed second, and McGrady placed third.

Coffee is the vice president is also the only one in the National Chess Federation, although he tried to recruit more of the Chess Club Members to join.

The club learned new things this year and had plenty of fun. So, remember to control your center and protect the King. Checkmate.

TRL

Brandon Dishman, 12, and Nates Lees, 12, give the countdown to the broadcaster until they are on-air. Their job was to ready the reporters and make sure they knew when to start the announcements.

Salon Oshorne, 9, films the announcements. During second period she often filmed the "Extras" segment of the morning announcements.

Rachel Bales, 12, checks the TRL schedule. She then prepared for what would need completed next.

The Broadcasters of the Future

The Trojan Report Live team consisted of 14 students and one teacher. The two main positions were on-air broadcasting and editing previously recorded material. During the course of second period, staff members practiced scripts, broadcast the morning announcements, conducted interviews, and prepared special news segments. However, the announcement team did more than just the announcements.

The staff also filmed many other school events. These students also developed unique skills. They learned the value of teamwork, how to use the studio cameras and other equipment, personal presentation, editing, lighting and script writing.

Though the students of TRL learned a lot of new skills and became better at working with technology, senior Nate Lees also "liked hanging out with friends." The team members all had different personalities and goals, but they all loved being on TRL.

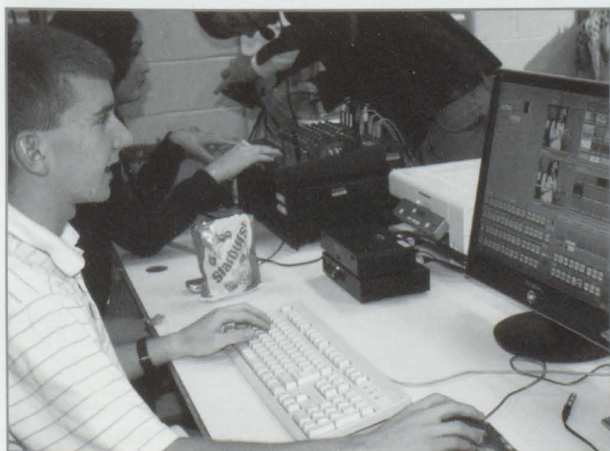

"Each student brought something unique to the team," said director Jennie Sowers. The announcements impacted the whole school, not just the members of the team. Sowers said, "Being able to watch your classmates present the announcements, along with some extras and music you like, made having to watch the announcements more interesting."

Ashton Utt, 12, and Chelsea Brown, 12, report the announcements. The two made the announcements enjoyable for students by laughing.

Corie West, 12, reports the sports. She talked about the previous day's sports scores and she announced the upcoming sports events.

Benjamin Burris, 11, places the background on the set while recording the announcements.

Art Department

The aim of art is to represent not the outward appearance of things, but their inward significance.
-Aristotle

When people think of the Art Department, words such as creative, inspired, and unique come to mind. These words exactly described the paintings, pictures and projects that came out of the Art Department this year.

First year art teacher Ashley Laughman said, "I try to keep the projects I give to the students very open ended. I just let the students know what they will be graded on. The rest is up to their imagination and their originality".

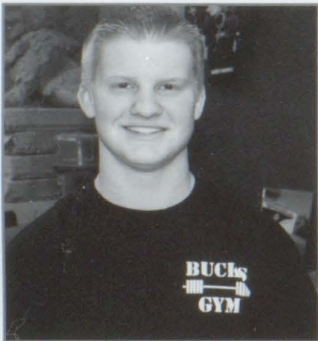

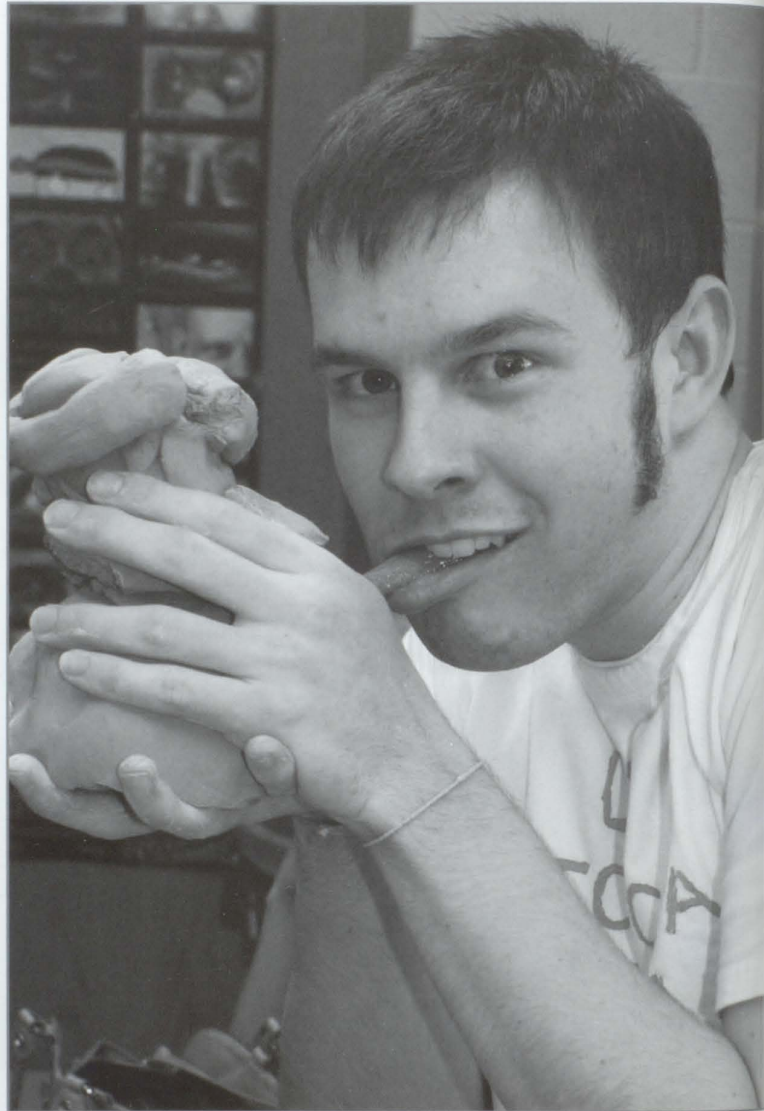

Dianne Slabaugh, an art teacher with a few more years under her belt, said "I try to shift the curriculum to the needs of the students. If they understand an area we move ahead. If the students do not understand what we are working on I spend more time on the subject, or incorporate that weak area into another unit".

Senior Michael Felix said, "I love art because it helps me to escape from the troubles of my everyday life".

Students that appreciated art just a little more than others can join Art Club. Marsha Conway is the chairman for the art club and organizes the clubs trips and events.

"I love Art Club because it gives me a chance to learn more about the aspects of art I enjoy the most said Sophomore Brandi Carnes".

This year, like every year, the art department helped students to appreciate the creativity and originality of art.

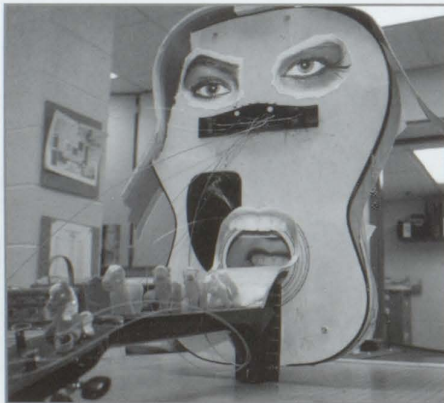

"Art class was not only a refreshing break from my routine, but this class also helped me to view the world in different aspects through the techniques taught to me", said sophomore Ross Horn.

"The Choice"

Junior Jordan Warner chose "The Risk of Love" as her project theme this year. The painting portrays a young girl who is contemplating whether falling in love is worth the risk of her emotions. The text in the background of the painting is an original poem written by Jordan portraying the man's feelings of uncertainty and hesitation returning the love expressed by the girl.

"The Wallflower"

Senior Brandon Dishman submitted his project in the effort to capture the pressure on an individual to stand out and be unique when his surroundings are so "cookie cutter", said Brandon. The black hands in his project are represent the idea that in some cases the only thing holding you back from being yourself is yourself.

Simple gifts of life

The Band had many challenges to complete to reach the high standards they were given this year. The year started in May with practices after school for the Memorial Day parade. From there they took a break until July's band camp. Band members participated in mini band camp then came together as a group.

During the year the band participated in contests such as invites, district, and regional. At state the band placed 5th out of 10 competing bands in their class.

After marching band ended, concert band began playing at home basketball games. The games were a fun opportunity for the members to play music and hangout at the games. Concert band and wind ensemble had their concerts and they competed at contest. By the end of the year, the band's hard work had paid off with a year of successful competitions, concerts and performances.

Choir

Choir Students Proved to have Much Potential

Choir students participated in concerts and contests during the school year. Concerts these students participated in were the Fall concert, Winter concert, Carol Dinners, Backstage Bistro, and Spring Sing. "The Winter concert with Dr. Brimmer from Butler reaps many rewards," choir instructor Judy Hubbard explained about the choir students most beneficial concerts.

The students also competed in various contests. Some of those contests included the Solo and Ensemble, State Solo and Ensemble, State Show Choir Qualifier, and Organizational Contest. Though the contests were rewarding to choir students, things didn't always go so well for the talented choirs.

"We saw some tough judging at the ISSMA State Show Choir Qualifier," Hubbard said. All of the members in each choir performed wonderfully together, but Hubbard believed that sophomore Lindsey Olsen and juniors Nathan Estelle and Sean McRoberts proved an excessive amount of potential in her classes. "I think that if you try your hardest and bring a positive attitude to the choir class, it makes the choir better and it makes it an easier environment," sophomore Chorale choir member Lindsey Olsen said.

Choir students, including seniors, who Hubbard said will be missed for their "dedication and leadership," worked very hard but it was also in the opinion of Hubbard that the new choir instructor will better the years to come.

"The hiring of Miss Kohen was a great choice. She has worked well with the younger students to prepare them for next year," Hubbard stated.

With all of the choir students efforts this year, many great concerts were held and they were able to compete with other great high school choirs.

The students continued to show leadership and were able to work together. Choir students did much more than singing and dancing, they worked hard and proved to have much potential.

"My favorite aspect of the English department is the teaching staff, because they offer information that is both educational and helpful," said junior Chad Lee.

English was a big part of students education. Though all students were required to take English classes, many students learned in different ways.

"Doing different things helped students learn because they were all different and learn in different ways," said English teacher David Clark.

Other than individual capabilities being met, teachers also did different projects in their classes according to the grade level in which they taught.

"The technical paper seniors wrote was important because they had the opportunity to explore things they liked. Technical writing such as manuals and guide books are important to understand but no one teaches you how to read or write them," said English teacher Lauren Johnson.

Clark thought the process of writing was most important for his freshmen students because it prepared them for the ISTEP test in the tenth grade.

"I like reading the most because it expands vocabulary," said sophomore Brittany Feaster.

Students gave at least one speech every year in English. "Students gain confidence in speaking before a group," said speech teacher Susan Hittson. Many different speeches were given by speech students. The persuasive speech was most important because students had to research and use reasoning to back up an opinion, Hittson said.

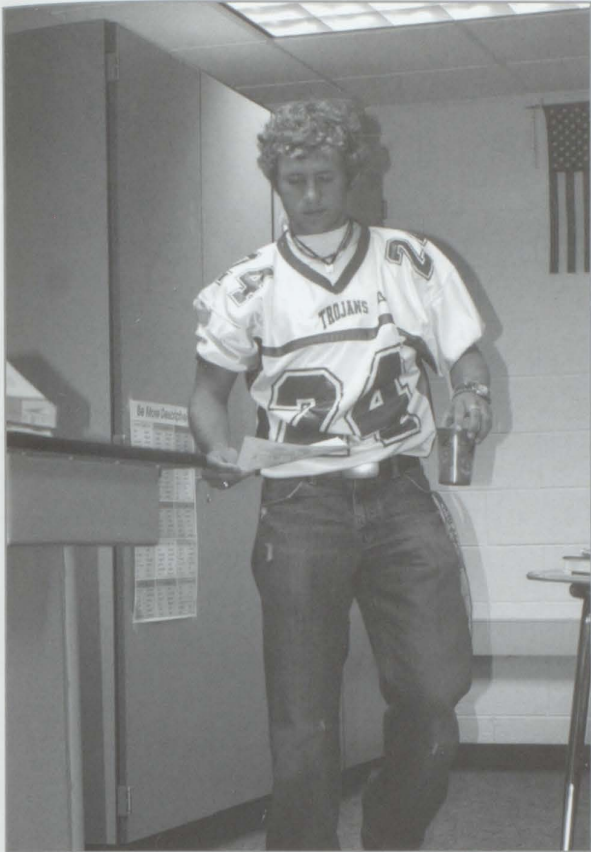

"My favorite aspect of the English department is the teaching staff, because they offer information that is both educational and helpful," said junior Chad Lee.

Students were always subjected to new learning styles and various projects to expand their education in the English area, including English history, grammar, reading, writing and even speaking. English was a very large asset to students learning.

Preparing students for life after high school

This year 700 students signed up for FACS classes that prepared them for being able to take care of themselves and around them. The different classes available were: nutrition and wellness, advanced nutrition and foods, specialty foods, food and fitness, beginning child development, advanced child development, adult roles and responsibilities, orientation to life and careers, interpersonal relationships, beginning textiles and fashion technologies, and advanced textiles and fashion technologies.

Freshman Jackie Nicholson, a student in the fashion technologies class, said that making boxers was one of her favorite projects. Nicholson also said that the reason that she took FACS was that she likes to sew.

Sophomore Jon Michael Weik, who was in the nutrition and wellness class, said that he liked the class, because you get prepared for life on your own. Also, Weik said they made cookies, pizzas, omelets, pie crust and all sorts of other foods.

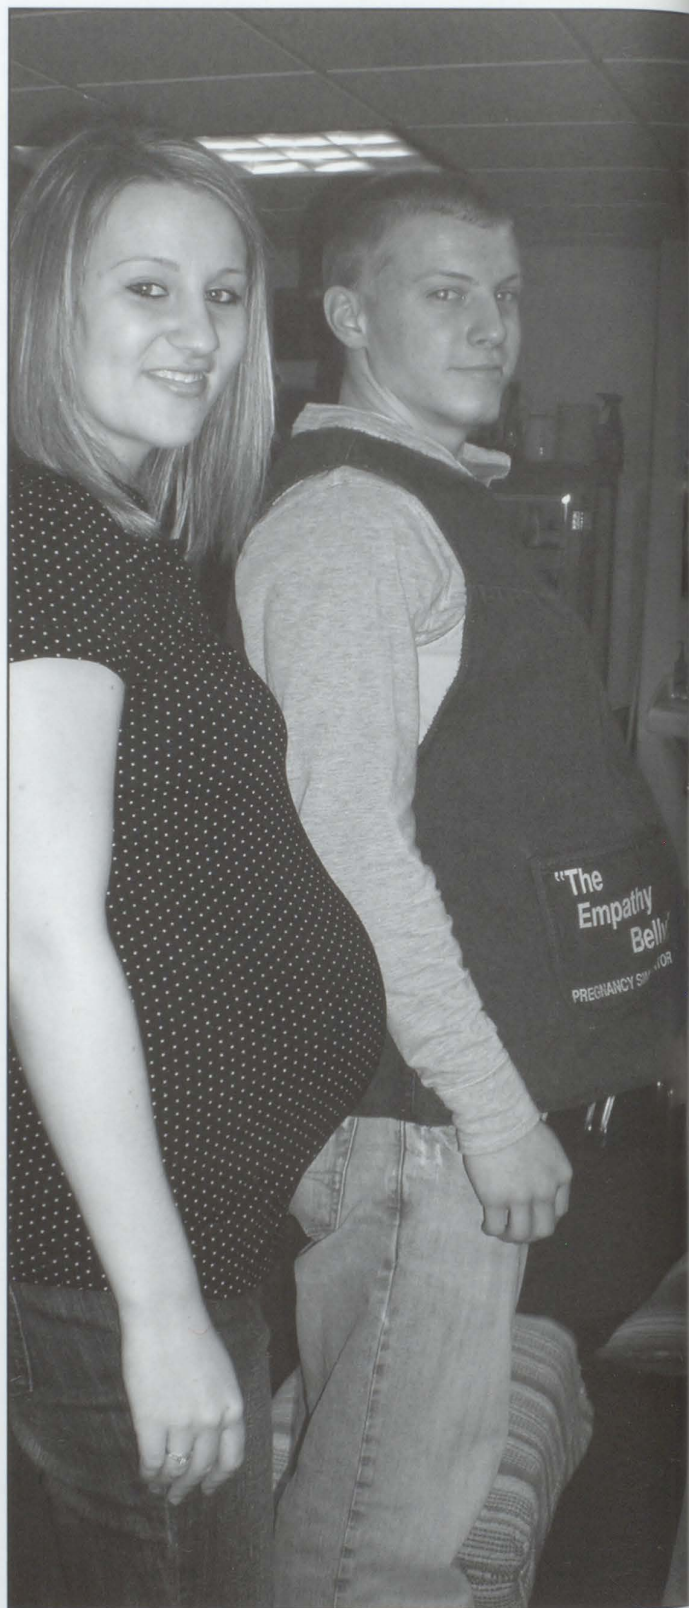

Junior Ashley Dickerson, who was in advanced child development said that the most important thing she learned in class was about Shaken Baby Syndrome Care. Dickerson said When I end up having kids I will know what to expect and I will be a better parent.

FACS teacher Chris Dicken said that the reason students liked the class is because the students were able to do hands on projects on what they learned. The benefits for the students were that they learned life skills during the class.

Students have taken FACS classes for many years and for different reasons. The most important one is that they are being prepared for life on their own.

Foreign Language

Students in foreign language classes learned more than just a new language to speak to people they know, but they learned the value of their own language and how to speak to others who only speak French, German, or Spanish. "My students were fantastic," said Spanish teacher Myra McIntyre.

Though the three foreign language teachers believed that foreign language were helpful to students, some students also believed that the languages could be helpful in their lives. "Learning how to conjugate verbs and form sentences were the things I learned that will be most helpful; because if people don't use the languages correctly, then other people won't be able to understand you," said Spanish 1 student, freshman April Carnes.

In school, foreign language students learned to conjugate verbs, tenses in the language such as present, past and future, nouns and the structure of sentences. This year, however, there was a special night where all foreign language students and teachers could sing, eat, dance and chat amongst each other, the annual Foreign Language Banquet.

The Foreign Language Banquet was held in the East Cafe and students brought prepared foreign food dishes. Students learned special songs and dances to preform at the banquet. The banquet was a huge success because so many students went and brought their families to enjoy it with them.

Foreign language taught many students the value of their own language and gave them a sense of other countries and how they speak. Foreign language students will carry the knowledge now to speak to the world.

Industrial Tech

Building Your Future One Engine At A Time

There were four systems and processes classes in Industrial Tech: transportation, communication, construction, and manufacturing. In order to move on to the processes class the students first had to pass the systems class. Then, there was engineering, project and industry, and Project Lead the Way.

According to Industrial Technology teacher Don Akers, the major project for tech class is small engines.

Sophomore Matthew Lowe said, "I want to get as much education in tech as possible, because I want to get a future in technology. I was able to build a multiple cylinder engine rather than just a one cylinder engine."

Freshman John Lawrence said, "I want to be a certified mechanic and I am working on a one cylinder engine."

One way the students gained experience was Project Lead the Way, a simple engineering class where the students actually did the same thing that an engineer does. They studied robotics and how electricity and energy is used. The careers that industrial tech can help advance are computer, electrical, environmental, chemical, mechanical, industrial, biomedical, aerospace, agriculture, and civil.

Akers said it is a wonderful program and it gives a student a hands-on experience on their future career. He recommended the program to any student who wanted to become an engineer.

Another exciting event was Pi day. Students in pre-calculus made t-shirts sporting the math holiday. Some students even baked cake, brownies, and, of course, pie. Junior Rosemary Head said, "Pi day was extremely exciting, I wish we had pi day every day!"

Many students were interviewed for peer this year, but only a select few experienced this opportunity.

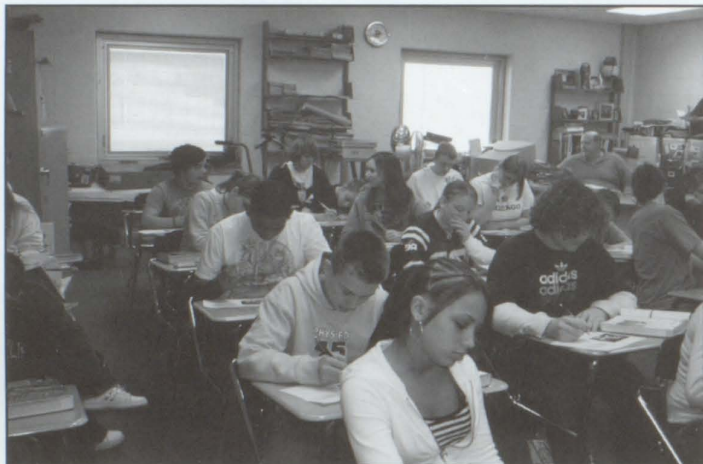

Senior Abby Rahn said, " Meeting my buddy and spending quality time with them really gave me a whole new perspective on life."

The peer program was beneficial to not only the elementary school students, but the NCCHS students as well.

Physical Education and Health

From aerobics and team sports to your everyday health triangle of physical, mental/emotional and social health, people tend to forget about the more important things in life. When students thought about the term physical education, thoughts of aches and pains, plenty of sweat, and dirty locker rooms are what tended to run through their heads.

Most students don't like physical education class but then there are some that would rather take P.E. than any other class, said physical education teacher Jennifer Kelsik. The students tended to forget about all that is involved while being educated in a physical state.

Physical education can be defined as education in the care and development of the human body, stressing athletes, and including personal hygiene. Physical education not only affected students' bodies, but it also affected their mental and social well-being. Students learned and developed solid health habits to use throughout their lives, said health teacher Rex Peckinpaugh.

Freshman Carly Janssen said, in her opinion, "The media either shows people who are too skinny or buff to be human." Media negatively influenced many health students and it gave them something to think about because of their new health education.

Special Education

The 2006-2007 school year was an exceptional year for Special Ed classes. Whether it was learning, playing games, watching movies, or just sitting and relaxing with the teachers, the students enjoyed their class time. Every school week consisted of long hours of work and study for the students, but Friday afternoons turned out to be quite rewarding. The students relaxed by watching a movie while the teachers did all of the work. "The first priority of a special needs teacher is to help each student reach their potential," said Margene Groce.

Michael "Mikey" Stevens said, "School is fun, but I like to hang out with my girlfriend." Ana Horrigan moved to New Castle Community Schools with only five months left in the school year, but seems to be enjoying the Trojan way of life.

Publications

We Publish Stuff!

Each year, a group of students is chosen to design the pages that hold the memories of the school year. There were two branches of school publications: the Phoenix and the Rosennial. Both took a significant amount of effort on each staff member's part but, according to the staff members, the payoff was worth it.

The Phoenix was distributed 10 times, about once every four weeks. Freshman Stephanie Hacker said, "You need to be focused, dedicated, and responsible.

When you're a member on the staff, you need to be organized. There are many positions [on the staff] to be filled. You start out as a reporter your first year, and then apply for another position the next year."

At the end of the year, a special edition of the Phoenix was printed, highlighting the seniors' high school careers.

The Rosennial staff, was in charge of tracking the memories of each year. "You have to have an opposable thumb, two eyes, and a mouth, and preferably an index finger to work the camera. Those are the requirements for this class," said senior Patti Blake. Also required was a reference from an English teacher. There were thirteen staff members this year, all helping to pull together this yearbook.

The Rosennial team wasn't all hard work and no play, though. Some days when there wasn't much work to do on a spread, they relaxed or played Apples to Apples.

The Phoenix team also had memorable times. When asked what they did to take a break, senior Nate Lees replied, "Oh my, just hang out with Miss Johnson and the rest of the Phoenix crew."

Although there was a lot of fun in the class, most of the fun happened outside of the class doing interviews, taking photos. There were some new experiences for some of the staff members. Junior Cecily Bourland said, "You learn to be organized and you get a taste of what journalism is like."

Science Department

"Science is clearly everyone's favorite subject," said head of the science department Jon Thompson. Who could forget all the great times in science class? Whether students were dissecting frogs or blowing stuff up, they made some good memories while learning, too.

"It was a great year and we learned a lot. I love Factor Label!" said sophomore Jacob Thompson.

"I've really enjoyed science and I can't wait for chemistry next year." said freshman Caylor Escalante.

New biology teacher Bronson Lickliter said, "I've really enjoyed teaching this year, its been fun." With physics, chemistry, biology, and earth and space, science was a real handful, but students had a lot of fun and learned even more.

Teachers find ways to make each class unique

The Social Studies Department offered a variety of courses for the students to choose from this year. Some of the classes offered were anthropology, current problems, world history, world geography, sociology, psychology, economics, law education, government, and geography.

Every senior student was required to take a semester of economics and a semester of government class. Some of the things studied in economics were the economic system-capitalism, consumerism, investing, supply and demand, labor force, money and banking, CPI inflation. A couple of the projects students did in economics class were stock market presentations and budget activities.

In government class students discussed and studied federal, state, and local government, political participation, like voting, the media, and also foreign affairs. Also, some students in government class took part in a program called Mayor for a Day where the teachers work with the mayor and Breakfast Optimists to allow our students to run the city for a day.

"We do political commercials in the TV studio. We write a constitution and develop our own political party." said government teacher Bill Wessler.

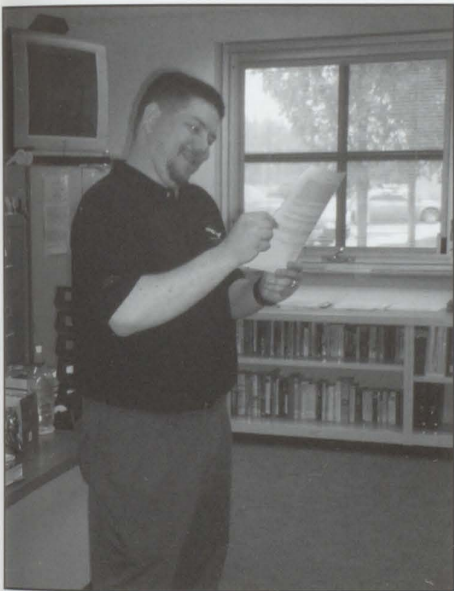

"In geography and History of the World classes the students study the science of geographic study as well as in-depth study of continents, climate, history, and people of the World." said geography teacher Tina Wood

Vocational

Preparing for the Future

From the kitchen to the construction site, vocational prepares students for it all. The vocational program, headed by Jerry Walden, has 19 programs. Some of the most popular vocational classes include Health Occupations, Building Trades, Welding, and the Computer Operations courses. Students were eligible for vocational classes starting their junior year. Some vocational classes only accepted senior participants, such as Health Occupations and the ICE (Interdisciplinary Cooperative Education) program.

Senior Todd Hacker said, "My Computer Operations class has prepared me with the skills such as Photoshop and 3-D graphics. I need these skills for the career I will be pursuing."

Many vocational students participated in contests in their particular field of study. The welding students took part in a contest called Midwest.

Senior John Lewis said, "Welding competitions are pretty tough. First you start out with a basic u-bend, then you have the hardest part, which is called a mystery weld."

In the mystery welding stage the participant was given a technique in which he or she must weld.

New Castle Chrysler High School had many different attributes that made this year great and its outstanding vocational program was definitely one of them.

"Welding class wasn't just fun, but the skills its teaching me will help me get a job when I graduate form high school."

On top of that, they also managed to beat Muncie South and adopt the North Central Conference Champion title. The Trojan ladies were led by volleyball coach Allen Davis. They made a bold show of every bit of talent that they had and celebrated each others victories louder and with more heart than any other team out there. The attitude of the girls golf team is what made them great golfers and great people. This season wasn't one of the best ever, but it wasn't the worst. The girls got to play different schools, expand their skills in the game and have a great time. This team of golfers just can't be beat when it comes to spirit.

SPORTS

teamwork is the word

Girls cross country had a successful season due to the number of returning runners. This season there was only one freshman, Cassie Ashford, who said, "My first season went really well, and the only reason I made it through was that I like running."

The girls really were a team this season, and their efforts were rewarded well. They went to Semi-State, which is farther then they made it last year.

As if that wasn't enough, senior Ashton Utt, who made All-Conference said, "It was very satisfying to have moved up one place from last year."

Coach Ron Grimes said, "It was a good season. The girls got along great. Of course every year the teams are different, and they have to develop their own work ethic."

"The season was awesome and we got along great. I made it through the races by singing songs in my head." said Cassie Rainesalo, 10

Boys Cross Country

For the first time in five year the boys cross country team advanced to semi state. As a reward for the big win Jon Tabor dyed his hair blonde. They were in first place out of thirteen teams. The New Castle cross country team improved drastically from last year by beating personal best times, placing higher at meets with less points and winning two separate meets including the Richmond Sectional, said Tabor.

Tabor also stated that the highlights of the year were winning the Richmond Sectional, having seven athletes break 18 minutes and beating numerous teams that we have never beat before including Muncie South. The athletes who broke 18 minutes were senior Drew Tower, junior Adrian Tucker, sophomore Tim Spurlock, junior Ethan Ferguson, senior Todd Lunsford, senior Jake Carter, and freshman Sam Lewis.

When senior Todd Lunsford was asked what was the best way to prepare for a meet, he said, "Go and relax and not to think about the race as much and to let your body do the running not your mind."

Both Lunsford and Tim Rainselo really like the friendships and the closeness like a family. Rainselo also valued cross country because, "It helps me to strengthen my relationship with God and I pray to him about my meets."

Determination is a quality that every person should show. It is the ability to keep going despite failure. The boys tennis team placed last at the Northview Invitational and North Central Conference this year, but they did not let their failures stop them. Although the team lost, it was still very successful in the fact that they enjoyed each other's company.

Senior Dru Furbee said, "This year's team had a lot of fun together, even through the games." What exactly is a team? In the dictionary, a team is "a number of persons associated together in work or activity."

According to junior Alex Crawford, "A team is a group of people coming together to accomplish a common purpose and having a heck of a lot of fun doing it."

Furbee said, "The biggest thing that makes a good team is chemistry - a bonding between one another and getting along." Though the team was not very successful, their determination and team chemistry are what make our school proud.

Football

The Trojan football team started their season 3-1, something that hasn't been accomplished in 8 years. The team ended their season with a record of 4-6. The Trojans first game was at home, against Anderson Highland. The Trojans won with a score of 32-14. Even though they lost to the Marion Giants, the team got right back up and won the game against Muncie Central, 14 - 6.

Junior Brandon Bogue thought that football was challenging because it worked his body and his mind. He also said that he improved from last year. The next big game was at home against the Richmond Red Devils, and the team won 34-21.

Sophomore Travis Fox said the team spent about 21 hours a week practicing. He also added that the seniors were absolutely amazing; because of their leadership and that they taught the younger guys a lot.

"The biggest success of the season was opening up to 3-0," said Fox.

My most improved player is Josh Sanchez, because he took on responsibility of the offense line and he showed a vast comprehension of the game, said coach Warren Cook. Cook finished up his 15th year coaching football, and he said everything he has he owes to the great game of football.

Even though the team lost the sectional they were able to enjoy the sport of football with their teammates, fans, and family.

Girls Soccer

The New Castle girls soccer team had a challenging season. With a fresh team, Mary Balmes, the girls coach, said, "The team has improved greatly as a whole, especially in our passing abilities"

This tough soccer team has put alot of dedication and hard work into their game of choice. "Self-motivation is really important to our team, especially to the seniors," senior Hayley Hoover said.

Many of the girls on the team would agree that they all worked hard, cried, laughed, and made fun of each other despite the fact that they are such a young team. The team this year consisted of 19 girls. The team had a total of 5 wins and 12 losses. The team finished with a 5-12-1 season. These girls had goals, not only did they want that ball to go through that box, but they wanted to be a close team and win sectionals. At the end of the year the girls were proud to be a team.

Boys Soccer

NC Boys have growing season

The 2006 New Castle boys soccer team was under new management this year. This was the first year for new head coach Jacob White.

White said, "This year we had a pretty good season and all of these guys have all grown a lot since the beginning."

The team had a balanced season as well. They lost their first game in sectionals to Centerville to end the season, but in the middle of the season, the team won over number one ranked Anderson.

"That was definitely the highlight of my season," said senior Jon Morgan. "I can't believe we managed to beat them, it was a really tough game and we were all really glad to pull off the win."

The team finished the year with a record of 6-9-2 for the season and 2-4 in the North Central Conference. The team will be losing 8 seniors this year but won't be at a terrible loss, the team returning will consist of 11 seniors including one of the captains from this year, Junior Kyle Roach. The boys will be looking to win sectionals next year under White as he becomes more accustomed to the team and has a season under his belt.

A good end to a great season

The girls swim team had a winning season this year. Hardwork, including rough practices during winter break, paid off giving the girls a 5-4 season record.

"The girls really pulled together to get the team a good placing at the end of the year at sectional," said coach Jennifer Kelsik.

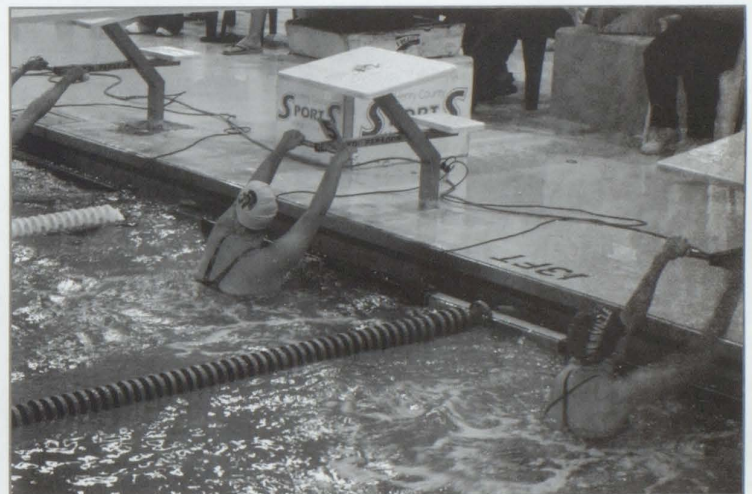

Even though the team was serious about their meets, they also formed memories with each other.

Sheridan Slagle said, "I remember when some of the girls would sing the Barney song in the shower after the morning practices."

Kelsik said that some of the swimmers, like Jordan Warner, Sarah Fienker, Amanda Richey, Ashton Utt, and Catherine Brunoeheler, were key players in gaining the highlight of the season, which was placing in the top four at sectional

After the season was over the girls swimming team didn't just end in a 4th place finish at sectional but with lasting memories of the season.

Trojan Wrestling

The 2006-2007 Trojan wrestling team ended their year with a team record of 31-10. The wrestling team won their first match of the season against Milan High School with a score of 41-33. After the first match they won 8 matches straight. At the end of the season, the Trojan wrestling team went to sectionals, and the Trojans won. The high school they beat in sectionals was Shenandoah, and the score was 61-6.

The wrestlers that went on from sectionals to regional were Eli Alafogianis, Dusty Bennett, Jordan Dulaney, Justin Edmonson, Cody Fellers, Anthony May, Kris Pence, Matt Oliver, Dustin Slover, and Von Wasson.

Coach Rex Peckinpaugh said that there were two MVPs this year Eli Alafogianis and Jordan Dulaney. Peckinpaugh said the reason that those two were chosen was that they both showed leadership and were very outstanding.

Alafogianis said that Peckinpaugh was the person who influenced him to begin wrestling. Alafogianis said, "Cathedral [was the hardest school they wrestled against], not only did they beat us pretty bad, but they were stacked from top to bottom, plus I even lost." The memorable moment for him was when he beat a kid from Hamilton South Eastern, to claim a spot in the state meet.

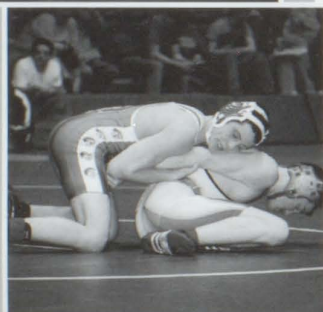

Freshmen Matt Bunner said that the seniors taught him to keep his head up and to enjoy the season. Bunner said, "Winning sectionals was the best moment, because that was our season goal."

The wrestlers were champions of both North Central Conference Tournament, and IHSA Sectional Tournament.

Gymnastics

Gymnasts may flip out!

The gymnastics team ended their season as sectional champs this year. There was so much for the team to be happy about this year. The highest team score was 104.8 at sectional. Tina Wood was the head coach. Juniors Caitlin Stevenson and Kaleigh Carter were the captains of the team and won the spirit award. The awards for MVP were awarded to sophomore Brittany Rains and freshman Brooke Kemp.

Wood said, "What inspired me the most about gymnastics is that I was involved since I was 6 years old. She says this years team improved the records and had a lot of talent and depth."

Each member of the team found a different thing to love about gymnastics.

Carter said, "I love to encourage my team mates and to pump them up for a meet. I am inspired because I like to be a good role model for children."

Junior Emily Florea said, "My favorite thing to do in gymnastics is bars, bars, and falling!"

Stevenson said, "My favorite thing to do in gymnastics is to be with my team. They are amazing!"

The team continued to improve throughout the season as well.

Rains said, "I believed that the team improved and we did a lot of fun activities together and I think thats why we were a lot closer."

Freshman Taylor Thomas said, "My vault and floor improved majorly; and I also competed on varsity for vault."

Freshman Leigh Stevenson said, "I've been out for 2 years and I got a lot of my tricks back."

The way most of the girls prepared for a meet was to pray together in the locker room before each meet, block out a lot of nervousness, and realize that they have to be great for their team.

Cheerleading

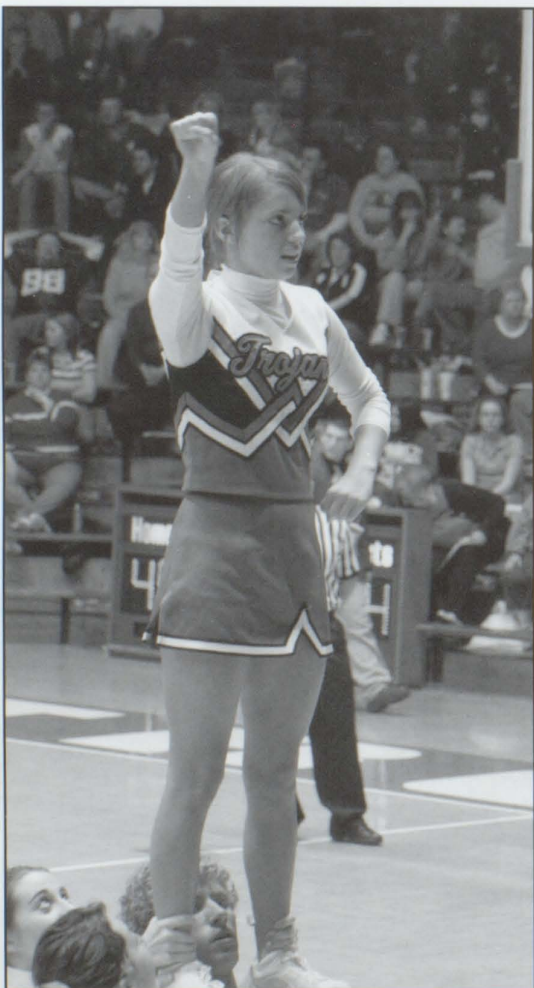

Cheerleading this year was a combination of chanting, stunting, tumbling, practicing, and being involved with the crowd. The NCCHS cheerleaders not only cheered for the school but some also took time out to compete. The competition squad placed fourth at the state competition this year.

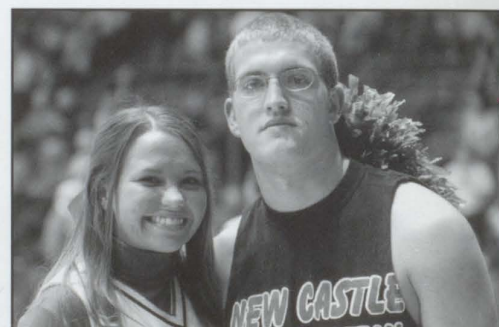

One important part of cheerleading was being a complete group, squad, or team. At the same time it helped to build friendships along the way. The cheerleaders went to camp in the summer and cheered during football season and basketball season together. Also, they practiced two or three times a week.

"We had our troubles, but when we needed to work as one we excelled," said senior Lauren Herran.

Something new for the NCCHS cheerleading this year was having boys on the squad. There were two boys on the squad this year, seniors Brandon Bogue and Steven Padgett. Some of the girls said that the boys made cheerleading more fun and interesting, and it let them do some harder things. Bogue said, "Being around all the girls was great, but they complained a lot."

Girls end season as sectional champs

The 2006-2007 girls basketball team played hard and saw results this season. In the overall season, the girls came out with a 17-3 record in the regular season.

In conference games, the girls came out of the last conference game with a 65-49 win against Logansport, making them sectional champions.

Senior Corie West's playing was one of the highlights of the season. She was the only girl to make it on the Indiana High School All Star girls basketball team.

Head Coach Curt Bell said, "The girls really worked hard this year. We had a great season and I am going to miss the team."

GIRLS BASKETBALL

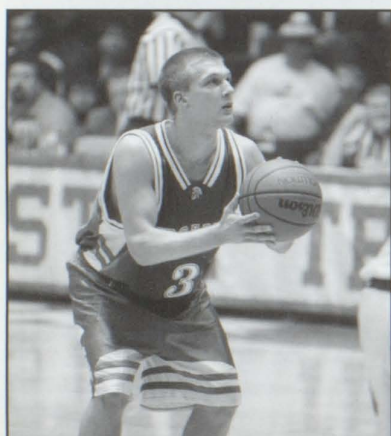

Boys Basketball

The boys basketball season ended in disappointment with a loss in the second match of regionals. The boys were expected to have a repeat, state-winning performance this season with 8 players returning from last year's team, including the first all-star since Steve Alford, senior Zach Hahn. "I wasn't disappointed with the season, but I thought we could win state again this year, we were just too overconfident," Hahn said.

The team finished with a record of 23-3. Coach Steve Bennet said, "Our boys played pretty well this year despite the pressure of competing with last year. Even though we didn't make State, I'm proud of them."

One of the most memorable moments of the season was the banner night at the fieldhouse, commemorating the state championship of 2006. Another highlight of the season was the Trojans admittance into the Winter Classic Tournament, an honor usually reserved for the best teams in the state.

Boys Golf

The boys golf season boasted both strong individuals and a team with a promising future.

"We had a strong year with a great Varsity and a JV that promises to be an asset to us in the years to come," said sophomore Corey Pasman.

According to coach John Thompson, Pasman was the low scorer (average) for the team this year in both 9 and 18 hole rounds.

During the season the boys placed 3rd at their own New Castle Invite and 7th at sectionals. In addition, senior Andy Davisson qualified for regional and was also Academic All-State.

The boys golf team had many all-around players that contributed to a successful season. The team was 7-7 in duals for the season.

Hacker said, "My most enjoyable moment from this season was being doubles partners with Molly Swift because she kept things interesting and funny at games and practices."

"I liked home games much more than the away games because it was more comfortable playing on our courts and even more when it was the courts used when practicing," said Cassandra Huesman, 9.

SPORTS

The 2006-2007 NCCHS girls varsity tennis team finished their season with a record of 3-10, while the girls junior varsity team had a record of 6-7. The girls tennis team was coached by John Burdsall.

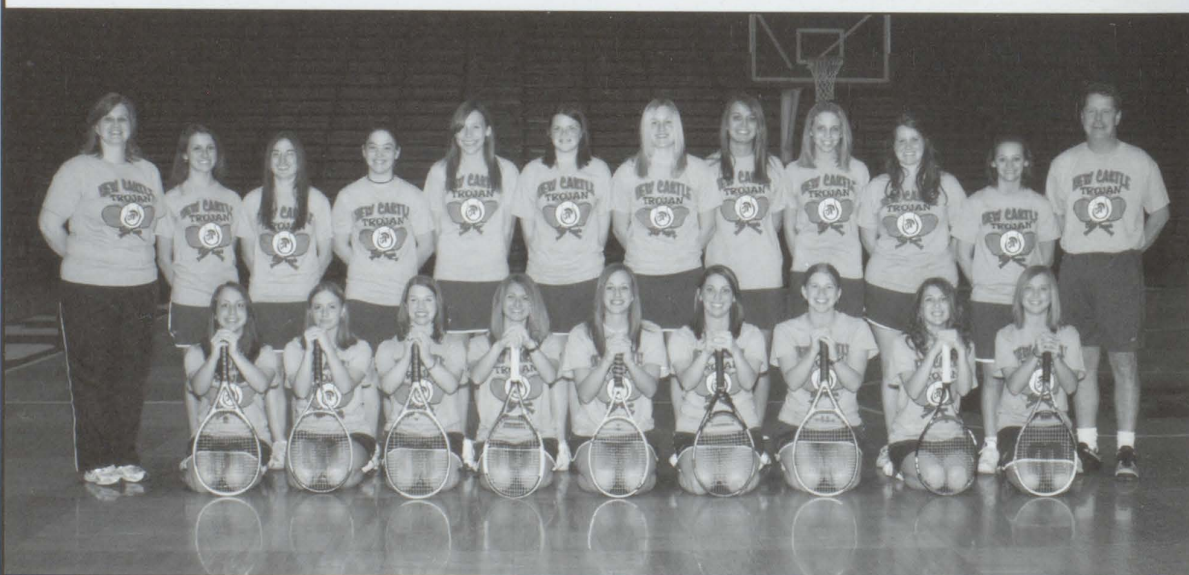

"The thing I most enjoyed about coaching the girls tennis team was the players because they're good people and great student athletes," said Burdsall.

Sophomore Kailee Sweet stated that her most enjoyable moment from the season was, "when Burdsall told us the story about the little tennis team that could."

Some of the girl tennis players said they liked home games because of home-court advantage and it was easier for their family and friends to come watch them. While other tennis players said that they liked away games better because of the fun bus rides.

A lot of the players said they liked meeting new people at the matches, having fun with their friends that played tennis, and getting exercise and staying in shape.

Girls Track

Most students thought of running as something required for P.E., when most of your grade depends on it. For these girls, that was not the case. They actually considered running to be quite a fun past-time.

The girls put in many hard hours of running, conditioning their bodies, and staying fit.

Overall, the year went very well for the team. "I think that the team was very good this year," said Madison Qualkenbush, 11. "People see track as a self-gain sport, but we have to work together as a team for things to go well. We support one another and help each other out."

Coached by Ron Grimes, the girls were 6-5 and placed 5th in sectionals. "I'm very proud of them," said Grimes.

Boys Track

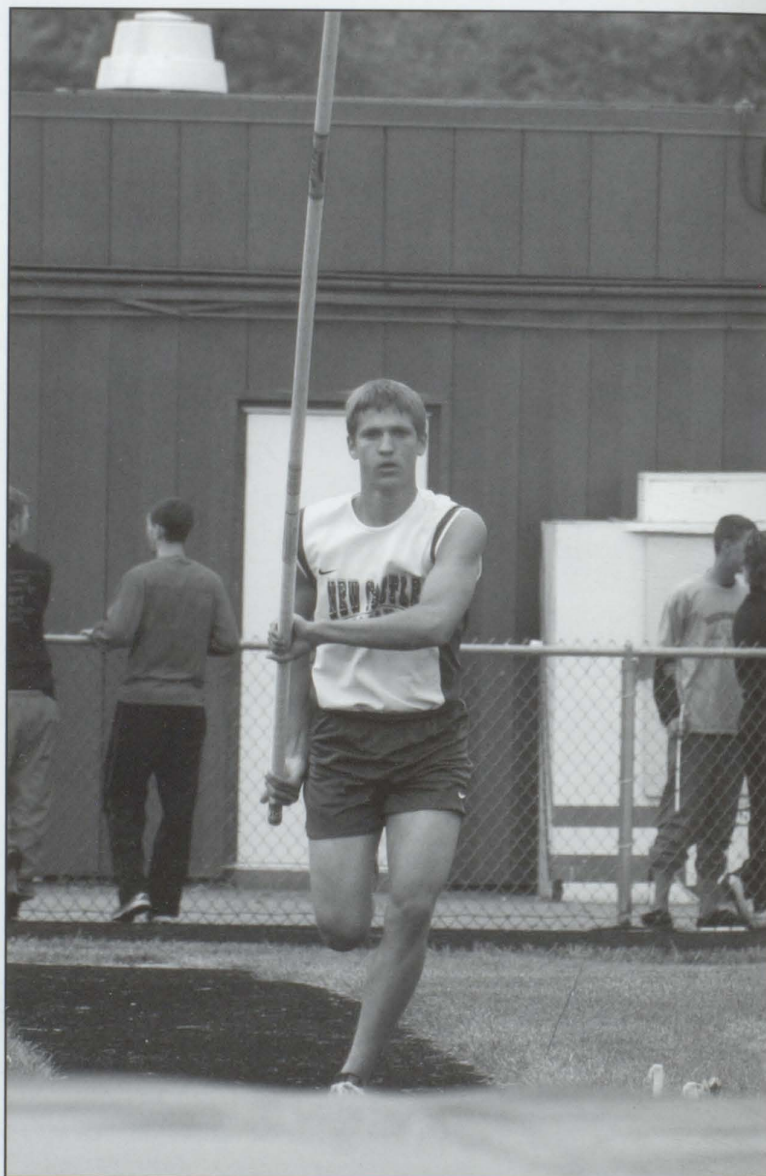

The boys track team had a successful season, including breaking the school record of 8:16:24 for the 3200 relay. The team that broke the record consisted of senior Lenden Bowsman, junior Quentin Goodin, senior Spencer Fleming, and senior Drew Tower. "The 3200 relay team is forming a tight bond which can make them very successful," said coach Jon Tabor.

Some of the season highlights were placing second at the Marion Relay and New Castle Invite, fifth at Muncie Central Relays, and sixth at the Noblesville Invite and Conference.

Softball

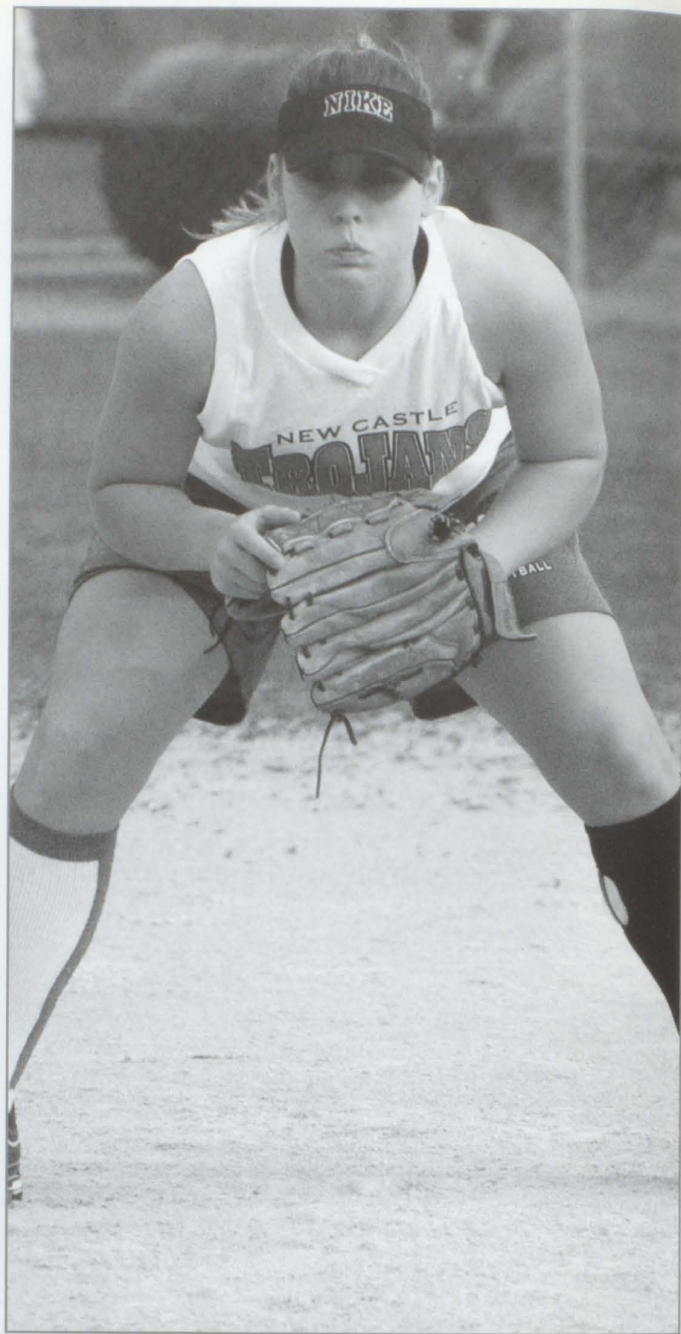

During this season, softball players continuously showed good teamwork skills. "They have worked well together throughout the year," said varsity assistant coach Ron Baker. Coaches often times have one "Most Valuable Player (MVP)," but Baker said, "There isn't one most valuable player as we have had different girls step up throughout the year."

There may not have been one MVP, however, according to Baker, senior Megan Clemens had over a .350 batting average and sophomore Kelsee Blackwell had an earn run average (ERA) under 2.5. Some of the girls said that they had a better year than last year because they won the sectional game.

"Winning the sectional game was the best thing for me this year because I got my first no-hitter and we really played well as a team," said sophomore varsity player Kelsee Blackwell. According to Baker, the team won the sectional game for the first time in six years.

Winning games were definitely a highlight for the girls' season, but sometimes the best thing about the season was just "hanging out with the girls," according to sophomore varsity player Meghan Brown.

The team improved from last year according to Baker. The girls finished over .500 and won sectional, which was a tremendous improvement. One of the best parts about coaching for Baker was, "watching the team get better as the year progressed." The softball season was a big hit for fans, parents, the coaches and most of all for the players.

What You Need to Know

Thirteen Rosennial staff members and adviser Lauren Johnson worked with Jostens, Inc. to complete this ninetieth edition of the New Castle Chrysler High School yearbook. This book was created to remember all of the activities in the school for the 2006- 2007 school year.

The Jostens Publishing Inc. printed 500 copies of this yearbook. 38 percent of the student body bought this yearbook for $50. This 184 page yearbook was printed in State College, Pennsylvania at Jostens Printing and Publishing Division.

The thirteen staff members used Jostens Yearbook Avenue website to create spreads and put this yearbook together. The staff members also used Adobe Photoshop 7.0 to edit photos and Microsoft Word to write stories and questionnaires.

The fonts used throughout this yearbook are Bookman, Ebony, The Hawk, Vision Thick, and Eras Ultra. The theme for this book is "Showing Our True Colors."
