What the future holds for us is unknown. As we prepare to step in to the new millennium, many questions exist. For our world, we worry about the Y2K bug and what it might do to our bank accounts. For our nation, we ponder who will be our new leader in the year 2000. As a school, we wonder if the new areas of construction will be beneficial to the students of New Castle Chrysler High School.

What's goin' on?

Whether it was the big dance or just another night out with friends, there were always stories to be told during passing periods. The things that students did in and out of class at NCCHS were what made school fun. This section is dedicated to the “being a teenager” part of a student’s high school career.

Annie Thornhill was all smiles at the art club Halloween party.

honors students

Seventeen green jackets, seventeen crests and certificates, and thirty-eight certificates were handed out to the deserving juniors and seniors on Achievement Day. "Ever since my sophomore year, my goal was to get a green jacket, so I was really excited when I got my jacket," commented Casey Ash. Chorale and the Trojan Marching Band started the program with the "Star Spangled Banner." National Honor Society President Evan Feters then welcomed parents, staff and students to the annual event.

The T.M.B. gave a brilliant performance with their 1998 field show Enigma Variations. Feters then introduced 1987 alumna, Linda Beck Langford, whose speech was an inspiration to all. Next, Chorale performed "Things That Never Die." The green jackets were then awarded to those seniors maintaining an 11.0 or better grade-point-average. "My goal ever since 9th grade was to keep my G.P.A. up so I could get an honor jacket; I did it and the Achievement Day ceremony let everyone know," declared senior Amanda Oxley. Crests and certificates went to seniors with a 10.0 to 10.9 G.P.A. and certificates went to juniors with a 10.0 or better G.P.A.

The ceremony closed with the presentation of the Spirit Bowl by senior class President Ali Van Dam, junior class president Lee Marcum, and Student Government President Lyndsey Perdue. The student body joined Chorale in the school hymn as Evan Feters closed the ceremony.

you?

"Achievement Day was important because it honored the people who put in the extra effort to make good grades."

-Senior Emily Denney

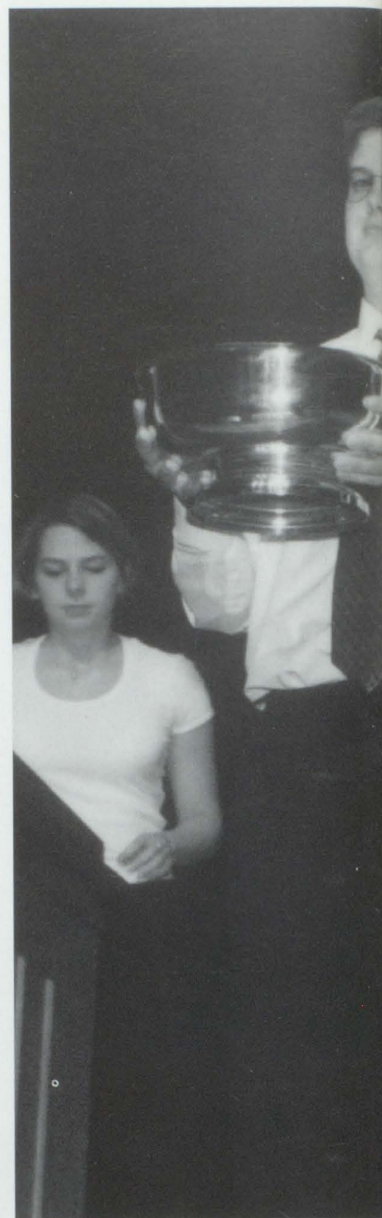

"Achievement Day recognizes the people who work hard academically, because most of the time we only recognize our athletes."

-Senior Laurie Metroka

"Achievement Day reminds me that all the hard work I have put forth is really paying off. I'm proud of myself for maintaining such 1987 NCCHS alumna Linda Beck Langford was welcomed back to commend this year's honorees.

Fall Dance

breakin' it down

The Fall Dance Committee worked hard this year to pull off the dance at Westwood Country Club. The Fall Dance Committee spent one month preparing for the big event. The committee was responsible for tickets, decorations, and ballots for the court. The theme of Fall Dance was "A Night In Paris."

Fall Dance is a dance known for students going stag. Students at NCCHS like to go stag or go with a big group of people. "I had a blast going with a group of girls," said Amber Flynn. Most students prefer to go with a big group rather than have a date. The advantage is that you can dance with anyone you want and not feel tied down. "This was the best dance I have ever been to," said Brittany Koger.

The Queen and King of Fall Dance were Ashley York and Ryan Edwards. The girls voted for the King and the boys voted for the Queen. To be on the court, students have to be nominated by someone in the school. The song that the King and Queen danced to was "I Don't Want To Miss A Thing."

Ceremonies

provide inspiration

The senior motto "Every new beginning comes from some other beginning's end," was spoken truly for the kick off to the new school year. From the incurable "senioritous" to the senior skating party, the class of '99 was looking forward to starting off on the right foot. Senior vespers and baccalaureate were events seniors attended to gain spiritual direction for their school year and their future. Knowing senior vespers is the first senior activity, seniors had to cherish each event as if it were their last.

Though it's the end of something so great, some say it's best to go out with a bang! Baccalaureate is definitely the way to end a memorable year at NCCHS. Approximately 40 students singing in Bundy Auditorium for baccalaureate was definitely a sight to see. Scriptures were read by some students. Then speaker, Bob Wieland, had a variety of experiences to share with the students of NCCHS. Bob went from being drafted by a professional baseball team to being drafted by the army to fight in Vietnam. In Vietnam he stepped on a mortar shell and lost both of his legs. Through all of Mr. Wieland's hard times, he had a lot of great accomplishments to remember and relish forever. The puddle of tears is all that remained at the Class of '99 Baccalaureate program. It was the grand finale for all seniors but, "Every new beginning comes from some other beginning's end."

Out of the Crowd

What about the program
you?

"The [senior vespers] speaker was older and she kept a positive attitude throughout her life."

-Senior Casey Ash

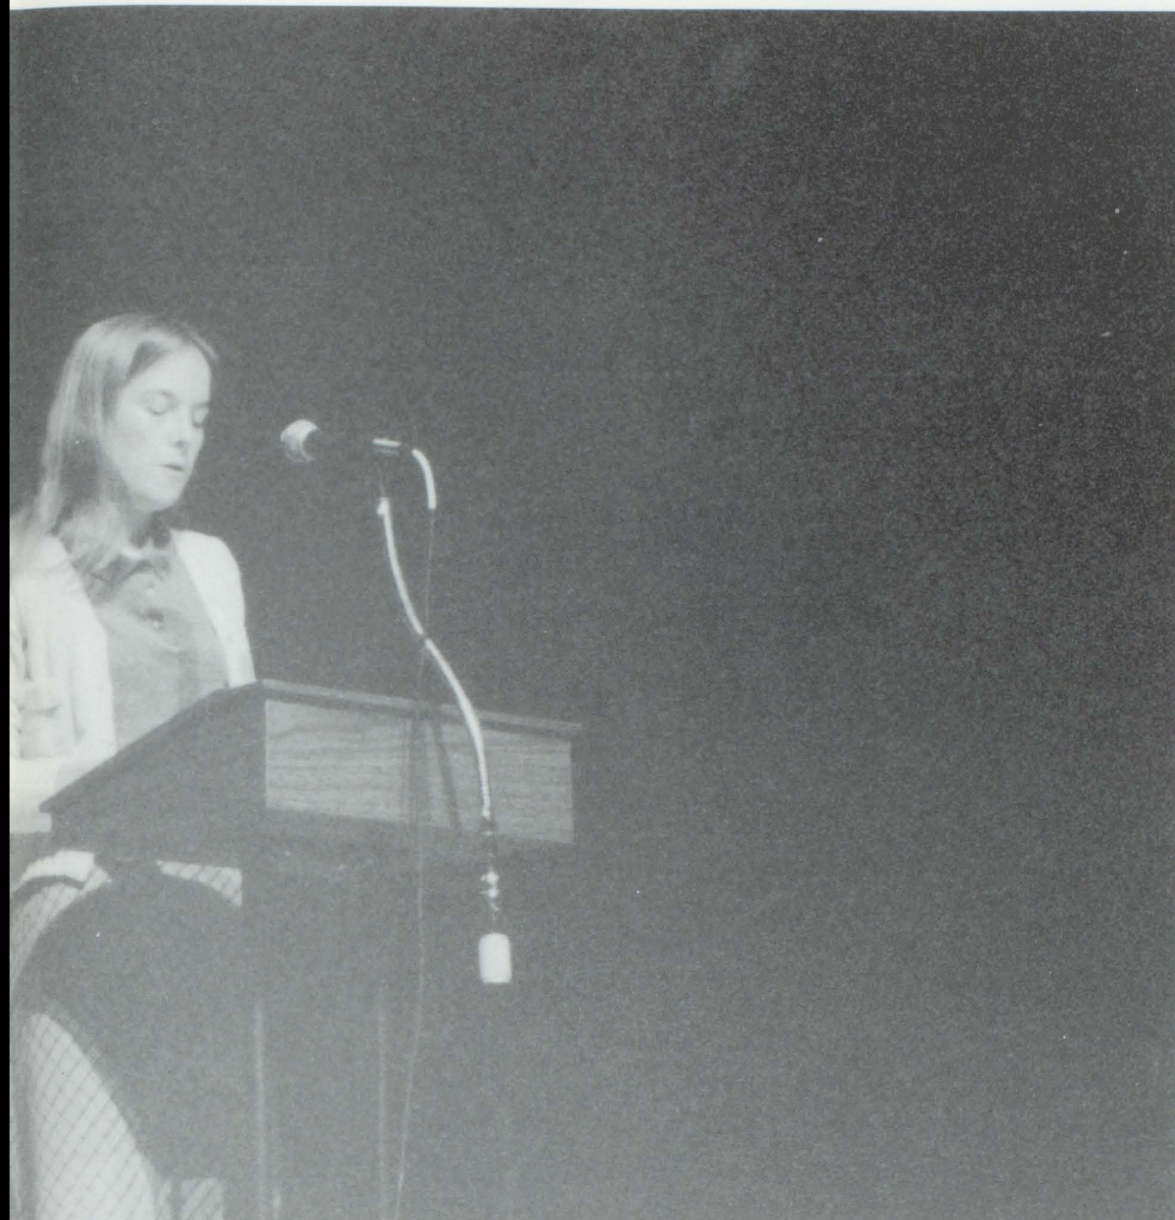

"It was neat to see so many Christian seniors together to inspire each other."

-Senior Chris Kelley

"It was a great time to spend with my close friends; it inspired me to enjoy the rest of my senior year."

-Senior Kristin Kalk

What could be added to make the programs better?

More interaction with the audience.
Elizabeth Thompson

I don't think anything could have been changed to make baccalaureate any better.
Lyndsey Perdue

Guest Bob Wieland spoke at Baccalaureate this year. He had both of his legs amputated after an accident in the Vietnam War.

Pep Sessions

showing Trojan Pride

Pep sessions were a blast from the past this year. It has been almost three years since NCCHS has had a pep session during school. Students were glad to attend the pep sessions, occasionally held during 7th period. "I think that school spirit is important. I also think that activities that get you out of class add spice to life. Also, watching people make fools of themselves not only boosts students' self-confidence, but also increases Trojan pride as a whole," Bob Wood commented.

There were lots of fun-filled events held at each of the pep sessions. There were the baby food relay, football apparel relay, basketball shoot-out, and the blindfolded kissing trick, among others. The blindfolded kissing trick was a trick in which the participants were blindfolded and told that they were going to be kissed by a cheerleader. Then the idea was for them to guess which cheerleader kissed them. What really happened was a little different; the cheerleaders stood aside while a group of teachers kissed the participants. Justin Browning remembered, "Curtis Neal proudly boasting that he was kissed by Ashley York." In reality, Curtis had been kissed by Mrs. Jane Cronk.

On a different note, the band also played at each of the pep sessions. During one of them, the percussion ensemble performed "Ecstasy" by Rusted Root. As most of the other students would agree, the pep sessions were a great activity. "I think that the pep sessions were fun for the athletes, the students, and even the teachers. They were a great idea!" Wes Dicken added. All in all, the pep sessions were good opportunities to promote school spirit and have fun, too!

Out of the Crowd

What did you like about the
pep sessions?

"I liked the pep sessions because they gave me a chance to express my school spirit."

-Junior Mark Brammer

"I liked the pep sessions because they gave people a feeling of being united. It gives everyone a chance to bring their differences together."

-Sophomore Joy Lockhart

"I liked the pep sessions because they were loud and you could act real crazy."

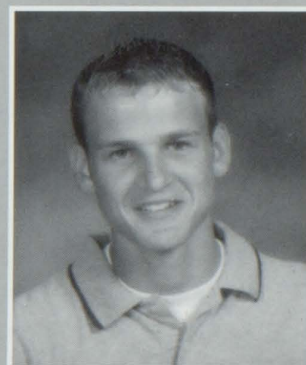

-Junior Amber Flynn

Showing Trojan Pride was something that students and staff did constantly. Trojan pride was also the emphasis at the pep sessions.

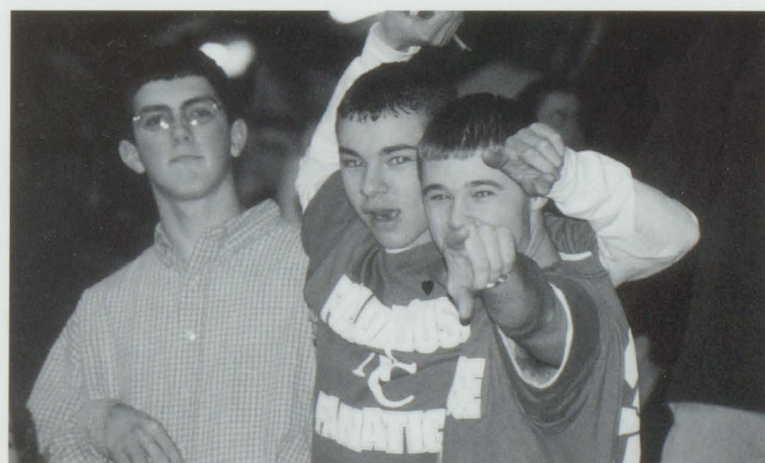

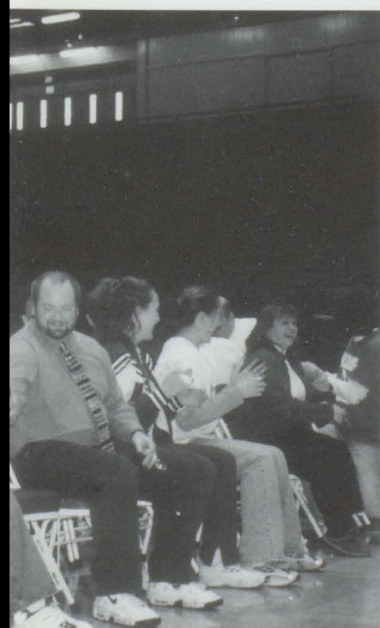

What event would you add to the pep sessions?

"Women's mud wrestling"
Paul Champion

"Pancake flipping and eating contest"
Lisa DaVia

The baby food eating contest was a favorite event at one of the pep sessions. Each of the participants was clearly having a great time.

Josh Medley, John Hankenhoff, and Stephen Davis were loud and proud. The pep sessions acted as cheerblock practice for the games that followed.

Spirit Days

promote the Trojans

This year, students at NCHS didn't have to be told when to wear their green and white; they knew. Student Government was in charge of scheduled spirit days, and because of snow and other complications, there was only one week planned. There was good support from the students for this one week, which took place during fall sports and consisted of many favorites, such as, "hippie day" and "pajama day." However, the best supported spirit days were student-initiated. During basketball season, the student body exploded with Trojan Pride.

Many think cheerblocks died with the era of tail fins and poodle skirts, but not at NCHS. This year, they reappeared at the basketball games with local businesses helping the students buy matching t-shirts. Upon donning the new shirts, the fans were labeled as the Fieldhouse Fanatics, just as the shirts read. These crazy fans wore their shirts to every game and also all day to school on the days of games. Walking down the halls, one could see seas of green. As the season wore on, the student section started arriving earlier and earlier until the section was almost full before the Junior Varsity game even started. With this new interest in front row seats, students started getting concerned with sectional time approaching. Jon Hankenhoff thought, "This year...the fan support helped the team and I hope that we have started a new tradition that will continue for a long time."

On the eve of the first day of sectional ticket sales, many impromptu sleepovers were held throughout the city, and in the morning, many of these sleepy fans rose to hear school had been canceled due to the snowy conditions. But they were not to be deterred. Many still continued with the original plan of showing up at the athletic director's office for tickets as early as 5:30 am. At sectional, the students filled their section and overflowed it. The masses of green out-yelled every group of fans and pushed the Trojans to their first Class A sectional title ever. "The pep block this year was so much fun, but I still think we should have been called the Chrysler Crazies instead of the Fieldhouse Fanatics," stated Curtis Marcum a regular early-arriver. The spirit this year was recognized by Coach Bennett and the team, and was even mentioned in the Courier Times throughout the season. This year's student body has set a precedent for many years to come.

Out of the Crowd

Do you think spirit days
promote spirit?

"I think Spirit Days do help promote spirit, but we should have them three times a year and on the days of big games."

-Junior, Derek Allen

"Being a cheerleader, I really like Spirit Days because they promote school spirit overall. We all dressed up every day to support the teams."

-Junior, Alicia Grear

"When we have good days that are publicized and well-planned, they work well."

Fantasy Island

A tropical paradise

On Saturday evening, April 24, 1999, the guys of NCCHS straightened their bow ties one last time and slipped into their shiny dancing shoes. Hundreds of girls were dressed in their finest gowns and applied the finishing touches of makeup to their faces. Once again, it was time for the New Castle Prom to begin.

This year's junior class did a wonderful job transforming the local armory into a night on Fantasy Island. Couples entered into a tropical foyer where they could pick a flower off the wall inscribed with their names. From there, students descended into the main ballroom containing a vast ship, tiki men, and an actual island on the dance floor. "A group of us spent quite a lot of time on the decorations and we had great help from the rest of the junior class. It looked great!" commented Annie Thornhill. Students danced the night away in the tropical paradise before taking a breather to watch Chad Bouslog and Courtney Edwards crowned King and Queen. Chad reflected on his feelings of becoming the newest royalty. "I felt pretty good...like I was on top of the world. Plus I got to dance with a great queen," he said.

The Prom was especially memorable for seniors because it was their last dance of their high school careers. Ryan Petty echoed this thought when he said, "I had a great time, but it was so sad because it was the last one."

Graduation

A New Beginning

Do you know what the scariest thing is for a senior to do? Besides taking finals, it would be graduation. Twelve years of reading, writing, and arithmetic are over. A lifetime of nine-to-five jobs and college courses will await the 241 Trojan students who graduated on the night of June fifth.

Moving from high school to college is a step that some students are scared to do, but at the same time excited to begin. "I am very excited about graduating and sad all at once. I'm glad to get on with my life and be out of this segment of education, but on the other hand, I will really miss everyone and this town," said Kelly Cory. "At times, I had good experiences at this school. One big thing was learning how to handle stress and many things at the same time. The reason I say 'at times' is because the experiences that I received here will show up later in my life," said Hannah Ferguson.

Night Club came on the night of the graduation, which many of the seniors attended to have some fun and make some final memories with their friends. Activities at Night Club ranged from card games, to putt-putt golf, to an obstacle course. This was the final opportunity for seniors to cut loose and have some fun before heading into their adult responsibilities.

Out of the Crowd

What was your most memorable
a senior?

"My most memorable moment as a senior would have to be the fact that we had a four week Christmas vacation."

--Heather Bach

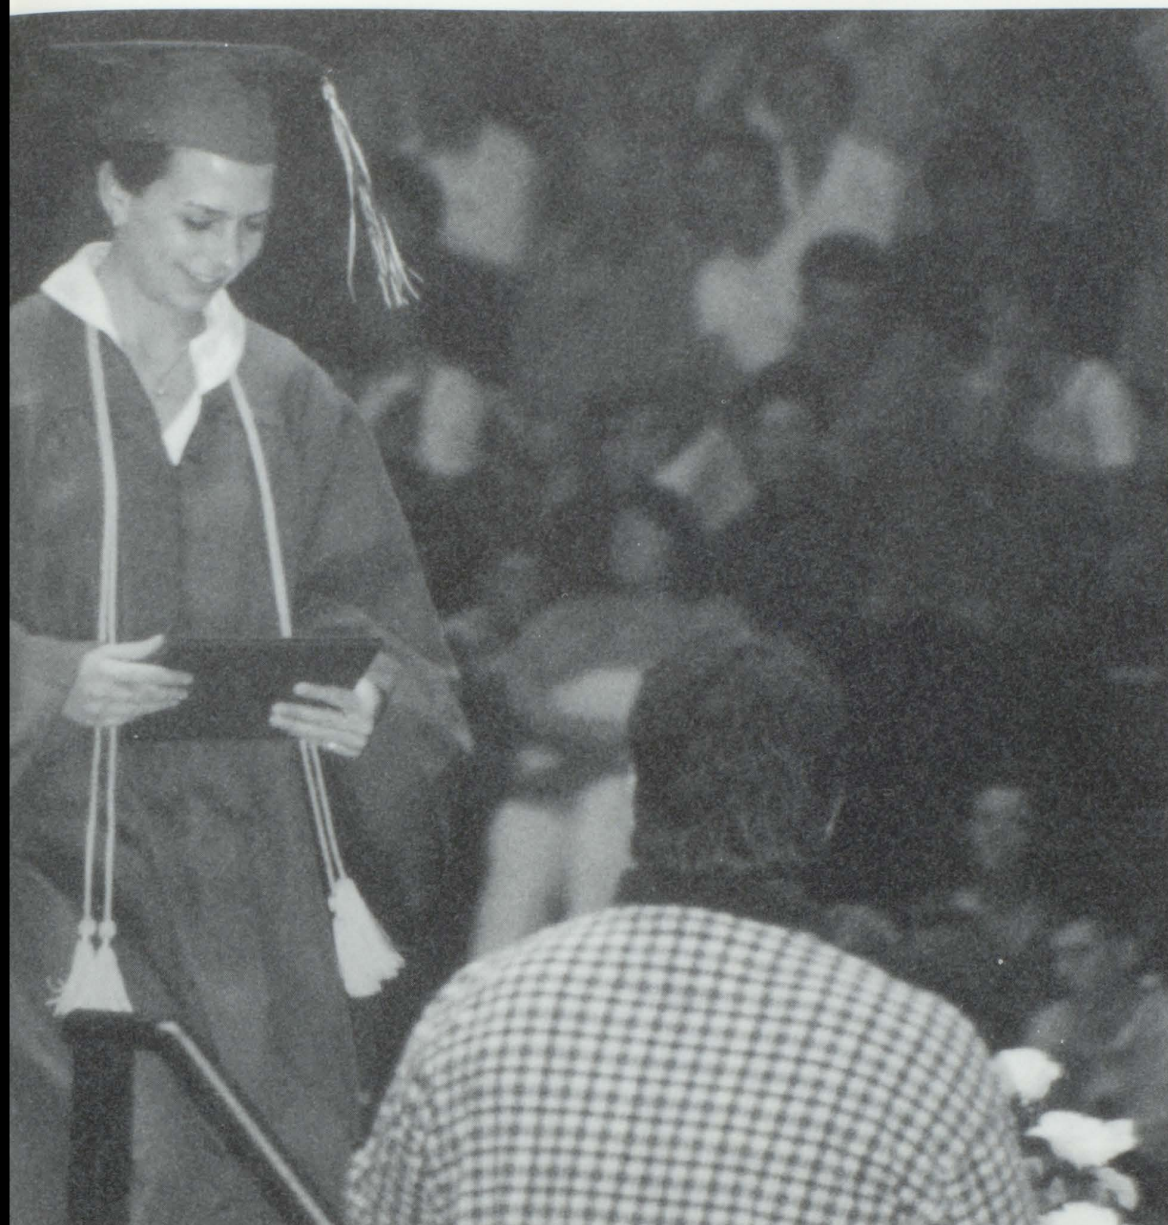

"One of my most memorable moments as a senior was singing 'Veggie Tales' with Casey Ash on the bus to Florida."

-Todd Klotz

-Kim Roberts

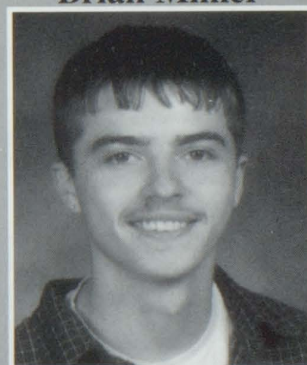

Ali VanDam walked across the stage, and received her diploma.

What are you most looking forward to in your future?

top ten

head of the class

Every year before the seniors file into the fieldhouse for graduation, there is another event that is greatly anticipated. Recognitions night is a time when seniors are presented with scholarships and awards for their hard work throughout the school year. This year, over $90,000 was given in scholarships to the class of 1999. The highlight of the evening was the announcement of the top ten. Not only were the seniors recognized, but their parents were also applauded for support of their children's endeavors. This year, there was tough competition for the top ten places as only 0.6 of a point separated the first and tenth positions. Salutatorian Laura Cole commented, "It took a lot of hard work. I had to have help from others. You have to get help from your family, your teachers, and your friends."

The class of 1999, was led by ten extremely determined and successful individuals. Stephanie Kinser was the valedictorian for the class of 1999. When asked what kept her motivated, she said, "I never really got stressed about schoolwork. My friends kept me in line and always having fun." To graduate as one of the top ten students in a class of 241, these students have accomplished a demanding task. They often had to put aside relaxation and parties on the weekends to put in extra effort to earn the grade. It has not been easy for any of them, but the hard work has paid off.

Out of the Crowd

What does it take

-Senior Angie DeHart

"[It takes] hard work, determination, and discipline to make all A's. [You have to] study hard, too."

-Senior Corey Trobaugh

Senior Stephanie Kinser with parents was announced valedictorian at recognitions night. Stephanie had a 11.811 GPA to end her high school career.

Senior Lisa DaVia was awarded the Derek Clark Mental Attitude Award. Lisa graduated 3rd in the class of 241 students.

Senior Eric Hafner prepares to lead the audience in the pledge to the flag. Eric was the vice-president of the senior class.

What was your favorite part of the recognitions night?

The band had yet another very successful season this year. The TMB traveled to the RCA Dome for the sixth straight year. They finished seventh in their division with their field show "Enigma Variations." The concert band entertained their listeners and the basketball band put the "pep" back in "pep band" as they performed at the boys' basketball games along with the guard. The guard competed in the winter guard contest season with a show titled "New Beginning." Under the watchful eyes of Mr. Shauver, Mrs. Smith, Mr. Middleton, Miss Morris, Mrs. Jolley and Mr. Wolfe, the NCCHS bands made the past year a very successful one.

Many people are unaware of how much the bands practice. The Trojan Marching Band practiced throughout the summer and into the school year. The concert band and basket-during the summer. The conditions were harsh, but the band persevered. "If I could change anything about band," commented sophomore Beth Hardwick, "it would be the practice field. That thing's dangerous!"

The band played some very interesting tunes this past year. They did songs from Kiss, the Star Wars trilogy, and the Village People. These songs required some basic instruments and some not so basic ones. If the band members had a choice to be any one of these instruments, which one would it be? "The African Djembe because the sound is so pleasing and it can make your great grandmother dance!" stated Justin Browning.

The band is an intricate part of New Castle Chrysler High School and they make their presence known. They entertain and amaze their fans and have fun at the same time. "What I would change about band," said Matt Brunoehler, "is the lack of respect it receives from our peers."

What's your favorite part of the competitions?

The suspense when they announce the awards.

For some reason, nothing unites people like competition, and I like to feel a part of a group that, together, really feels the music it is playing.

A lot of people are watching us!

The bus ride up!

How do you feel about the road trips?

Depends who you sit by on the bus.

They're both fun and not so fun.

I don't like the buses, [but otherwise] its fun!

They're the best part! Everyone acts crazy and has a good time.

What's it like to perform in the RCA Dome?

It all happens so quickly that I don't remember.

Though you can't hear anything very clearly, it's a neat experience.

It was fun!

The neat part is probably hearing the fans yell. It sounds cool!

Band is fun, and you can make a lot of friends.

*Publications
classes deliver...*

"This year has been difficult because of the size of our work space and adjusting to the less experienced staff, although we have gotten along very well and produced an awesome publication."

-Senior Yearbook Editor, Lyndsey Perdue

The News

After the last locker slams, the janitors get out their brooms, and everyone else has gone home for the day, soft clicks on a keyboard can be heard from the bottom floor of the new "M" wing. It is probably one of the members of one of the journalism classes here at NCCHS. The two classes are Phoenix and Rosennial.

The staffs of this year's publications have gone through quite a few changes. Due to the construction project their class has been temporarily moved to a much smaller room. The room, is approximately 25 by 13 feet or as Mrs. Lannoy puts it, "small by smaller." Everyone has an opinion on this new habitat. Jennifer Jackson, a Rosennial member found some good in the room when she mentioned, "It's too cramped, but we all feel homey and like a real family."

Another change the staff is going through is an addition to the already "high tech" equipment. Due to lack of honest individuals using the cameras last year a few turned up missing, so six "point and click" cameras were quickly purchased. The staff has had to go from zoom lenses and f-stops to open the lens and push the button.

Kevin Barnett showed enthusiasm when he said, "I was a bit concerned when the new cameras were purchased, but after Mrs. Lannoy's mini-lesson on 'clicking the button' I felt much more comfortable using the point and click process."

The last major change affecting both staffs was the return of their leader, Mrs. Lannoy. Last year she took maternity leave after spring break. Even with her new child at home she missed all of her kids here at school and is "thoroughly enjoying my half day schedule and feel privileged to work with an administration that gives me that option."

With all the changes the staffs still have jobs to do. On the Rosennial members all have several spreads which consist of two pages on one or two topics. The member is then in charge of pictures, stories, quotes, and all other information on that page including laying it out.

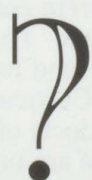

On the Phoenix staff members are all assigned stories and are in charge of getting quotes and getting them written by deadline. Though the different staffs have different goals and ways of doing things the major goal is the same: get accurate, applicable information to the students of NCCHS in a creative and interesting way.

(Far Left) Mrs. Lannoy gives a "mini lesson" as the Rossenial staff looks on. Once a week a lesson was given on different topics such as lay-outs, story writing, and alternative words for "said."

How do you feel your staff got along this year?

"I think we all got along well and had a lot of fun."

"Everyone but Jen and I got along well."

"I think we got along very well, and we accomplished what we needed to."

"The staff got along great, beside the fact that there were a few cover picture mis-haps."

Was Publications more of a class or club to you?

"Definitely just a class because I got most of my work done in class and we get grades."

"Club because it's fun, we have a good time, and we don't have a naggin' teacher."

"...more of a class because of the stories and lay-outs."

"...more of a club. Some stories required the reporter to attend the function that was being featured."

What was your favorite "mini lesson" by Mrs. Lannoy?

"The 'alternative words' lesson when we played Taboo with Mr. Geozeff."

"The 'Don't put all your friends in your spread' lesson."

"...anything about the computers because I didn't know anything about them."

"The 'word choice' lesson, because we played Taboo and Kristen, Erica and I were awesome!"

"Being on the Phoenix staff has been very fun. This year's staff has really worked hard to meet deadlines and have fun at the same time."
Senior Phoenix Editor, Stephanie Kinser

"This year's staff was awesome! We had our fair share of ups and downs, but everything worked out in the end."

-Mrs. Daniels, Sponsor

Leaders

Students that participated in the 1998-99 NCCHS Student Government experienced several changes. The biggest change was the incoming of a new sponsor, Mrs. Daniels. The other major change for this year's student government members was enormous monthly meetings. NCCHS encouraged anyone who wanted to be part of the Student Government to attend the initial meeting. The first meeting started off with close to 200 students in attendance. A new addition to the meeting was the group participation in "ice breakers" led by the officers in charge. The student response was so vast that every committee had close to 25 people in each. This turned out to be very beneficial to the student body.

The officers started preparing for a positive year of governing by attending the annual Student Leadership Institute Camp. This was the first time all four officers attended SLI camp as a quartet. President, Lyndsey Perdue, remarked, "SLI was very beneficial in that the four officers were told our responsibilities, and we came back with lots of great ideas from other schools."

These ideas were set into action during the first few weeks of school. The student government hosted its first Extra Curricular Fair. The fair allowed all clubs and sports teams to set up booths to try and recruit people for the upcoming year. Other fresh ideas were contributed by the officers. Pep rallies, the "Crush" fund raiser, and the Extra Curricular Fair were all products of the SLI camp. These are only a few of the projects student government worked on during the 1998-99 school year.

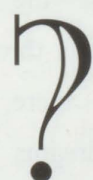

Student government continued old traditions as well as new ideas. The Fall Dance committee was in charge of the fall formal dance held at Westwood Country Club. The theme for this year's dance was "Romance in Paris." Student government has also been in charge of the annual blood draw, all student government fund raisers, and class t-shirt sales.

I like the icebreakers! They crack me up.

The milk song and the fact that Brooke, Jennifer, and Lyndsey were the officers.

What would you suggest for next year to make S.G. better?

I think it's pretty good the way it is. Don't change a thing.

Limit the number of people ...Requirements should be more strict.

"Joseph" is based on the story of Joseph from the book of Genesis. Joseph, the favorite son of Jacob and Rachel, is sold into slavery by his jealous brothers. While working for the captain Potiphar, he is thrown into jail. While there, Joseph interprets dreams of the servants of Pharaoh. He later interprets the Pharaoh's dreams and becomes his new best friend. Through several twists of fate, Joseph's brothers end up at his mercy for their survival. In the end, Jacob is reunited with his father and forgives his brothers for their cruel deeds.

"I look handsome, I look smart. I am a walking work of art," Joseph sings of his new clothing. This coat raised the level of jealousy towards Joseph.

The patients of the Cloisters tell Mrs. Savage why they do not read newspapers the day they are written. They believed news was better a month later.

Jacob and his twelve sons are reunited in Egypt. The technicolored dreamcoat is then returned to Joseph.

National Honor Society is not just another "feel good" club. Members work hard to not only receive that glorious letter which invites them to join National Honor Society but also work hard to improve the community in every way they can. A few of the activities they are involved in are the Toy Drive, Mitten Tree, and Skating Party. The toys for the Toy Drive went to the West Minister Center, Salvation Army, and the New Castle Police Department.

Definitely when we lit the candles. It really shows our unity as a group.

Lighting the candles was pretty cool.

What was fun about the skating party?

I guess it was fun cause we got free cokes!

Students at NCCHS are in an environment where academic excellence comes first. Some of the foremost examples of that are the NCCHS Academic Teams. There are teams in each of these areas of study: English, fine arts, mathematics, social studies, and science. There is also an interdisciplinary team that consists of team members from each of the above areas.

Being on an academic team has many perks. "I think that being on an academic team is just sort of

Over Spring Break, students on the fine arts team took the experience to a new level. They visited spots they had been talking about, like Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home. They also went to New York. Megan Broyles summed it up by saying, "Being on an academic team helps you gain knowledge without realizing it."

There is a lot of teamwork on the speech team. Everyone helps each other on their speeches. Some people don't really consider speech hard work, but it is. "Writing and giving a speech is a very hard task," noted Eric Hafner.

There were many great organizations to be involved in at NCCHS. One of those was Spanish Honor Society. Spanish Honor Society didn't have too many regulations for admittance. One had to like Spanish, keep a grade of at least a B+ in Spanish class, and have a positive attitude. That wasn't too much to ask for all of the members that were involved.

According to Sra. Sorrell, SHS sponsor, there were two main objectives in Spanish Honor Society. "We try to promote Spanish and give members the chance to use Spanish outside of class," she remarked.

Spanish songs while others let the kids sample traditional Spanish foods. Laurie Metroka was one of the teachers that went to Greenstreet. "I taught with Matt Brunoehler and he played the guitar and we sang 'Ten Little Indians' (we taught first graders). The next day their whole class sent us pictures they had drawn of Matt playing the guitar and me singing. They were so cute!" This reinforced the fact that SHS members had a grande (big) effect on the elementary students they were teaching.

Members of SHS also knew how to have a tiempo bueno (good time). There was a SHS fiesta where things got a little loco (crazy). "I enjoyed going to Stephanie Kinser's house to play basketball and pool, [and] also eating Sra. Sorrell's little dogs," Derek Allen commented.

Fun Art

Art club is one of the many clubs that students can join at NCCHS. Anyone can be in art club. All students have to do is sign up and pay dues of three dollars. Art club meets once a month in the sponsor, Mrs. Conway's room. The art club officers are Sarah Dukeman: president, David Nantz: vice president, Eve Grant: secretary, and Megan Broyles: treasurer.

Art club is one of the clubs at NCCHS that is more 'hands on.' There are more people this year in art club than ever, and they do a variety of activities. "I enjoyed making santa ornaments," noted Eve Grant. Art club has done activities such as making pins from fimo clay, using raku pottery and having parties. "I had a blast at the Halloween party," said Annie Thornhill. Art club tries to do different activities each time they meet.

Another interesting fact about art club is that they make all the hoops for the People help plan parties, field trips, and meetings.

Some people in art club are planning to go into a field of art, but some art club members are in the club just because they enjoy art and having fun. "I want to be an elementary art teacher," said Megan Broyles.

Do you ever lend a helping hand to those who are in need? That is exactly what the students in the Big Brothers and Big Sisters Club are doing for children. Members do all sorts of different things with the children, such as going to professional basketball and hockey games, or just going to play around, eat, or just talk to the children.

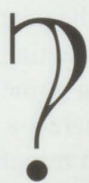

"The purpose of Big Brothers and Big Sisters Club is working to try to help kids. Most of the children we deal with just need a friend, so we listen, talk to them, play games with them, and try to be a person that they can trust," said senior Kirsten Lang. The Big Brothers and Big Sisters Club has a monthly event in which the students go to be with the children, to be a good influence on them, and to have fun at the same time.

Students for Christ is a group of students who get together and talk about Christ and go out in the community and help others. Susan Ankeny stated, "I wanted to be in a group that I felt comfortable with, and being able to go out in the community and helping others is something I really feel comfortable with." This group met biweekly after school.

This year, SFC participated in a rake-and-run in which some of the members raked leaves for the elderly of the community. Sherry Hinsey said, "It was awesome to see how happy they were when we said we were there to help them for free."

cream. Then we just hang around and fellowship," said Mrs. Lannoy.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes is a group open to any high school athlete who wishes to join, and the sponsor was Bev Cronk. The group elected both a male and a female for each officers' position to lead the group throughout the year.

Group meetings usually began with a game and then members shared a devotion to help them remember God on and off the playing field. Then they shared various experiences where they felt God was with them in their athletic endeavors.

Also during this year, members attended the state FCA banquet in Indianapolis, and raised money for the John Stewart foundation, a charity for handicapped and needy children.

Laura Bouslog was always happy to spend some time in the library. The NCCHS library closed its doors and moved to its new location just before spring break of 1999.

Lindsay Auten chomped at the bit to show off her geometric skill. This true geometer showed her class how to do a flow proof.

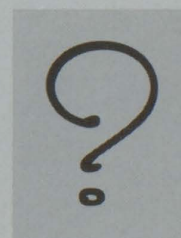

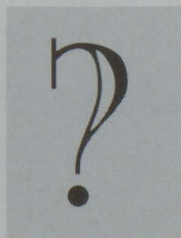

Brady Tramel spent some time with his young friend in psychology. Children were invited to spend a day with the psychology classes during the infancy and child development unit.

Who's got the answer?

The students and staff at NCCHS are ones unlike others. Whether it was extra time before and after school, or just that extra effort in the classroom, students at NCCHS were always willing to meet the standards set by themselves, their teachers and students that came before them. The staff at NCCHS was there to help the students prepare themselves for life after high school. Whether it was vocational training or college preparation, the staff was ready to help each student prepare for his or her future.

Q: What was your favorite high school memory?

A: "It was all good!"
-- Mrs. Broyles

"It was in science class. The teacher was going to give everyone an A if the students could get water out of a gallon jug before he could. We came really close to beating him and I remember him being really worried that he was going to have to give us all an A."

-- Mrs. Cole

"[It was] going to state finals in 1971." -- Cheryl Betten

NCCHS Support Staff

To say that the staff at NCCHS had to make a few changes over the summer is a definite understatement. The so called "big move" into the new M-wing caused a little bit of stress for people in the office as well as teachers. There were a few minor inconveniences over the course of the year. "The dust and the noise [were bad]," Mrs. Semler pointed out. "[The construction] put us behind when the school year started because of moving at the time we had to do schedules," added Mrs. Lankford. The NCCHS staff, a.k.a. moving crew, had to move a lot of the necessities of learning into their new offices and rooms. This required lots of hard work and time after regular school hours to do so. Hard work isn't new for the staff at NCCHS, however. In years past, prior to the construction project there have always been obstacles that have had to be overcome. No matter what it is, the teachers and staff do whatever it takes for the students to get the education they deserve. "I have found that the staff here are very dedicated, hard working and very caring about the students." Mr. Gray related.

"Let me entertain you!" Ryan Petty and Nick White showed off their skating skills at the senior skating party.

One of the most enjoyable annual events is the senior skating party. Many seniors probably had not put on big brown skates since their elementary school days, but even skating in circles can be fun when it happens with 200 of your closest friends. Senior class president Ali Van Dam commented, "I had more fun at the skating party than I'd had in a long time! It was a rare chance to get to spend time with all the other seniors, and it made me realize what a great class I got to be a part of all these years."

The cheerleaders, coaches, and members of the winning team celebrate their victory. The Black Plague defeated The White Rath.

The annual powder puff football game was a big hit with the NCCHS' class of 1999. On a mild fall night in November, the battle between the Black Plague and the White Wrath was fought at Huffman Field. Coaches, cheerleaders, players, and referees all made the game a success. White Rath coach, Chad Shaffer said, "From the Powder Puff football game, I'll always remember the totally awesome tackle by Katie Carman. I coached her, obviously!" The class of 1999 will remember the game for many years to come.

Senior Vespers is one of the more solemn events of the year. This year's non-denominational service featured guest speaker Dee Hartman, and a variety songs, poems and prayers given by seniors. Contributing seniors were Jennifer Jackson, Lisa Davia, Stephanie Kinser, Brett Rash, Chris Kelley, Todd Klotz, Lyndsey Perdue and the senior class officers. Rachel Ford said, "It was a great inspirational time ... it helped me realize that there are a lot of students just like me."

Everyone enjoys a good snowfall, especially around Christmas. But this year's Christmas break was extended almost two full weeks! Snow, snow, and more snow fell on New Castle causing hazardous road conditions and canceled school days. Since seniors were not attending school, many engaged in a variety of snow activities to pass the time. Rachel McCormick said, "Snow days are wonderful experiences for me. They are chances for me to catch up on all of my soap operas, which I know is sort of pathetic, but they bring me great joy." Well, TV snow was not exactly what we were thinking of.

Painting the Future

There is much more to being an artist than meets the eye.

Art students, and teachers alike, sometimes come off as being a little on the wacky side. Art students can range from the dyed-spiked-haired-dressed-in-black-dude in the hall to the conventional-A+-athletic-preppy that sits in the back of the class and never speaks. This wide variety of personalities is the very thing that attracts students to art in the first place. "I like art because you can express yourself through your work," commented James Armacost.

The art department at NCCHS offers several course options for students. Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Slabaugh both are accomplished artists; their own creativity is reflected in their teaching. Junior, Josh Stephens said, "I like art because I can try to hypnotize and mesmerize people, so their eyeballs will dance around and groove uncontrollably when they look at my swirls of color and blotches of ink." Students pursue art for many different reasons. Junior, Megan Broyles told us, "I use art as a way to relax during the hectic school day." Whether students are planning a to start a career in art, getting that credit for the honor diploma, or relaxing during the school day, students agree that art is an excellent class to take.

Senior, Shane Crabtree, demonstrates his art talent in Mrs. Slabaugh's 7th hour class. He worked diligently on the project at hand.

Real Life Skills

Among the classes offered at NCCHS, computer classes are very popular. Many students in NCCHS have taken business classes. "I decided to take business classes because I knew that computers were the future," said senior Derek Orr. NCCHS has installed many different types of software on the computers. Some of them include Microsoft Word, Microsoft Works, and Netscape Navigator, which is the Internet. The Internet is probably the most popular software among students.

The NCCHS curriculum has several different business classes to choose from. Abby Watts said, "I took computer applications to learn more about our computers." Mrs. Kelsik said, "Keyboarding and computer app. are good business classes." Every class in the business department is designed to help students with their future. Even people who work at McDonald's have to know how to work on computers because the registers are actually computers.

In most of the business classes teachers have special units and activities planned for the students. In keyboarding at the end of the year students have two projects where they work in an office and they have to determine what to do and how to do it. Basically students work as secretaries and are on their own.

Computer applications helps to prepare students for when they move out of their parents' home. This class teaches basic life skills such as how to pay bills, how to balance a checkbook, and how to use credit cards wisely. Students in this class also work on how to use the Internet.

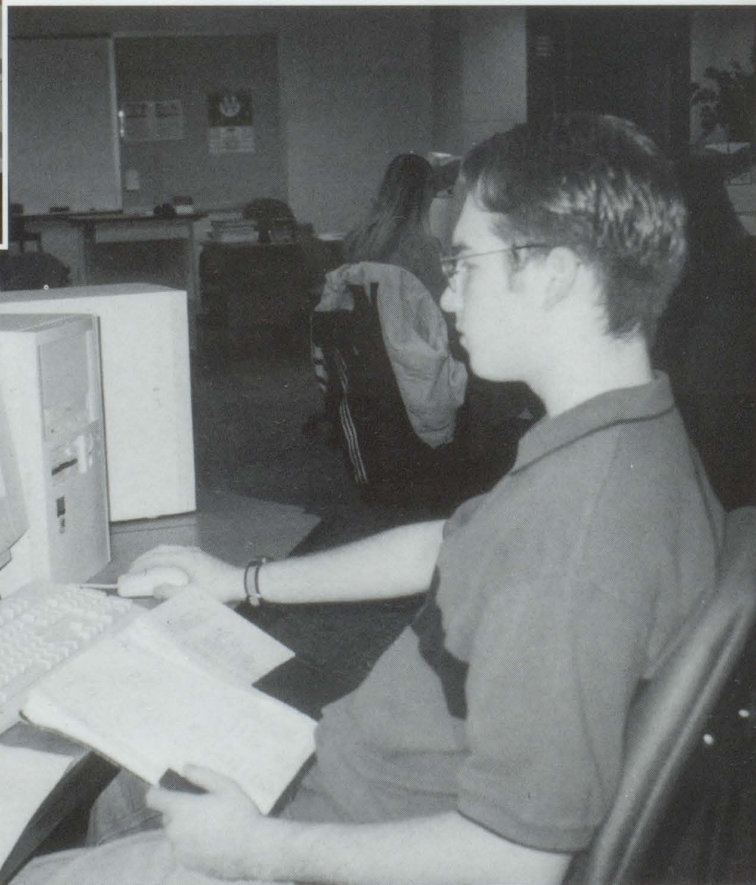

Senior Derek Orr explores some of the new software in Mrs. Strickland's Media class.

of hot words, the English teachers at NCCHS teach their students information that can be used in everyday life.

Think about it. English is the only class that NCCHS students must take for their entire high school career. Therefore, it must be important. "English is a subject that encompasses all other subjects," commented Mr. Dicken.

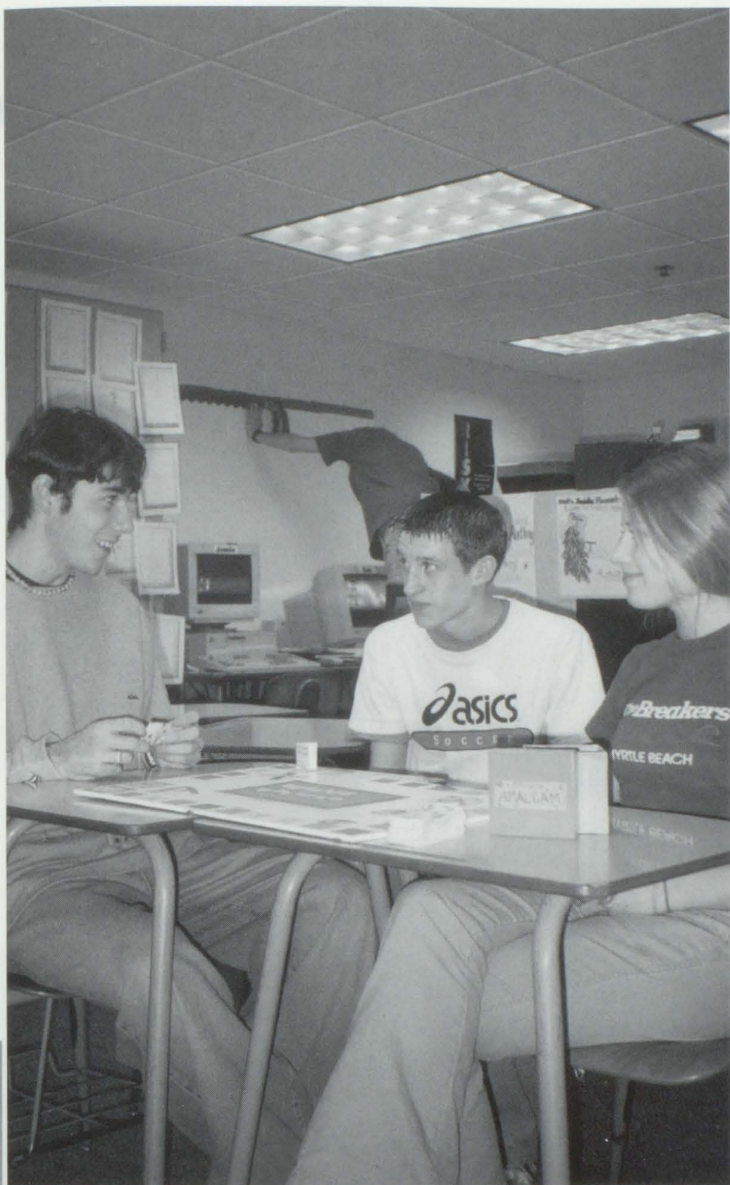

English is used in every aspect of everyday life. From talking to your friends to writing an assignment, English is used. "English," said sophomore Laura Bennett, "is the basis of everything important."

English goes beyond just reading and writing though. Many classes do creative projects that are an extension of their learning. One such project took place in the honors' English class taught by Mr. Willis and Mrs. Winchester. Students in this class made games that demonstrated their knowledge of Huck Finn.

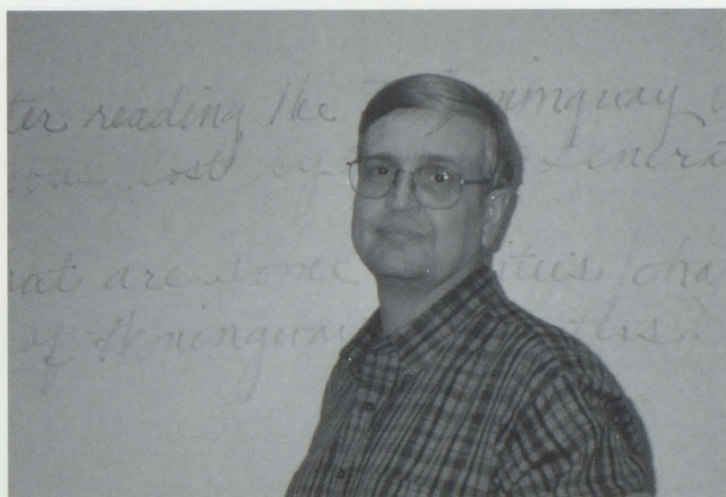

Junior Aaron Malone showed a disgruntled attitude toward a fellow classmate, Junior Ben Mann while playing a little game of "The Huck & Henry Experience" with Matt Brunoehler and Leslie Dye

Juniors Curtis Marcum, Daniel Kinnaird, and Jessica Kendrick played a game they made in English. This was a project for the focus class for first semester.

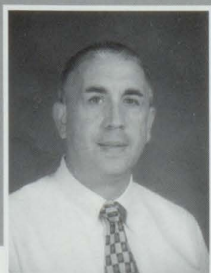

Mr. Dicken continued to teach in spite of the fact that he broke his arm. This proved that the words "Dicken" and "dedication" were virtually synonymous.

Just the FACS

There is a lot more to family and consumer science than just foods classes. There is a vast variety of courses to take, anything from child development to parenting to interior design. Mrs. Hamilton, a new addition to the FACS staff commented, "I have an interest in and enjoy the topics that are taught. I like interacting and working with high school students." Mrs. Hamilton joined the NCCHS staff when Mrs. Jeri Gooding retired at the end of the first semester after 28 years of teaching.

To get her class more involved, Mrs. Robbins's class did a special unit on STD's. She assigned a disease per group and had them develop it into skits, songs, or a talk show to illustrate their disease. Mrs.

Hamilton also does things to get the students more involved like wearing the empathy belly, observing children interacting, and taking field trips to local day care centers for observation.

FACS classes teach skills for the future. Mrs. Hamilton stated, "Hopefully, it will provide students with some knowledge required in caring for children." Mrs. Robbins added, "I teach life experiences. We all must secure jobs, housing, cars, insurance needs, eat, and relate to people."

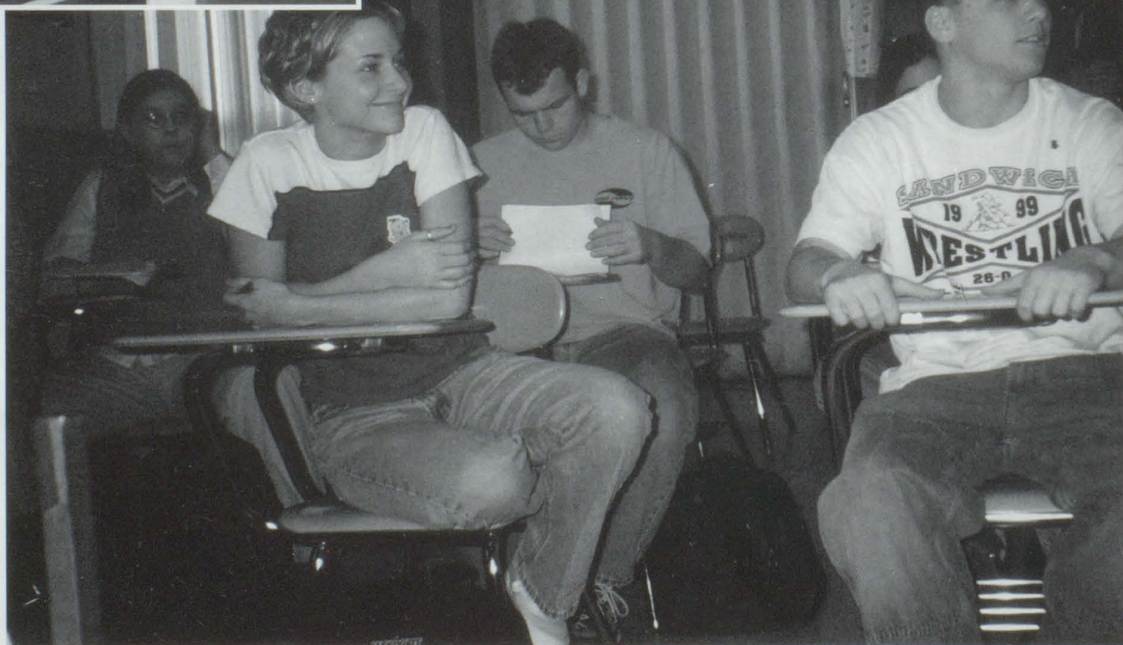

Junior Casey Gerkin checked out what was cooking. Making muffins is just one of the fun labs students do in class.

Exploring Languages

Most students at N C C H S explore a language other than English. Some students even opt to take two languages. The three languages that one can explore at NCCHS are French, Spanish, and German. Most students take three years of a language. Many students hope to visit a foreign country to use the skills they have learned.

Among students the most popular language is Spanish, but students have many different reasons for taking a language. Junior Sarah Dukeman is in third year French. "I took French, because I want to be able to communicate with my cousin that lives in France," noted Dukeman. Junior Chris DeHart, a third year Spanish student, "I am taking Spanish because I heard it was the easiest." Lauren Kendall, also in third year Spanish, added, "I took Spanish because I have always had a desire to speak Spanish."

Students that take Spanish can be in Spanish Honor Society. To be able to be in SHS they must have a 9.0 grade point average, and attend a monthly meeting. Students in Spanish Honor Society do a variety of activities, such as teach at the elementary schools, have parties, and participate in fundraisers.

Caroline Strong and Ashley York read aloud to each other in Spanish.

Today's industry

Do you remember the story of "The Three Little Pigs?"

You may recall that the house made of bricks was the only one standing, but there's part of the story you may not have heard before. When the wolf came to the house of bricks, the pig inside said, "All of the industrial technology classes that I have taken helped me build a house too strong for you, a house that can withstand all of the miserable tactics that you could ever use." And Alas, the sad and winded wolf gave up.

The industrial technology department offers a variety of different classes that will help students learn skills for simple household maintenance or to train for a life long career. "I am in a mechanical engineering class, because if nothing else I will be one of those overworked underpaid Jiffy-lube guys, or I will replace Mr. Akers when he gets old and decrepit," said Junior Joel Gallenberg.

After being asked what his favorite industrial machine was sophomore Thomas Bell said, "Today I have a tendency to turn toward the power miter saw, for the very reason, you can get quick cuts, with more accuracy." Junior Justin Browning was asked, if he could build anything what would it be and why? "I would like to make a seventeen floor hotel for downtown Las Vegas, because the possibilities would be endless," he said.

Richie Myer and Erik Hasty work on putting the engine together. They try to get the engine to run with a soft humming purr.

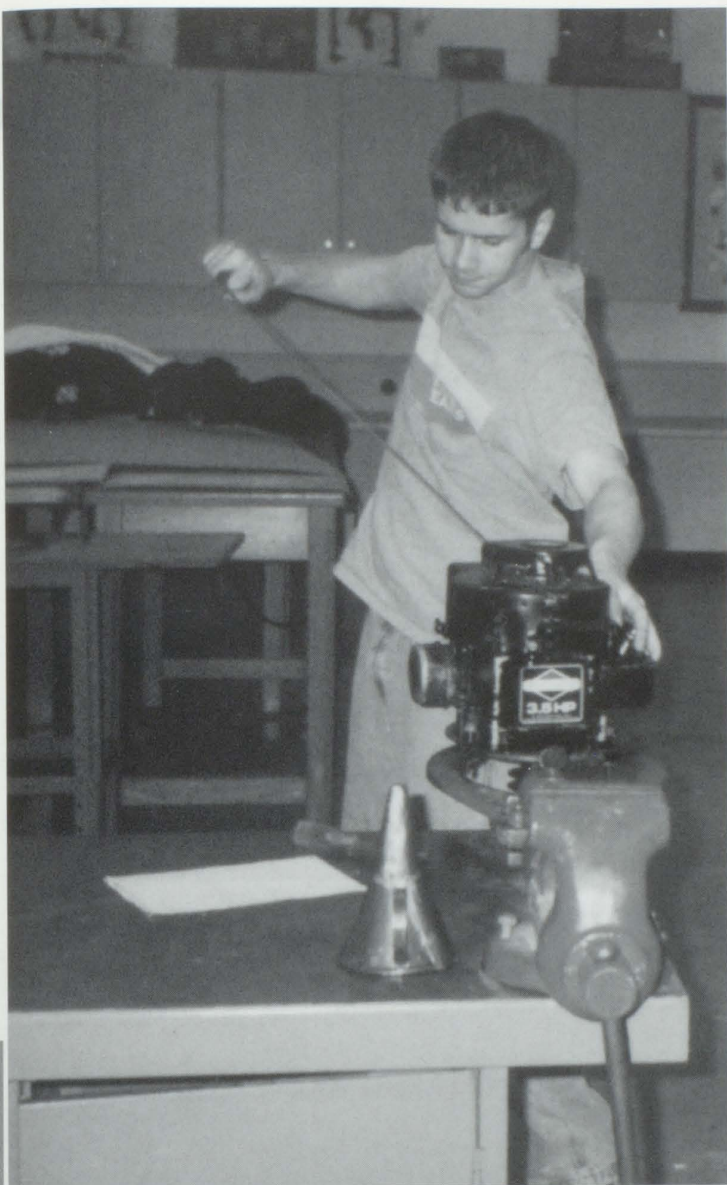

Just the Facts

Most exciting part of the renovation for this department: All of the new rooms in the T wing.

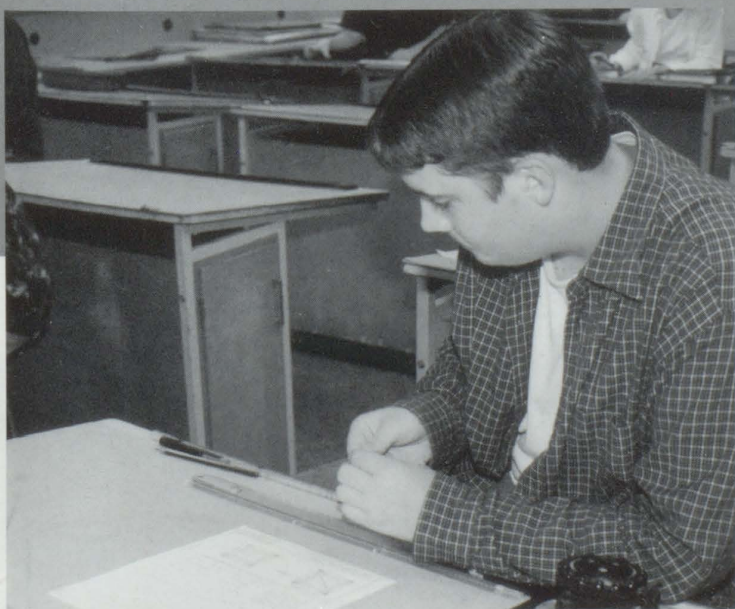

In advanced Drafting, students have to draw perfectly. Junior Justin Browning drew for perfection as he worked on his drawings.

After putting in the spark plug Clint Weaver tries to start the engine. This was an old engine that he remodeled.

Woods class can't make a product without a drawing of it. Junior Aaron New draws a picture of the product before he endeavors to build it.

Scott Lee tries to remember what he is supposed to do to finish his drawing. The instructions were demonstrated the day before by Mr. Burdsall.

Summing It Up

The math department went through a few changes this year. A few new faces showed up and an old one returned. Mrs. Newland moved to the high school from Parkview to teach Algebra II and Algebra II C, and Mrs. Crider took a full time position to help Mr. Langford make his return to school easier. Mr. Langford did retire this year, and he is greatly missed by his former students.

At NCCHS several different math programs are offered. When asked how often she studied for Geometry tests, junior Lauren Kendall replied "I study for just about every test, but that doesn't mean I do as well as I hope." Another junior Aaron Ray stated, "I don't do much studying for Geometry; it just comes to me." Sophomore, Clint Hacker had a definite opinion on the usefulness of some of the math taught when he stated, "I think some of the stuff they teach us we won't ever use in life. They should teach us some stuff we would really use." Paul Ward expressed frustration when he said "I think the math teachers expect too much from us." These thoughts are common to many students. However, in almost any field one goes into math is used. In the classes offered at NCCHS math skills are put to practical use in story problems and special projects.

An extra credit opportunity given to all high school math students is Math League, a test given to students all over the state to test some "all around" math skills. Math League tests are given once a six weeks after school in the cafeterias and last about 15 minutes.

Variety Education

Two often overlooked classes at NCCHS are Driver's Education and Physical Education. Driver's ed. and P.E. are both one semester classes. P.E. is required to be taken before graduating. Driver's ed. is optional, and it can be taken in the summer as well as the school year.

"I truly believe without a healthy body, a person's mind is nothing," stated Mrs. Cronk. In P.E., students work on stretching and strength daily. In the long run, these are two vital things that will help in everyday life.

Driver's ed. teaches skills needed through one's entire life. Without responsible driving, the roads of New Castle would be unsafe. Mr. Brown said, "It deals with life and death. If you learn how to drive the right way, you have increased your chance of staying alive."

Due to construction, the NCCHS special education department adjusted to temporary classrooms this year. Mrs. Hobbs' classes were located in the science wing, and Mrs. Groce and Mrs. Autry's classes were located in the community room at Parkview Junior High. Mrs. Hobbs said, "We have felt very welcome here. The science department has been extremely nice."

Some students worked in various places to get hands on working experience. Jackie Metroka worked at McDonald's half days as well as being a student and member of the swim team. Becky Chesnut also gained real life skills by helping Mrs. Fredericks in the treasury office and working mornings at Marsh Supermarket.

When the construction project is complete, the department will have a Daily Learning Lab in Mrs. Hobbs' room. This will enable the students to gain everyday skills while they are at school. Mrs. Hobbs commented, "We're looking forward to our new facility, new location, and new assignments."

Weird Science

Wether it's being the best frog dissector, the know how to mess with 20,000 volts of pure can't-be-stopped-and-can-only-hoped-to-be-contained electricity, or being a karate physicist that breaks boards with the use of theories and laws, science at NCCHS is cutting edge. "I like it when Mr. Norrick breaks boards with his karate chop!" said Tiffani Jones.

The science whizzes, a.k.a. teachers, at NCCHS are more than happy to demonstrate some of these extraordinary techniques that will expand the growing minds of future scientists, chemists, and physicists. From learning about the beginning of time to writing an extremely long lab report, NCCHS students study many wonderful things. The local chemist Mr. Thompson was asked what his favorite thing about teaching was; he said, "I like it all!"

Students are finding that the more successful one wants to be, the more schooling it takes. Thus, students have to put more effort and planning into their class schedules. Physics appealed to Tiffani Jones, because "It's an all-around wonderful education and preparational experience that should most likely insure my success in future 'physical' fields."

Most exciting part of the renovation for this department: "It was all great!"

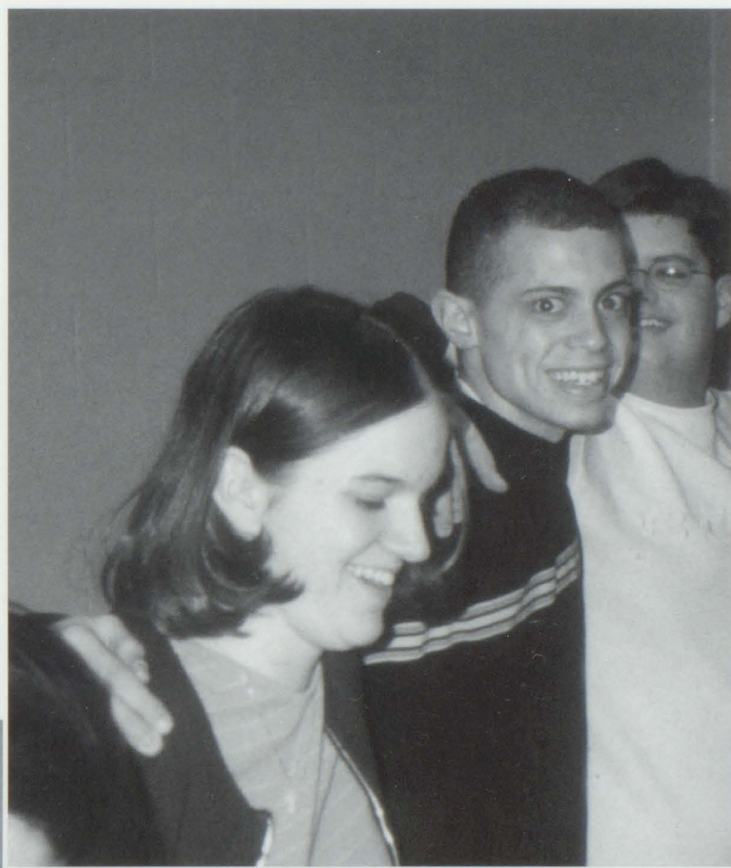

Mr. Thompson explored the wonders of the rubber glove. The hypothesis of this experiment was, how big can a rubber glove get?

Angie Noel, Kristyn Shaffer, Mr. Hamilton and Annie Thornhill took time out of lecture for an experiment with DNA.

Emily Langford and Darnell Archey have "hands on" experience in physics. "The wave" takes on new meaning for physics students.

Past and Present

Social studies, what does that really mean? Well, social studies includes a very wide variety of areas to study. One could learn such things as the complication of the stock market, the importance of the United States' history or even the uniqueness of human behavior. Each of these areas can be made fun in a number of different ways.

When Mrs. Wood's world geography class wasn't watching a movie, they took notes and did homework in a very relaxed atmosphere.

One of the things that can make class fun is showing how the information relates to students and the community. Dr. Hamilton ran for state representative in the fall, and he often had funny experiences to share with his classes. From handshaking to baby-kissing, he always had a story to tell. Dr. Hamilton tried to continue that local connection beyond the election. "In History classes, I think students enjoy the local history sections and my folklore unit," he said.

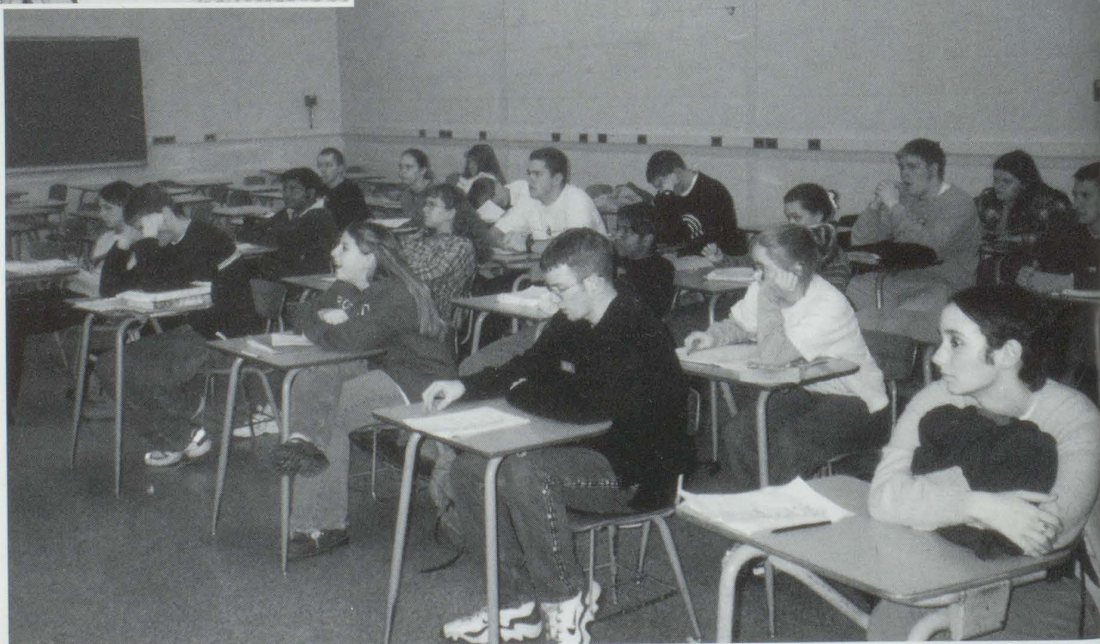

Once again the construction caused a few mild alterations for the teachers. The social studies classes had to evacuate their regular classrooms in the B-wing. They had to temporarily relocate to the vocational area. "We have been in a team teaching situation," said Mr. Wesseler. Along with the team teaching, there were larger class sizes. Dr. Hamilton said, "We now have around 60 students in each class. This creates some problems trying to reach all the students." Mrs. Hittson has had to change her class some. "I've had to do almost all scantron tests. I usually do a lot of opinion and creative essay questions," she explained. All in all, these minor inconveniences paid off when the construction was finally at an end.

Most exciting part of the renovation for this department: We're becoming a school equipped for the 21st century.

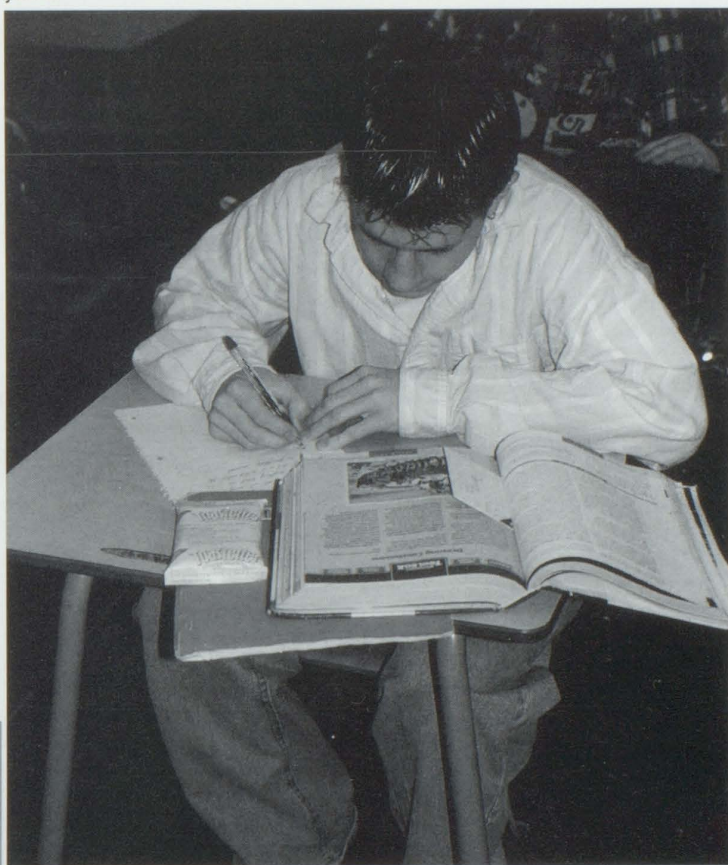

Mr. Miller's seventh hour government class had to change their learning environment for most of the school year due to the renovation.

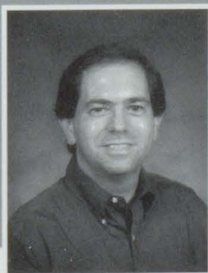

Student teacher, Mr. Gordy took over Mr. Wessler's classes to teach them about WWII. Although he was a bit nervous at first, after a few weeks he was giving homework like he'd been teaching for years.

Todd Sowers finished up some last minute homework before the bell rang. Though it's not a good habit, this practice was a reality for many students.

Skills For Life

Vocational classes. Sound kind of boring, huh? Well, contrary to popular belief, vocational training can be very exciting. Just think of all those field trips. “As far as field trips, well every day is a field trip . . . you are on the job training,” said senior Andrew Gross. Fellow senior Matt Whelchel agrees “it is about hands on training.”

Anyone can take part in this program. Mr. Conway said, “All students [can be in vocational]. You must sign up the year prior to taking your selected program. You must be approved by your counselor and principal.”

There are a variety of classes to take. Here is another great reason to take vocational courses. If you graduate qualified in your area, then you will be ready to go out in the workforce and get a good - paying job with little or no further training. Vocational classes. Sounds pretty interesting, huh?

Making Choices

I feel that Peer doesn't only help you help children, but it also helps you in your everyday normal life," stated senior Brooke Marcum. The peer program is open to juniors and seniors at NCCHS. Students in this class are taught how to help those in need, become better listeners, and visit with kids at local elementary schools. The students in Peer are trained in areas of conflict and are here at school to help their own peers resolve problems. The program even has its own motto... "Peer Mediation

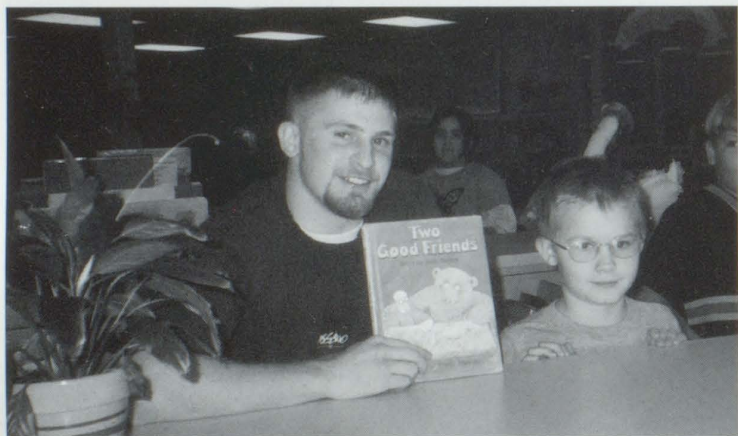

Before Vacation." Senior, Laurie Metroka, commented that the best skill she has learned in Peer so far is "...how not to give advice and (how to) listen." Students in Peer are lead by Mrs. Harvey, the program sponsor. First year member, Ross Lamberson added, "getting to see Mrs. Harvey's lovely smile everyday inspires me to be the best."

Another elective class, photography, is a hands-on class that allows students to experience first hand the film developing process. In this course students learn how to load film, develop film, and enlarge their own pictures. Mr. Johnson's classes create various portfolios, scrapbooks and posters that are exhibited in the school hallways. Photography is an open course for sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

In some instances students that excel in this course take independent study their senior year to further develop their skills.

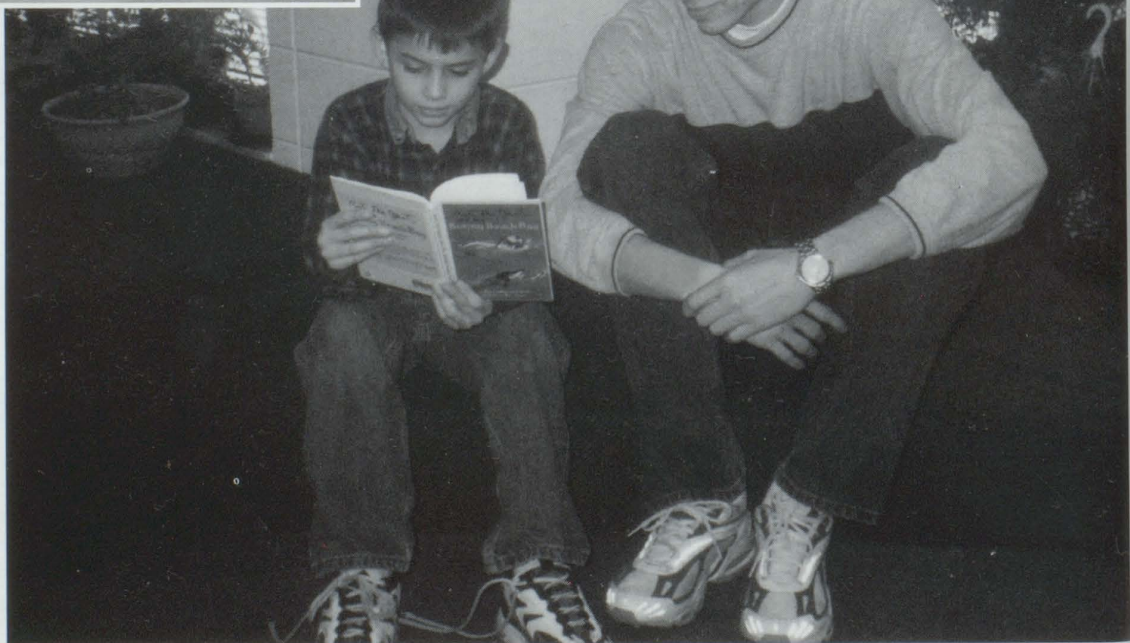

Music Theory and Music History are two other elective classes. These classes are for students interested in furthering their understanding of music. The courses are each one semester and let students have a closer look at music than in band or choir. Music theory teaches students all the technical elements and what makes up the music. Students involved in choir or band can also receive merit points for enrolling in these classes. Junior Natalie Criswell likes the fact that it "...is very small and the class is very informal and laid back." These are only a few of the versatile electives available to NCCHS students.

Ryan Scott and his peer buddy from Parker Elementary select a book to read that also describes their friendship.

NCCHS had an exceptional cheer block in '98 and '99. Unisonious cheers could be heard throughout the fieldhouse as well as other gyms under the leadership of the cheerleaders.

Junior Todd Sowers demonstrated his determination as he swam in the 100m freestyle. Sowers also swam the fly as well as the individual medley.

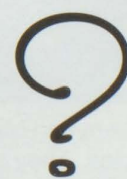

The volleyball team worked together to reach a final record of 10-6. The unity of the team was an important factor in this record.

When it came to keeping the Trojan spirit alive, the students at NCCHS could always get the job done. Whether it was participating in a sport or cheering their peers on from the stands, the students at NCCHS could always let their Trojan Pride shine through.

Aaron Ray competed against other cross country runners as well as with himself. Ray's success was influenced by his desire for topping his personal best times at each and every race.

Chad Bouslog - 11

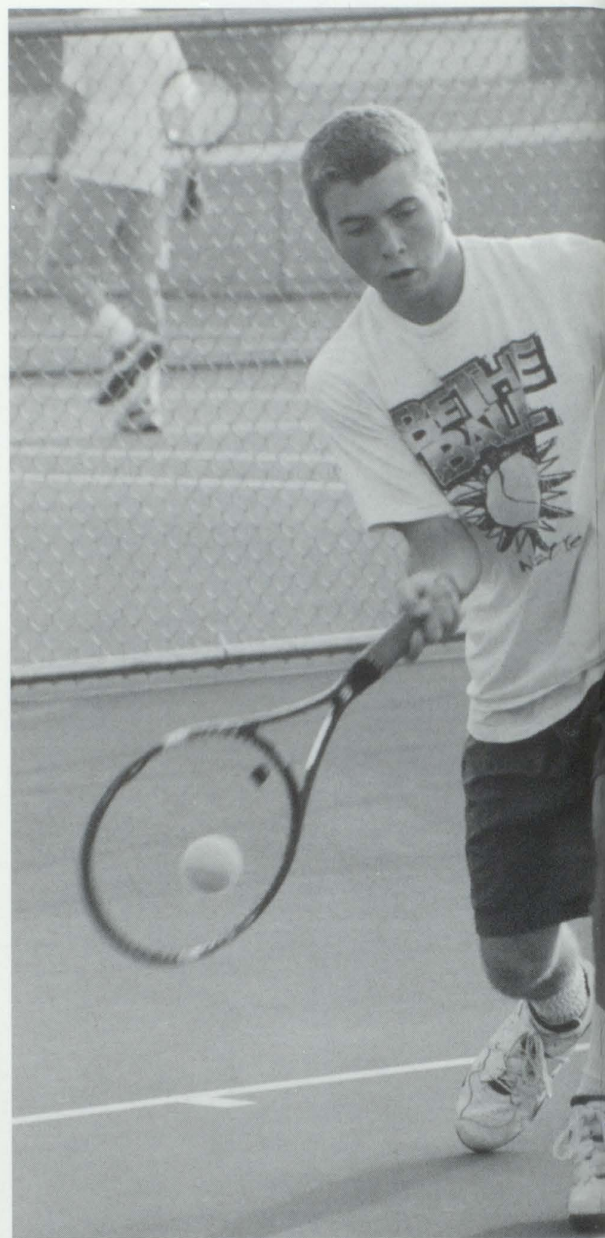

"I started playing tennis when I was about 7 with my neighbors down the road. Then, I started going to Coach Burdsall's Summer Tennis Camp. And now, here I am today. This past season was a great one, with 6 of 7 varsity spots being filled by underclassmen. We were pretty successful. Michael and I advanced to state in doubles, and it was a great experience. Next year opponents should be in trouble when they play us, cause I've got one more year."

It was a year of redemption for the boys' tennis team. A disappointing 5-8 season last year put the idea of revenge in the hearts of these players.

A win here and a few losses there, made the team finish with a 9-8 record. A returning junior, Josh Medley, filled the #1 singles spot. Brian Whiteman, the only returning senior played #3 singles. Junior Michael Clark, a returning #1 doubles player, and junior Chad Bouslog a new #1 doubles player, also came up with some big wins for the team. The superb #2 doubles team of junior Craig Akers and sophomore Marcus Lewton had a winning streak of 12!

Concerning tennis, Marcus Lewton liked, "Everything; it is just a really fun activity to me." Players even have favorite shots. Michael Clark said, "My favorite shot is the 360 overhead smash!"

New Castle had a tough season with matches against Anderson, Anderson Highland, Rushville, and Richmond. The tennis team won their sixth sectional in a row, but was defeated in the first round of regional by Batesville. The #1 doubles team of Chad Bouslog and Michael Clark advanced by defeating Randolph Southern in the individual sectional. This is the first time ever New Castle has made it to state in doubles. Chad and Michael came up with a close win and faced Avon in second round of state. Though they lost to Avon, they still finished eighth in the state.

Be

Craig Akers and Marcus Lewton had an unbelievable season at #2 doubles. They both played other positions before finally finding the perfect match.

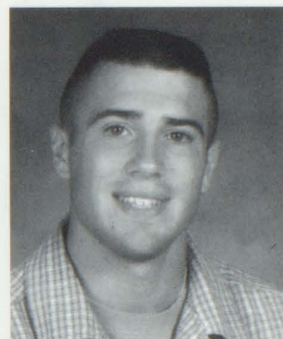

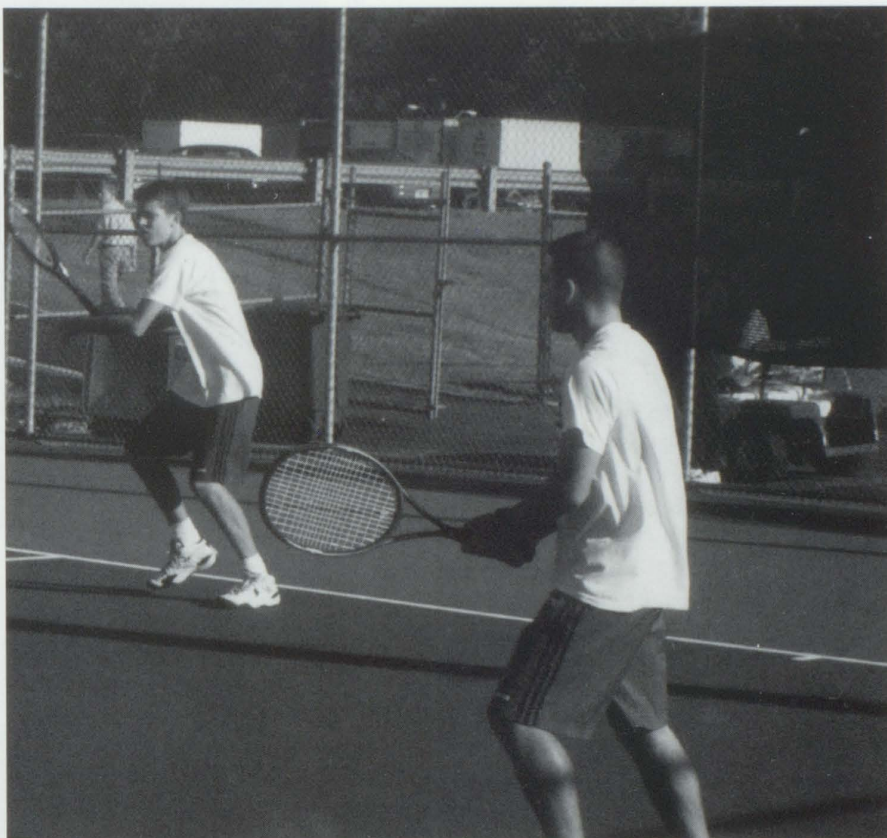

Paul Champion offered a few words of comfort to Josh Medley after a tough loss to Greenfield Central. Josh Medley filled in the role of co-captain and played #1 singles.

"I had so much fun being on the team this year. Carling kept the spirits up for the whole team. She made us laugh so hard we cried, especially the time she and Lauren Upchurch -- "Pokie" -- got in a fight when we were watching Erin play at state. All of us stuck together during all of the meets. The bus trips up to and coming home from the meets were the best. I will always remember all of the good times I had with everyone."

The New Castle girls' golf team finished their season 13-2. Some of the highlights were finishing third at North Central Conference and second at sectional. The team lost three varsity players last year, but they had a strong year without them.

Erin Dickey was all NCC. She shot a 79 to capture second place and North Central Conference. The Dickey sisters played one and two on the golf team. The seniors this year were Jennifer Campbell, Brittney Koger, and Angie DeHart. "I had fun this year being on the golf team," said Koger. Koger played varsity for the first time her senior year in the Lafayette Invitational.

The golf team picked up a new coach this year, Ally Hopwood. "I loved this year! The girls were incredible and fun to work with," said Hopwood. Coach Hopwood played college golf. She has experience with the physical and mental aspects of the game. "The dedication level of each one was stronger than I ever thought. For an individual sport, the girls came together to form a really fun, positive and strong team," said Hopwood. The team members had great respect for Hopwood as well. "I really liked Ally. She did a great job for her first year in coaching," said Campbell.

Travis Pryor - 12

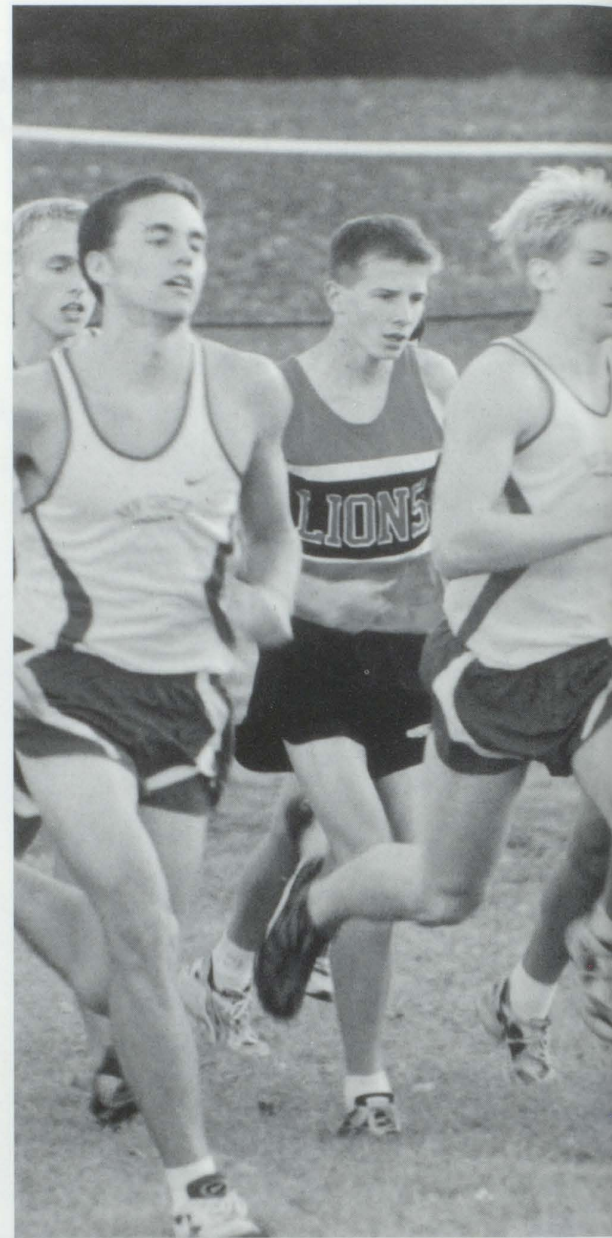

"Cross country teaches a very big lesson, '...to never give up.' In running you cannot just will your way through a race without any training behind you. I'll never forget those hot and humid summer days where conditioning practices were optional, but I always came anyway and worked my tail off. My dad was my coach all four years. I was good, but he always made me think I was the best. He never had to make us think we were all better than we actually were, but he did that. I'll never forget the tradition of the rocket race or our chant before races. My senior cross country season was the biggest roller coaster season for me, but I'll always remember the team and my coach, Dad."

The students in our school had different life-styles. Some had a 'city life,' others had a 'country life,' and some even had a cross country life. A cross country life required extra effort and hard work. "A typical cross country runner tends to be leaner than most, a good student, quieter than normal, and more dedicated, [although] there are some exceptions," said Coach Pryor. Having those qualities paid off for the team with a final record of 5-2.

The cross country team was on the road for most meets. There were only two at home: a dual meet with Delta and a four-way meet with Shenandoah, Knightstown, and Rushville. New Castle also added the Blackford invitational to the schedule card. Coach Pryor was glad to participate in this event; it gave an opportunity for the team to check out some of the competition for semi-state.

Like the opponents, the courses often varied in difficulty. When asked what his favorite course was, senior John Liette responded: "Union City, [because it's] fast and flat, and everybody usually runs their best times." Memories also came with being on the cross country team. Junior, Aaron Ray said, "The rocket race was the most memorable race of the season." John Liette agreed. The rocket race was usually held at Union City and was an initiation ceremony for the first-year runners.

"I love the cross-country team. All of the girls are wonderful. They mean so much to me, and I have loved the opportunity to be able to run with my sister, Natalie. We are a group of best friends that always encourage each other through our races. I love them so much, and I will really miss them next year. As Mr. Dye would say, 'It's a great day to be a harrier!'"

Adidas and Asics. What in the world? These brands of running shoes were favorites of cross country runners Danielle Ooten and Casey Ash. This year the girls laced up and had a great season. They placed second out of thirteen teams at the Blackford Invitational, also placing seventh at semi-state, just two teams away from advancing to state.

This team made some great memories this year. Katie Shaffer's memory was "conference at Kokomo - I won the NCC." Ash said, "My most memorable meet was this year at Connersville because I got lost and could not find the finish line. When I finally found the finish line, I did a cartwheel to finish the race." Ooten recalls a highlight of the season when she "broke sixteen minutes at the Union City Invitational."

Advice and inspiration are important when running. "My boyfriend told me no matter how tired I am or how much I want to give up to just keep going," said Tiffani Jones. After ending such a great season, these runners can certainly look forward to what comes next.

"My senior night we were playing against Marion. I went up for a block and came down on the other player's foot. I fell down and laid on the court crying because I couldn't get up. I was rushed to the emergency room and X-rayed, but [my ankle] was not broken. I was on crutches, and I only got to practice for two days before sectional. I only got to play for two minutes in the back, but there wasn't much I could do. I wish I wouldn't have hurt my ankle, especially on senior night, but things don't always work out the way you want them to."

This year's NCCHS girls' volleyball team struggled with the loss of six of last year's starters, including New Castle's overall points leader, Mandy Clark. The team did show potential with the addition of strong underclassmen. Among them was all NCC player Karen Freeburg. Karen added, "Last year I was a role player who only played back row. This year I am a team leader who plays all of the time and is depended upon."

The team also showed good team unity. Junior Jada Paine commented, "Everyone seems to get along great. The different personalities of each girl on the team made things interesting and fun."

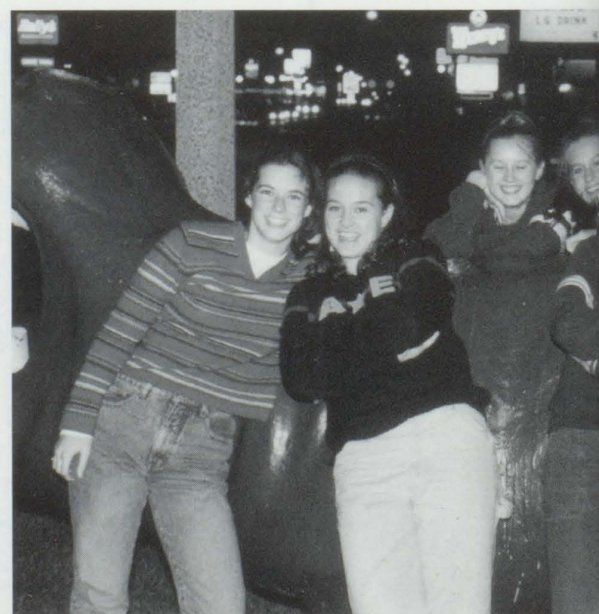

The team had a lot of ups and downs through the season, from the tough loss against "sibling coach rivalry" Muncie Burris, to the win over Yorktown after being beat by them only two nights before. Yorktown had an 18 game winning streak before playing New Castle for the second time. Senior Stephanie Kinser stated, "We just try to come out and have fun. It doesn't matter if we win or lose as long as we play our hardest."

"During one of the numerous other teams' kickoffs Jared Hoots got put in the game. The other team kicked it off and it landed right in front of Jared. He didn't pick it up; he didn't even bend over. Unfortunately, the other team got the ball. At least Jared got the grass stains he had been waiting all year for."

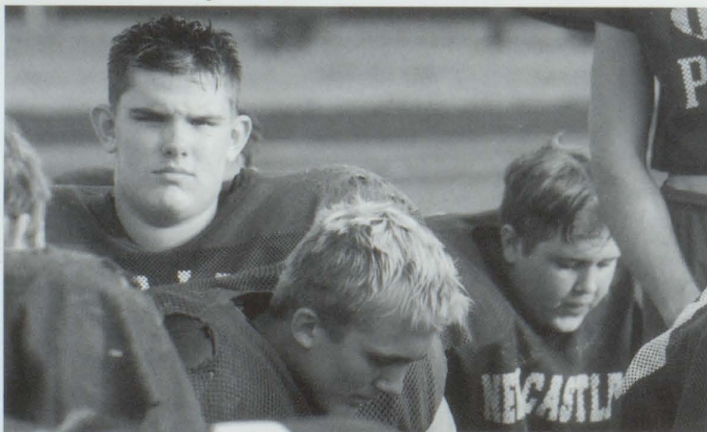

The fighting New Castle Trojans kicked off their season this year against Greenfield on August 21. Despite their first loss, spirits remained high and they raged on.

The average size of the NCCHS players was smaller than in years past, and since football is a contact sport, this was a setback for the team. However, head coach, Ron Baker showed optimism at the sectional draw outcome. "We know we can score points against Muncie Central...I like the draw because it gives us (the team) a chance to see where we are from the beginning of the season," he speculated before the game.

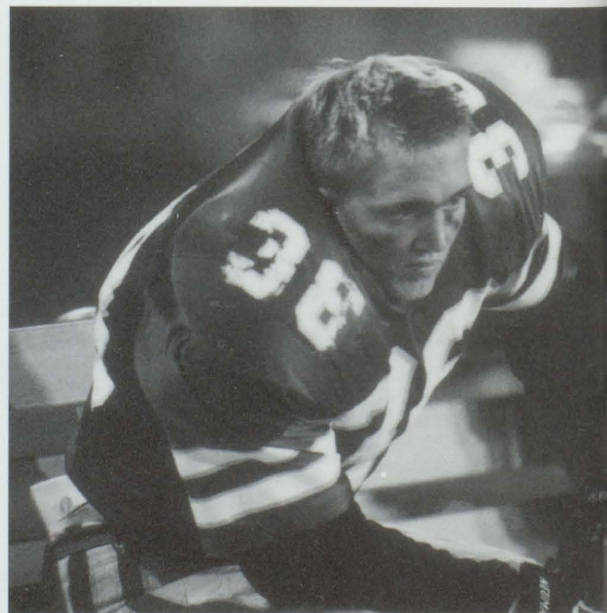

Despite the difficult season and an 0-7 record, Trojan pride prevailed. The team worked hard each week and got the reward of Thursday night dinners before home games. Brian Milner's favorite was, "The pizza night; pizza is good." The dinners allowed players and coaches to bond off the field. Coach Baker stated, "I look at the football team and coaching staff as an extended family."

The Trojans keep the tradition of praying before each game, asking that everyone is kept safe and that they play to the best of their ability. The excited Trojans bursting through the spirit hoop was another pre-game ritual. The team will never forget this season ... the tackle they made to stop a touchdown, the extra point they blocked, the pass they caught, or the block they made for a teammate. The season may be over, but the memories live on.

"Teamwork was the key to our success this year. We were all friends and stood up for each other. I've been playing since I was 5 years old, and this was the most fun year ever."

The 1998 season for the New Castle boy's soccer team brought the Trojans' first North Central Conference win, their first game under the lights at Huffman Field, and their first year with their new head coach, Gregory Crider, who replaced Coach Marcum. "It was difficult to replace the person most responsible for bringing and establishing boy's varsity soccer in New Castle," said Coach Crider. Crider was successful in his first season, improving the Trojan record from 5-11 to 10-5-3.

The team's greatest victory of the season came against Richmond, their first NCC win. "Through the years," said Chad Shaffer, "Richmond has kind of become my rival, so beating them was definitely satisfying."

Superstitions play a large role in sports, and this year's team was no stranger to the idea. "Before each game," claimed goalie Ross Strong, "I touch every inch of the goal, slide back and forth between the goal posts twice, spit over the crossbar, and then walk to the six yard line and do a forward roll." Some superstitions may be in the attire a player wears or in a special remedy. "Every day before a game," said Josh Shopp, "I put on my tailor-made green and white shoes furnished with duct tape."

Lisa DaVia-12

One of Lisa's favorite memories from her days as a high school soccer player was "when Isaac Rains and a bunch of those guys came to our big game against Yorktown. We played on the football field and they made a little pep band for us. We had such great support that night! It helped us beat Yorktown and made us feel like a team."

In its third year in existence at NCCHS, the girls' soccer team had its best season ever, ending 3-12. "This season has been great; the team pulled together well and we had a lot more depth," stated Annie Thornhill. Beth Ann Bunner said, "The teamwork on the team this year was great; we all got along well and had a lot of fun."

The team had a few crazy rituals this year; one started near the end of the season. In a Phoenix article, the team had been described as looking like bulls charging into action. Team members Thornhill and Ammi Wells said they had never heard of this but decided to try it, so for the remainder of the season, they held their fingers up like horns and charged into the competition. Heidi Wymer mentioned another tradition of this year's team. "Courtney Edwards and I wear the same shirts under our jerseys for every game!"

The team had a rough start. At the beginning of the season, they had no coach! That is, until Phil Stanley stepped up. Several of the girls stated that Coach Stanley listened to them and tried to accommodate their skills. Now that the girls have had a taste of victory, they are hungry for more and look for a winning record next season.

Patrick Aitchison - 12

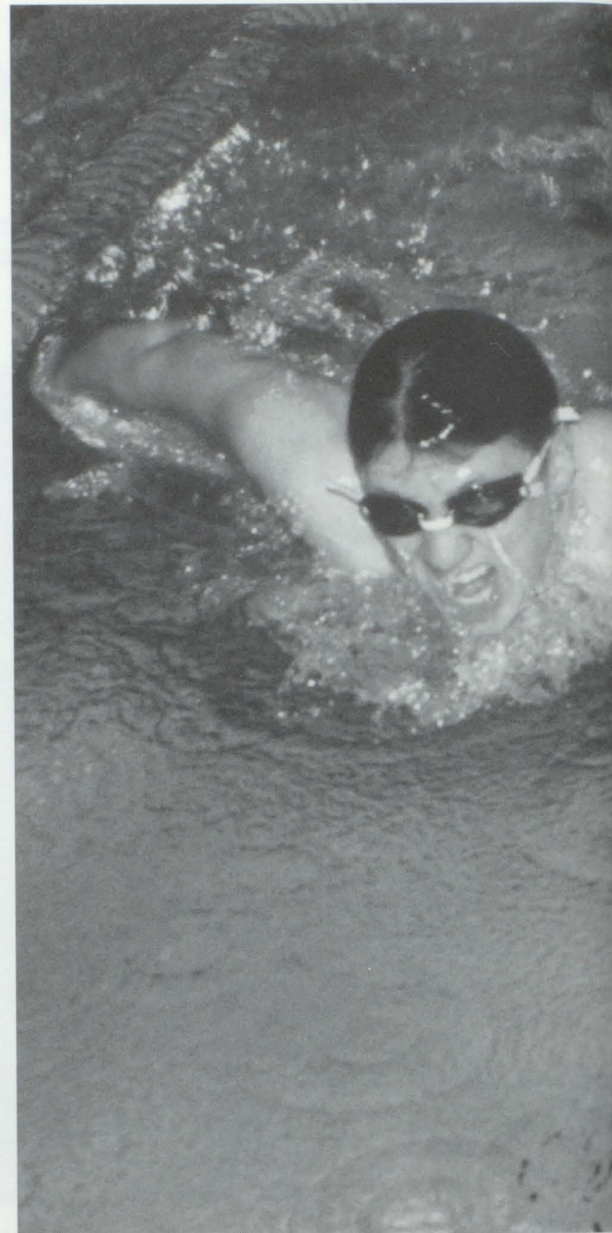

"My most memorable moment was during sectional this year when Aaron Ray hurt his leg and had to swim for the team. The whole team was behind him all the way even though he wasn't doing too well. This really showed the closeness and spirit of the team. This was the best team that NCCHS has ever had."

The boys' swim team continued a tradition of excellence this year. "I thought some of our kids made really good strides. Some kids had trouble making the transition at first because they were involved in other sports, but they came through at the end of the season," said Coach Kelsik.

A typical practice was anything but typical for the boys who did everything from lifting weights to meditation. During a week of practice, swimmers would do various exercises to build endurance, increase flexibility, and strengthen all the muscles used for swimming. These water boys even practiced twice a day during Christmas break.

The season of grueling practices and early morning workouts paid off when six swimmers went to semi-state. Of those six, some qualified to go on to senior state by meeting a qualifying time in their respective events. Greg Shedd, Jared Crabtree, Aaron Ray, Paul Aitchison, and Patrick Aitchison all represented NCCHS at the event against the best swimmers in the state.

The 200 meter freestyle was the race of choice for Corey Blake. Laps, laps, and more laps make a better swimmer.

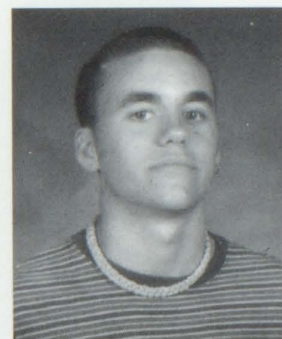

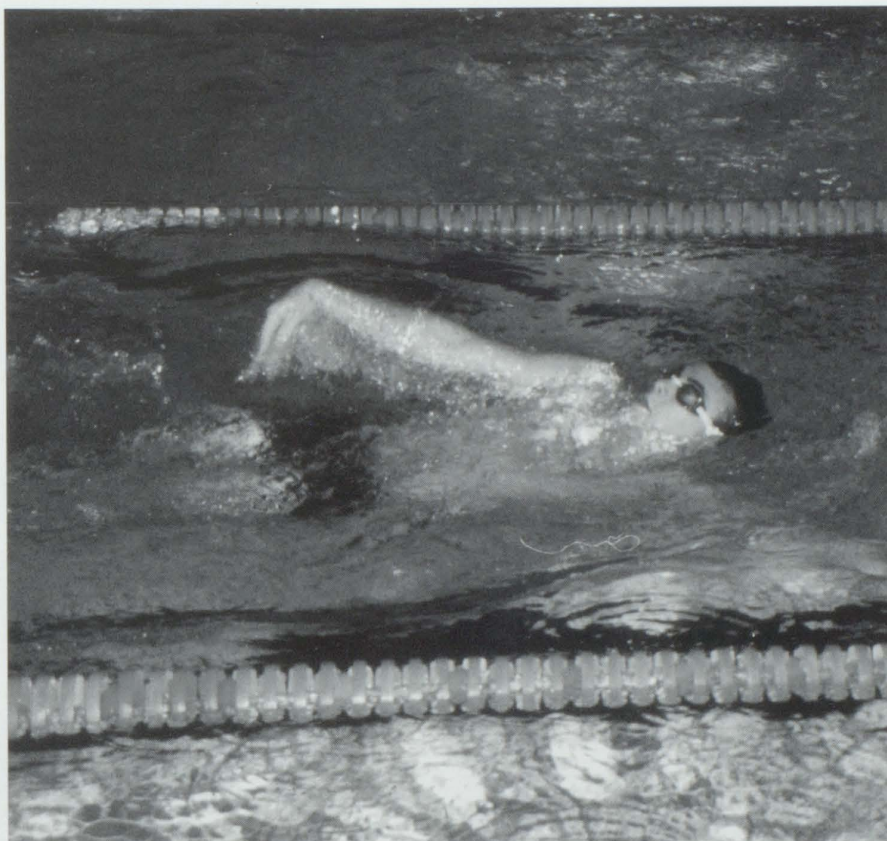

Though quiet on land, Aaron Ray made lots of noise in the water. The 100 meter freestyle race expressed it all.

Boys' Swimming

Jared Crabtree competes in the individual fly race. Crabtree went on to represent NCCHS at the senior state meet.

Justin Hicks demonstrates the backstroke. Though competition was individual, teamwork brought it all together.

Advice for incoming swimmers:

"It's not that hard because your practices are geared for your ability."

Brooke Marcum- 12

"My favorite part of swimming had to be the long, hard practices. A typical day would begin before the sun came up. We'd start with a few laps and then head to the weightroom. Then we'd go to school for 7 hours and then it was back to the pool. We'd then spend what seemed like endless hours doing intense laps in the freezing water. After that it was time to hit the showers and go home. Except it was already dark outside so all you could do is go home, grab a bite to eat and go to bed."

For the second year in a row, the New Castle girls' swim team ended their season with a record of 6-3. This year's team was led by seniors Stephanie Kinser, Brooke Marcum, and Chrissy Kelsay. The senior girls weren't always blue ribbon winners, but they showed encouragement to every team member.

The girls all had victories and personal triumphs during the year. Even though swimming is individual competition, the team showed continuous support for each other. "...We have a lot of fun. I can always count on Coach Kelsik or Jackie Metroka to make me laugh," recalls three year member, Stephanie Kinser. The girls on the team have a very close friendship. They spent the entire swim season growing out their leg hair until the day prior to sectional at Connersville. Even though the girls placed fifth as a team at sectional, the shaving party the night before was well worth it.

As tradition continues, Coach Kelsik and Coach Grimes once again were on the receiving end of some T-Ping this year after the big meets. The girls on the team show that you don't always have to be the fastest to be the best.

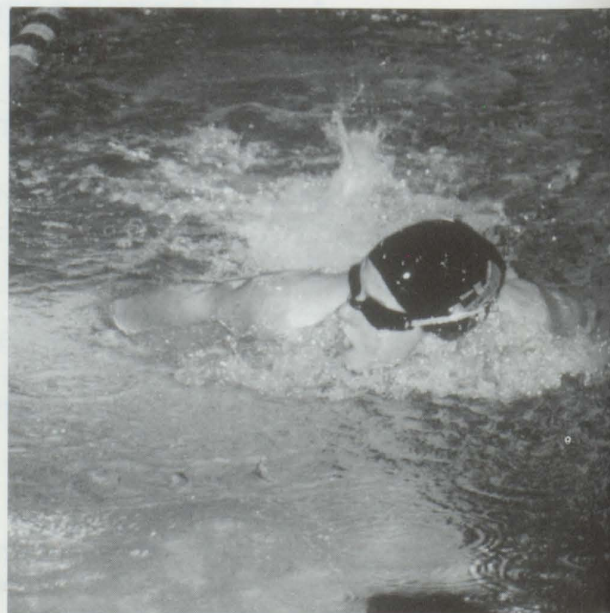

Girls' Swimming equals making friendships.

Senior Stephanie Kinser and sophomore Karen Freeburg beam with pride as they show off their hairy armpits after a home meet.

Girls' Swimming

After a hard practice, the girls' swim team bonds on the steps of the pool. Their friendships extended beyond their sports to social activities and terrorizing the coaches.

Sophomores Shalei Rogers and Heidi Wymer are all smiles after a big team win. This year, Shalei led the divers while Heidi improved her technique in the lane.

Kristin Cox

"The best thing about swimming is building good friendships and tee-peeing Coach...and Brooke Marcum because she is awesome."

"Wrestling has been a great experience. It is a sport that really helps build character, determination, and self discipline. This year's team was my favorite because we were not expected to achieve much, but we ended up winning sectionals and regionals. After that we went to semi-state."

Wrestling isn't just a bunch of sweaty bodies fighting to prove masculinity between each other. Instead it is a magnificent way to exercise with other students from around the state, while at the same time competing for a better set of individual records. The wrestlers try to do well, not only for themselves, but also for their teammates.

The North Central Conference Champs were Tim Dalton, Cory Cook, Dustin Lanzer, and Evan Feters. The team placed second in the North Central Conference Championship, marking the twenty-third time in the last twenty-five years it placed in the upper half of the conference.

Evan Feters made the most pins with 25. Cory Cook scored the most take downs with 200, a new school record. The team won its twenty-fourth consecutive sectional, and its seventh consecutive regional to make new records for the school. Cory Cook and Evan Feters qualified for the State Finals with Cook placing eighth. "I really had a great time this year. The team was closer than it has ever been before. We wrestled well, and enjoyed ourselves. Thank you everyone who came out to support us," said Evan Feters.

Darnell Archey - 12

"The team lost six out of eight games during the middle of the season. I thought the season was over, but Coach Bennett told us after the Lafayette loss we were going to win the sectional. The team came together, and we were determined to win the sectional, and we did."

For all those Fans, Fanatics, and Field Reporters the word for this season was Fantastic! From the "Boat-Rockin" Fanatics to the "Rim Rockin" Trojans the Fieldhouse was energy packed.

Trojan spirit took on a whole new definition this year. The student arrival time was around 6:15, which was 15 minutes before the JV game started. That's what it took to get those "yelling in the Refs' ears, right in the Cheerleaders' faces, and two feet closer than the row behind you" seats on the floor! With the help of a few local businesses and the Athletic Director, Mr. Bergum, the students took to a whole new shade of green, that of the "Fieldhouse Fanatics."

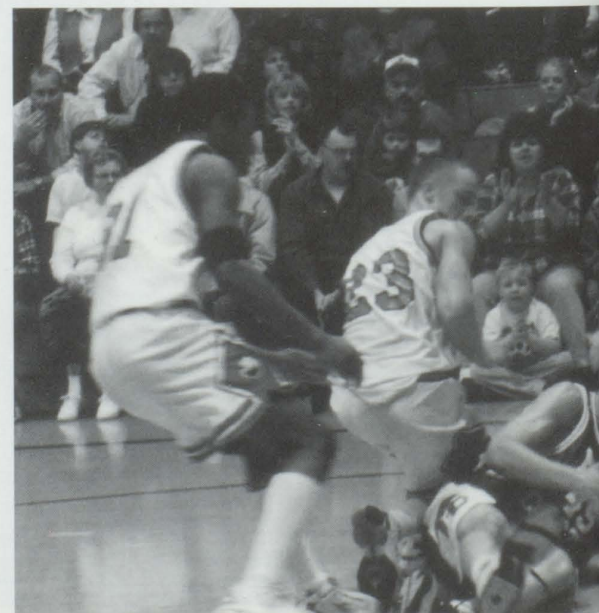

Many questions come to mind when people reminisce about this season. What was so different this year that brought a roaring 200 students to the games? Why did it take 40 years to bring back the cheerblock? Every player contributed in his own way whether on or off the court. Players worked hard during the off-season and in open gyms. Drills were done, shots were practiced, and conditioning was a must. "My favorite drill is one on one cross court," said Darnell Archey. Ricky Jones' favorite shot "would probably have to be the 4-point (play)."

Shawnda Vitatoe - 12

"This year's team was a lot closer than the teams in the past. There were less fights than before. We had a very young team, but we had talent. We just had trouble finding it sometimes. Being the only senior was a different experience. I'm going to miss high school basketball; I had a lot of fun the past four years."

"The shot is for three and she scores! New Castle's Lady Trojans win again!" Scoring points and winning games are important, but this year the girls in green showed us that things like that have not always been the most important. Perhaps Danielle Ooten said it best: "The most fulfilling accomplishments come with hard work and goal setting." Shawnda Vitatoe replied a bit differently. "I have had so many great memories that it's hard to choose just one. I think that there is a tie between going to Semi-State my sophomore year and Josh McCutcheon falling off the bleachers senior night."

Macee Upchurch noted that "Shawnda Vitatoe [was the most dedicated member] because over the big 'Winter Blast' she was at practice every day along with being sick." Jessica Cheadle stated, "Don't play for your coach; play for yourself and the team." The Lady Trojans ended their season with a 9-12 record.

"I think gymnastics is a sport where you have to be mentally strong to be successful. It takes a lot of physical strength too, but to win you have to have the heart. I had the heart and the mental strength, and it payed off."

The girls' varsity gymnastics team finished their season 7-4, and the junior varsity finished 6-0. The varsity finished fourth at Sectional, fifth at Conference, fifth at Valparaiso, and second at Rushville Invitational. "They worked extremely hard and were a pleasure to have. This season was a lot of fun for everyone," said Coach Wood.

The coach noted the highlights during the season were four beam routines with no falls and three scores of eight on beam. Teams from different schools complemented NCHS on how the girls always put forth a positive display of sportsmanship.

The only senior on the squad was Brittany Padgett, but that didn't hinder friendships. The girls on the squad worked hard and helped each other out all year. "Everyone on the squad was like a sister to me. It was just like one big family," said Junior Chantelle Buchanon.

Lyndsey Perdue & Ashley York - 12

Lyndsey and Ashley were the captains of the squad this year. Early in their cheering career a coach told them their senior year they would be the only ones left cheering from their class. They fulfilled the prophecy this year as the only seniors. Lyndsey felt "My senior year of cheerleading was definitely the best. I love my teammates and my coaches, and I was proud to be a member of a squad that was viewed highly by the public." Ashley had a similar view when she stated, "This has been my favorite year ever. I feel like we all really got along well and we accomplished so much."

The cheerleading squads had a lot to be proud of this year. They started the season by going to camp at Purdue last summer. While at camp the teams bonded and worked as one during competition. Brandy Helton commented that she thought "the team was so much closer this year; we were actually friends and I will miss the seniors so much." They brought home the two highest awards presented at camp, the Camp Champs Award, and the Hurkey Award given for displaying team work and sportsmanship. The team was also invited to nationals. Before basketball season they attended a Power Building Clinic at Butler University to learn new stunts and building techniques to incorporate into their basketball routines. Brittany Thurman commented that "[I] learned a lot this year and I feel like we accomplished so much." Then, in the middle of the basketball season they were asked to go to the Channel 13 studio to perform a cheer live on the eleven o'clock news.

This year the squad had new coaches, Amy McKown and Sherry Bergum. Coach McKown was "proud of our teams this year. They showed so much potential at camp and we pushed them to be what they were at camp all season long." The squads had an honor banquet at the end of the year at Westwood Country Club. Several awards were presented and the coaches also gave out gag gifts to all the girls that personally related to some inside joke throughout the season. Plaques were given to captains Lyndsey Perdue and Ashley York; they were also awarded to Shalei Rogers for JV leadership and Stephanie Summers for mental attitude.

Corey Trobough - 12

"This year's team had high expectations. Some we have accomplished, some we haven't accomplished and some we have yet to accomplish. It has been a fun four years. I will never forget them."

"#1. Not all golfers wear plaid pants. #2. Golf is the most rewarding, the most stressful, the most difficult, and the most fun game in the world," commented Michael Hostetler about the wonderful game of golf. Okay, most would agree on #1 after seeing the likes of Tiger Woods, but this #2 maybe hasn't been proven as a fact yet. Stress did, however, affect the Trojan golf team.

Todd Sowers said his most stressful time on the team was "when I broke my leg before the season started." On the other hand, Travis Watson noted, "I don't get stressed out much; I just like being out there playing some golf, but if there was a most stressful moment, it would be my senior year at Conference."

"I remember most the unity of the team and the friendships that have evolved from being on the team," commented Hostetler. Returning members can only look forward to next season.

Chris Hufford

This year's season has been pretty fun. I started out playing the best golf of my life in the first 5 or 6 meets then I fell in a slump. Towards the end I started playing better.

Travis Pryor - 12

"An overwhelming amount of success came to me because of my dad in my four years of track. I loved to run anyway, but my dad always kept my feet on the ground and always kept me informed about my competition and my abilities and the hard work I've tried to put in. He was always a motivating and thorough coach and helped out everyone on the team. I'm lucky I had the coach at home as my dad. I'll miss track."

Runners, on your mark, get set, go! The gun sounds, and the runners are on their way. Where they stop nobody knows. Distances ranged from 100 meters to 3200 meters. Track isn't all running though. There are also future Michael Jordans-a.k.a. high jumpers, pool boys-a.k.a. pole vaulters, those who throw shot-a.k.a. shot putters, beach lovers-a.k.a. long jumpers, and frisbee fanatics-a.k.a. discus throwers. The boys' track team had an excellent season with a record of 9-2. One of those wins came from the 6th straight victory at the New Castle Invitational!

High hopes for the season were a driving factor throughout the year. With an abundance of underclassmen, senior leadership was a definite key. Although track is a team sport, a lot of emphasis is put on individual success. "It was another great season. [It was the] Best season record in the last nine years. We are losing 11 great seniors, and they will be missed," said Mr. Clark.

"Conference is a lot of fun for both boys' and girls' track teams. We pitch a tent at the big conference meet, and in between events we hang out around the tent and socialize. Conference is my favorite meet of the season. Last year all the girls who finished competing early laid out all afternoon to soak up some rays. Travis Pryor decided to drench us with ice water to cool us off. Needless to say that resulted in huge waterfight...Travis against the girls."

The Lady Trojan track team proved that dedication and sweat are the keys to success. This year's track team made some awesome accomplishments in the track world. Although the Lady Trojans had several returning seniors that led the team in spirit, a lot of the blue ribbon talent belonged to underclassmen. Freshman Katie Pryor set the county and school record in the two mile while juniors Brandy Helton and Danielle Ooten advanced to state in their respective events.

Kristen Carter thought "all the girls did really well this year, but we lack in the sprinting events...if we could improve our numbers we would do really well in big competitions." Kristin Cox thinks the best part of being on the track team is "the fun practices with Coach Big Dave Allen...he makes every day interesting." Even though the track is a very competitive individual sport, the girls are all extremely supportive of each other during the meets. Casey Ash says, "I really like the fact that all the girls on the team are friends."

Three teams in one.

High Jump State Finalist Brandy Helton demonstrates versatility as she leads the 100 meter dash against a Greenfield competitor.

Girl's Track

Junior Danielle Ooten pushed herself during the 1600 meter run. Ooten ended the season with a state finalist title in the 1600.

Brandy Helton, Katie Shaffer, and Kristen Carter stretched their muscles before a tough home meet.

Kristen Carter

"My most memorable moment in track was at the Jay County meet when Autumn Troxell fell flat on her face doing shot put."

"My most memorable moment in baseball was when I hit a grand slam in the sectional my junior year at Richmond against Anderson. It didn't win us the game, but it made us all feel like we still had a chance. My entire junior year was memorable because I got to play on [one of the best] baseball teams in Trojan history. This year's bus ride to Kokomo was pretty memorable too."

The varsity baseball team came into the season with good intentions of winning. The season started off with a bang as the Trojans took a 3-0 start in the regular season. Ryan Blattner said, "We started off the year very well; then we just fell into a slump."

After a great start, the Trojans had a stroke of bad luck losing their next 10 games. Brandon Thompson noted, "A lot of confusion was with the team. The team just wasn't together."

The Trojans did finish up the season strong winning their last two out of three games, but losing to Connersville in the first round of the Richmond sectional. Aaron Salkoski added, "We started well and ended well. Hopefully we can use our experience to win next year."

This year, the baseball team tried to stick together. Members of the varsity team gather to regroup after a tough inning.

Baseball

Senior Brandon Thompson looks to throw the runner out at second. Brandon did a good job of replacing last year's catcher, Matt Cherry.

Junior Ryan Blattner fires one to the catcher. Ryan helped the Trojans out this year by coming in to pitch when they needed him.

Brandon Thompson

"I think it was a pretty good year. If the team would have worked better together, we would have accomplished more."

Amanda Muse - 12

"Being on the four-year Varsity Softball team has been the highlight of my high school days. Playing a sport keeps me busy and out of trouble. I've set lots of goals for myself and accomplished almost all of them. My favorite quote that pertains to me is 'Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing.'"

"Batter up! New Castle is at the plate and the bases are loaded. The crowd sits in awe at what is getting ready to happen. She swings and hits. It's out of the ballpark!" That was just an example of how a radio announcer would describe a softball game played by the Lady Trojans. Ashley Armstrong had the hopes to "play as a team and do better than last year." Well, this year the team did just that.

One of the best things about being part of a team may be the trips out of town for a game, eating out with the girls after a big win, or listening to some favorite music before a game. When asked what she did to get pumped, Amanda Muse said that she would "listen to 'Gettin' Jiggy Wit It' [before] every game for four years in a row while just sitting there thinking about a goal for the game." Ashley Alsip had a more quiet technique. "Before games I would sit down and get myself mentally into the game by praying."

Girls' Softball

It don't mean a thing if she ain't got that swing! Kristin Boatwright gets ready to take a swing at the ball.

Brittany Padget gets ready to hit a fly ball during this game against Shelbyville. It was a Trojan victory 14 to 1.

Ashley Alsip

"This year was great! We all had fun and we all came together as a team!

I think we all learned a lot from each other. I will miss all the girls and maybe even Brewer."

Emily Langford-12

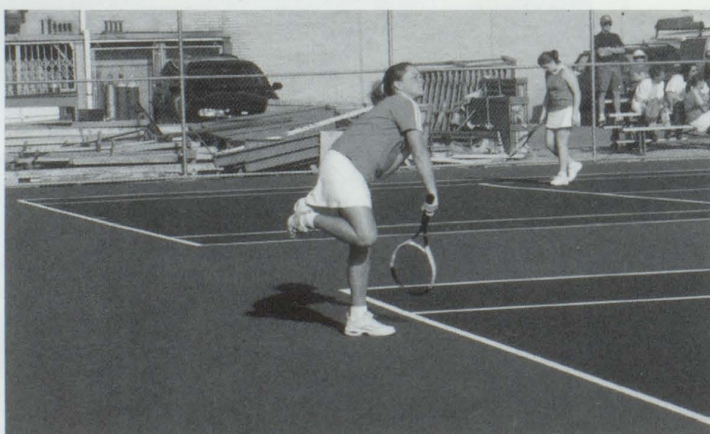

"This year's record does not show how much potential the team had. The line up changed a little and caused us to get used to our new positions. Transitioning from singles to doubles, doubles to singles, or moving up or down in position is not as easy as it looks. Overall it was a fun year, and I will really miss my underclass teammates."

The girls' tennis team this year was a fairly young one. With only two returning seniors, the team moved and switched positions a lot. Juniors, Emily and Sarah Dukeman who formerly played at the number one and two singles spots, were moved to number one doubles to make for an almost unbeatable duo. "We had a very successful year even though there were many new members on the team," said Sarah's about the season.

Once again the team was coached by John Burdsall who mentioned this year's team was "...a good one to work with, but they were all very busy with other commitments, making it hard to get everyone together for practice." With an overall record of 4-11 and 1-3 against North Central Conference foes the team had a lack of one thing, and that was wins. "This year was different from any before, and I think that that is a good thing. Hopefully, next year will be even better," expressed Emily Dukeman.

Girls' Tennis

Emily Langford slams her serve over the net. Langford provided senior leadership for the team.

Sarah Dukeman uses her strong forehand to smash the ball. Practice makes perfect, and practice she did.

Lauren Kendall

"I really enjoyed getting to know the girls on team this year. I had a lot of fun being on the team."

On hot sundae afternoons students would often flurry to Dairy Queen. If it had been open during the winter months, people would probably slush through the snow, even in a blizzard, to sample the hot eats and cool treats that were offered.

Where'd ya get that?

There are businesses around New Castle that reach out to the community in many ways. One of those ways is through ongoing support of the Rosennial. Each year local businesses contribute to the production of this yearbook. Without their contributions the Rosennial would be much more expensive for students.

Cory Cook could often be found at Ballpark Cards. He was proud to hold a helmet autographed by Notre Dame's All-American tailback, Vegas Ferguson.

Amanda,

All of your life you have dreamed, set goals for yourself and achieved them all. Continue that and you will go far. Believe in yourself, because we believe in you.

Love, Mom & Dad

Amanda Allen

Dear Sarah,

The first time we held you in our arms, we knew that you were special. Your love of education and desire to learn began early in your life and has continued to grow with you. As you grew up, you were always seen with a book in your hand. You were our little "bookworm." You set your goals and worked hard to achieve them. You are a wonderful young lady, and we are proud and blessed to have you as our daughter, granddaughter, and sister. Our love and prayers are with you always!

We love you!

Dad, Mom, Grandma & Grandpa Davis, Paul

Sara Ward

Congratulations, dear Laura!

We thank God that He has blessed us with such a lovely daughter who has a beautiful heart and soul. You have brought us great joy. We are very proud of you, Laura. We wish you a lifetime of faith, love, happiness and health. Remember, always, you are deeply loved.

God Bless You.

Dad and Mom

Laura Bouslog

Dear Katie,

You have matured into a wonderful and caring daughter, sister and friend. You have been a blessing and delight in our lives. We are so proud of your independent spirit and determination. Congratulations on your graduation! Your future looks very bright, so reach for the stars. Our love and prayers will follow you on your journey.

Love,

Mom, Dad, Melissa, and Maria

Katie Carman

Congratulations Josh!

We are proud of you and your accomplishments! We love you very much! Your hard work, dedication and determination will continue to give you success in everything you do. Be faithful to God, and keep him in the center of your heart. Just remember we will always be here to love you and encourage you.

All Our Love,

Mom, David, Dad, and Diana

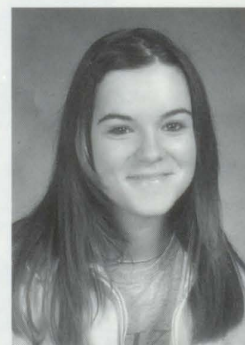

Josh Owens

Dear Maria,

We are so glad we had this year together. You have enriched our lives with love and laughter. You will always be in our hearts, thoughts, and prayers. Whether you pursue your educational goals in Spain or America, remember our home is your home. (Nuestra casa es su casa.) You will be truly missed by your American family.

Love,

Jeff, Rita, Katie, and Melissa

Maria Gonzalez

Jennifer,

Precious things are very few. That must be why there's just one you. We're so very proud of you. Our love and prayers are with you always.

We love you!

Mom and Dad

Jennifer Campbell

Dear Lisa,

What a joy it has been to watch you grow into such a wonderful young woman. We've been so lucky to have experienced your sense of humor and even your "confusions!" But it is your love and caring for others that is so endearing. We wish you all the best as you begin to follow your dreams. We love you!

Mom, Dad, and Sara

Lisa DaVia

Stephanie,

We remember the little girl who decorated our refrigerator with pictures, did cartwheels in the yard, sang songs with a bed post and loved Punky Brewster. You grew up before our eyes. We will miss all of the volleyball games, swim meets, sleep overs, and friends in the basement. We wish you the best in life. - Remember, happiness is a choice you make. We hope you always embrace it. Mom, Dad, and Chris

Stephanie Kinser

Dear Corey,

It seems like just yesterday we were holding our blond hair, blue eyed little boy in our arms, and now we are sending you off to college. These 18 years have flown by and it has been so much fun watching you grow into a fine young man. We have traveled many miles watching you pursue your golf dreams. You have accomplished so much and we are so proud of you! Continue to reach for your hopes and dreams and know that we will always be there for you wherever life takes you.

All our love,
Mom, Dad, and Derek

Corey Trobaugh

Dear Jimmy,

Congratulations on your graduation! What a gift you have been to me... I thank God daily for the privilege of having you for my son. You have brought so much happiness into my life. You have made me so proud. "I believe you can fly" continue that belief, my son, for we both know that you can.

I love you! - Mom

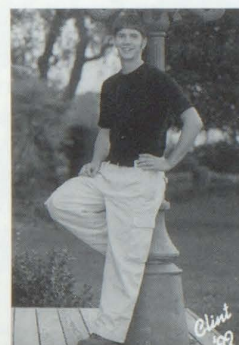

Jimmy Lowe

Clint,

We are so proud of you. You can do anything you set your mind to.

We love you always,
Dad, Mom, Chad, and Cliff

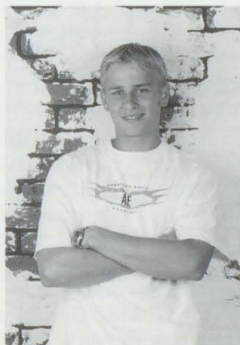

Clint Weaver

Ryan,

More than your athletic abilities, your great sense of humor or your excellent choice of friends, we are most proud to call you our son! Listen to God; listen to your heart as you continue to become a man of integrity.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Ryan Edwards

Chris,

We only dance on this earth for a short while, and you are taking every moment to its best. Don't let up, life is too short. Thank you for spending some of that precious time with me, and for being such a wonderful person as well as giving me dad bragging rights. I'll always be by your side. Forever love, your Father,
Juan Duvall

Chris Kelley

Angie,

We couldn't be prouder of you! Sometimes we mistake you for the adult. You have done great in and out of school. You are our friend, daughter, and sister, and we will always be there for you! Keep smiling and look on the bright side of things, and it will truly keep you going. Do your best, let your heart guide you, and you will fulfill your dreams! We love you always!

Mom, Dad, & Brian

Angie DeHart

Ryan,

Thank you for being YOU. I have been blessed to have you as a son. I treasure the memories you have planted in my heart. I am very proud of your accomplishments as a person, student, and athlete. Your perseverance and dedication have shined through your every word and deed. Ryan, always remember to believe in yourself. By choosing this course, you will surely find success and happiness.

I love you,
Mom

Ryan Scott

Brad,

We are very proud of you! Never give up on your dreams. May God bless you and lead you in all that you do.

Love,

Mom, Vince, Bryan, and Braden

Brad Swindell

Nathan,

Thanks for being a wonderful son. You possess so many fine qualities of which we are very proud. We hope you can always keep your humorous attitude, respect for others, and your sense of values. Be the best you can be, and life will give its best to you. May you feel pride in all that you are and find happiness in all you've yet to be. Remember -- You Are Special!

Love Always,
Dad and Mom

Nathan Rich

Kelly,

We are proud of you and all your accomplishments. Thank you for all the joy you bring to our lives. We will always remember the good times we shared with you and your friends at the house. God has blessed us in so many ways, but definitely with a wonderful daughter like you.

Love,

Mom and Dad

Kelly Cory

Katie,

Congratulations on your many accomplishments. May your life be filled with many joys and happiness. We love you very much. Mom, Dad, Natalie, and Philip

Katie Shaffer

Sherry,

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you..." Sherry you have always been our SHERRY SUNSHINE. We are proud of your accomplishments in school, church, and scouting. You have great compassion for others, ability, willingness to serve, and love. Continue to give these gifts to the Lord, and He will continue to lead your way.

We love you!

Mom, Dad, and Marsha

Sherry Hinsey

T.K.,

Words could never express how much we love you and how very proud we are of the person you've become. It is hard to believe how quickly eighteen years have passed. It seems like only yesterday we held you in our arms for the first time and wondered what you would be when you grew up; you have surpassed everything we dreamt of. Your enormous heart, kindness, many talents and willingness to be your "own person" and not "conform" have been an inspiration to many. May all your dreams come true as you "Reach For The Stars." May God bless you, T.K., as he has us with you!

All our love,
Mom and Dad

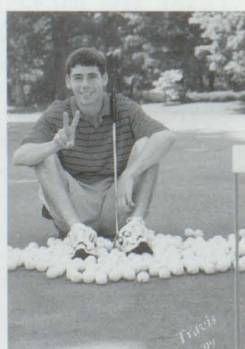

T.K. Klotz

Travis (T-Load),

Thanks for the memories, and for being the best son ever. I'm so proud of you. Good luck at college and remember to take dead aim in everything you do.

Love you forever,

Mom

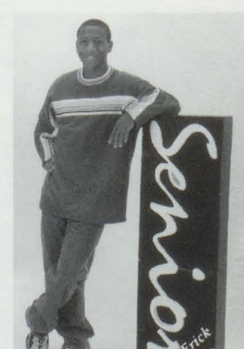

Travis Watson

Erick,

Value yourself always the way God measures you -- beyond measure. You have always been a blessing to your family and friends. The love, joy, and compassion you possess will enable you to overcome and achieve anything you choose to do. Remember never to measure yourself by worldly values. Genesis 1:31 states everything made by God is good! You are created by him therefore immeasurable.

Love,
Mom

Erick Fox

Jon,
 A poet for the soul.
 A musician for the spirit.
 A comforter for the heart.
 You bring us smiles and laughter,
 insight and wisdom,
 gentleness and joy,
 warmth and love.
 We will cheer as your talents take you soaring.
 Love and God bless,
 Mom, Dad, Matt, and Mary

Jon Lundquist

Lyndsey,
 You have brought us so much joy the past 18 years. We cherish the memories of watching you grow up. As you go off to college, believe in yourself! Remember the Little Blue Engine . . . I think I can, I think I can. We'll always be cheering for you.
 With Love,
 Mom, Dad, & Tyler

Colophon

Volume 82 of the Rosennial is a student-produced publication created on IBM computers in PageMaker 5.0. The book is printed on 80 pound Monarch gloss paper stock. The cover is black and green linen with a clear silkscreen and a pewter foil. The cover was designed by the yearbook staff. The endsheets are four color on white paper. There is one signature of four-color, including senior portraits and the "Friends" feature. The Rosennial is published by Walsworth Publishing Company in Marceline, Missouri. Our local publication representative is Debbi Nelson.

So, We Ask . . .

What Comes Next?

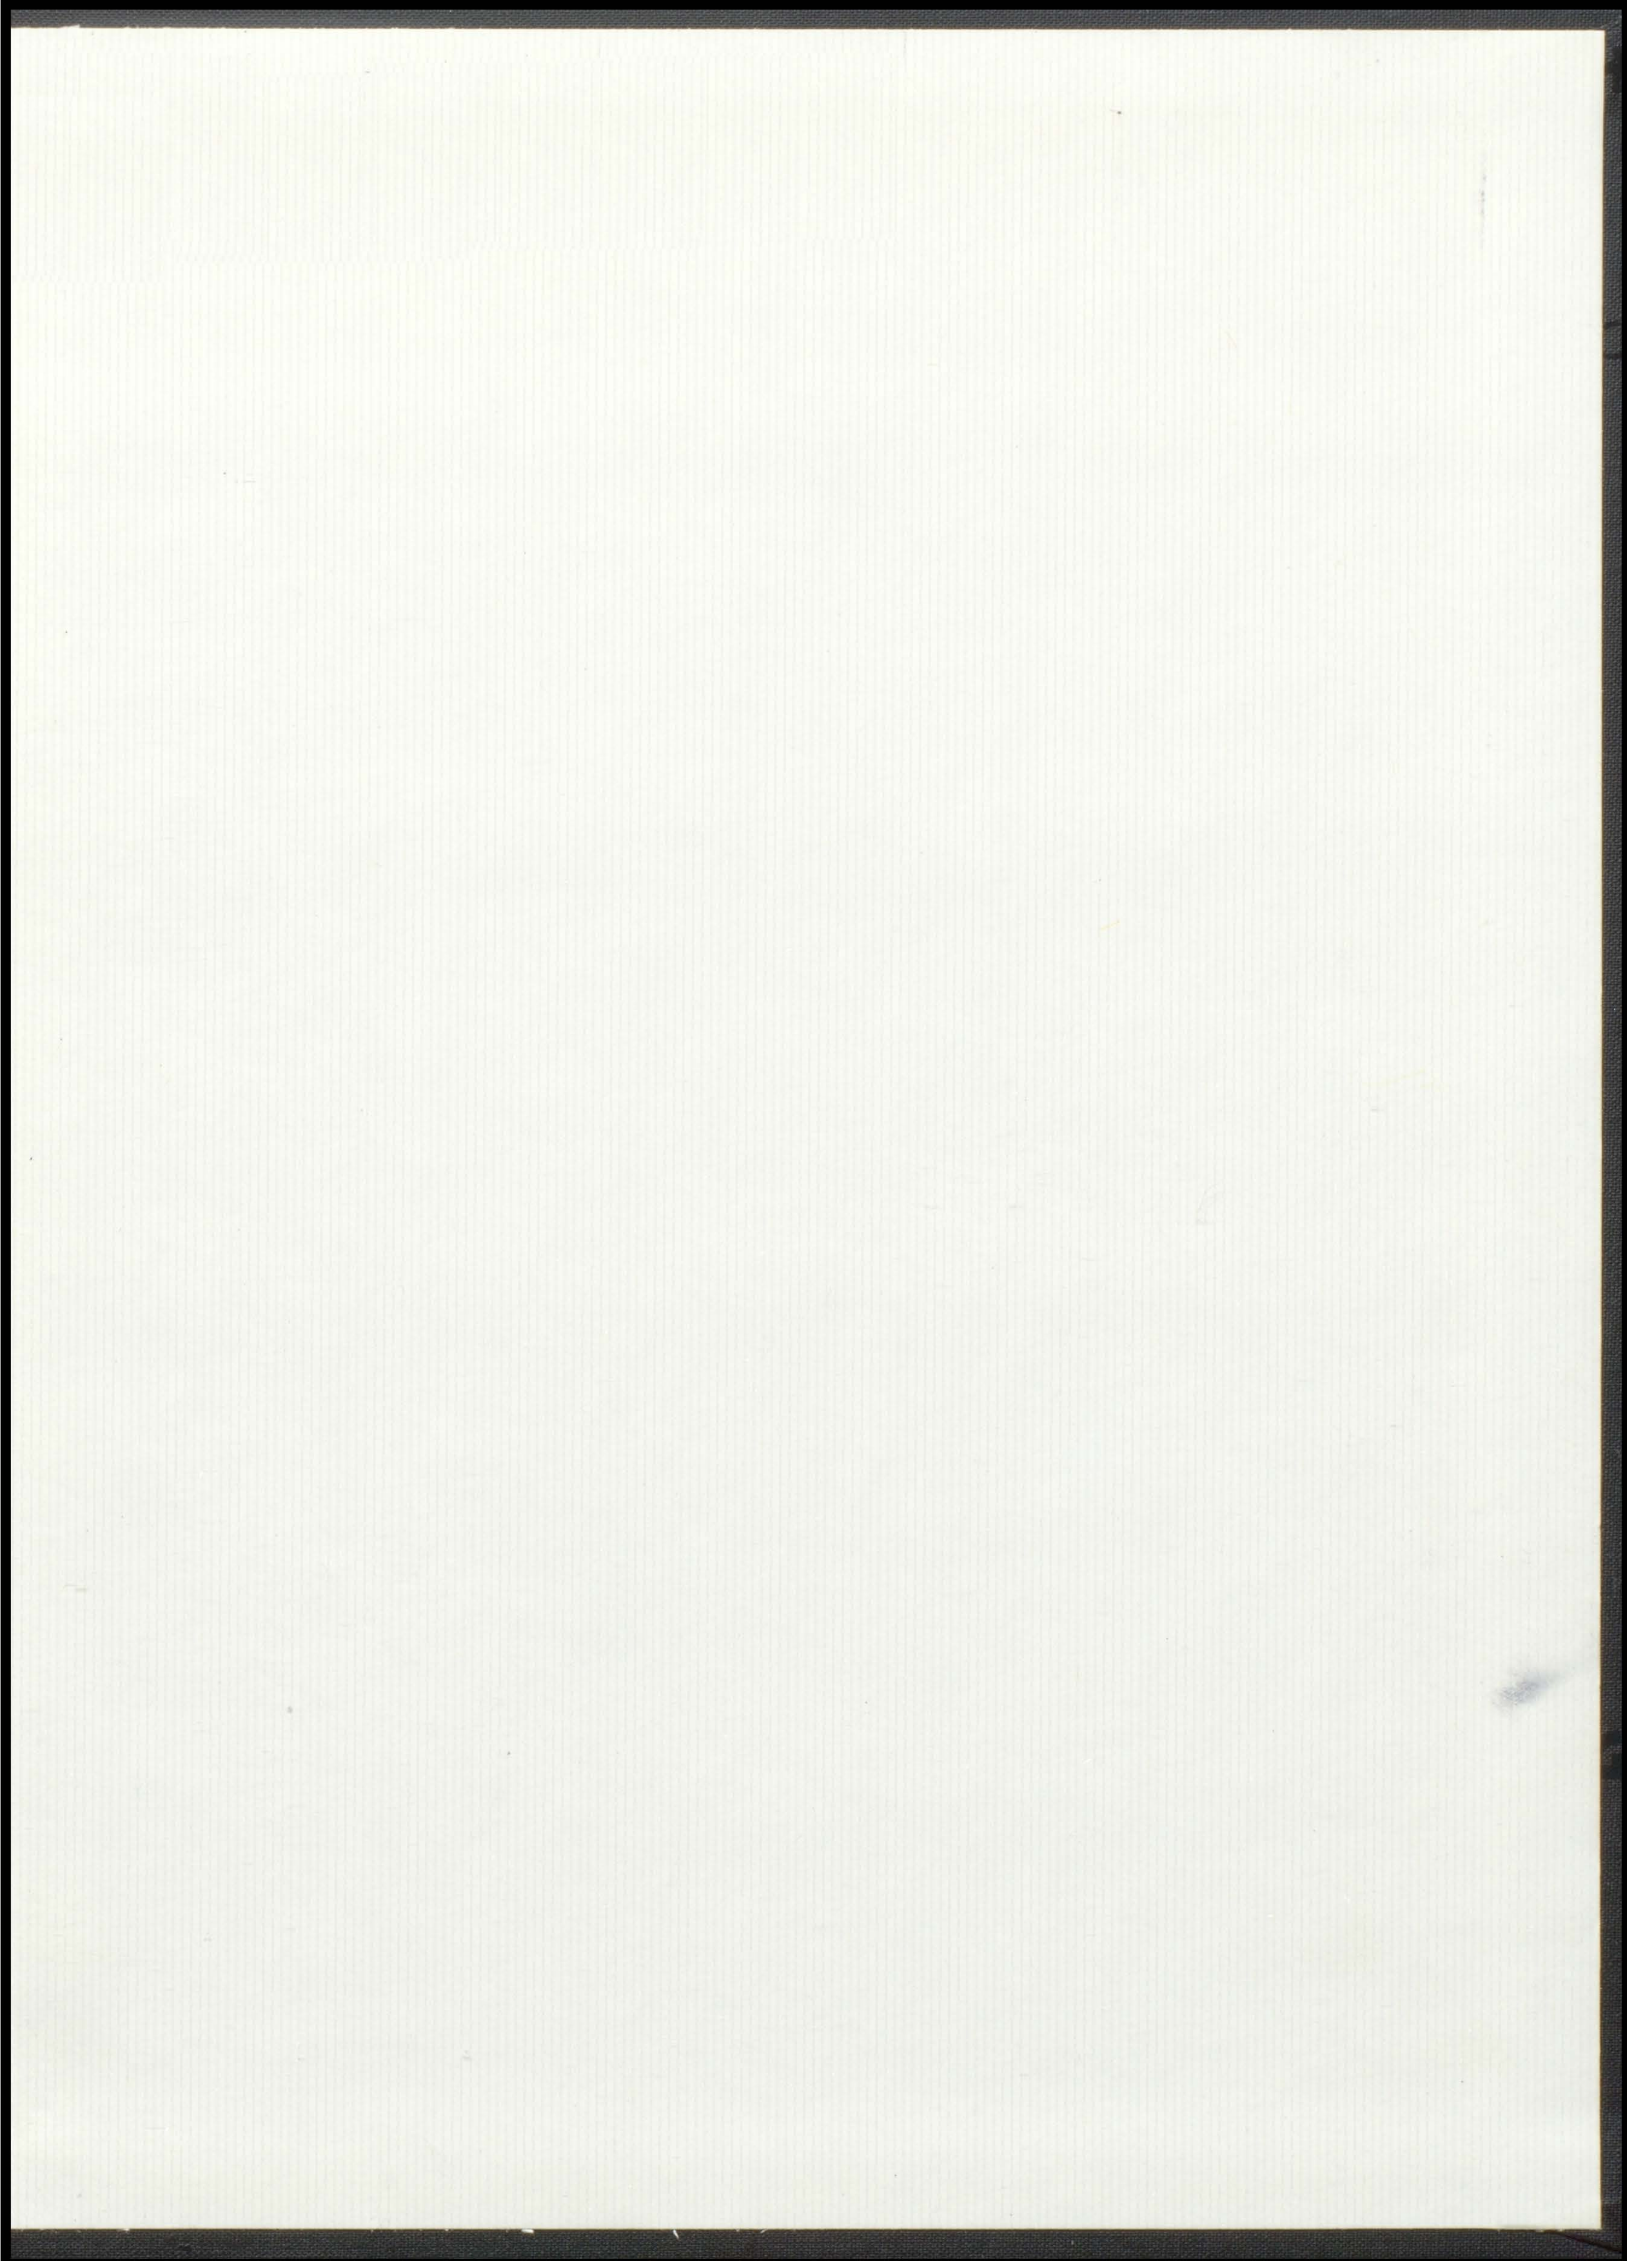

On Saturday, June 5, 241 caps identical to this one rested on the heads of NCCHS seniors as they accepted the diplomas they worked so hard to earn. Although their futures are uncertain, the foundation of a good education will carry them far as they reach for their dreams.

This year has been full of changes, some good, some bad. We have experienced the joys of renovation, the trials of moving, and the anxiety of bomb threats. We have written papers, taken tests, and created projects. We have built friendships, broken hearts, and made memories.

As we approach a new millennium, we reflect on how our lives have been different because of the time we have spent at NCCHS. Some of us will continue to gain knowledge in these newly remodeled halls; others will move on to new growth in other areas. Regardless of where we go, or what we do, we will all be asking, what comes next?
